Congress to Get Emergency Bill For Armament In 48 Hours

By John G. Norris.
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt, showing noticeable concern over the progress of the war in Europe, declared yesterday he would place before Congress within 48 hours an emergency defense program, which reliable circles reported would total just short of a billion dollars.

Climaxing a day of conferences with Army and Navy chiefs and Congressional leaders, the Chief Executive revealed the virtual completion of his arms expansion plan and declared its fulfilment rather than the means of paying for it was the paramount problem before the Nation today.

His announcement came as Gen. John J. Pershing, 79-year-old retired general of the armies of the United States, urged the United States to launch an immediate, thorough preparedness program, declaring "the very life of the republic depends on the energy and determination" with which it is pressed.

Money Called Minor Detail

President Roosevelt made no effort to hide his concern over European developments as he met newsmen late in the day. Sitting in his shirt sleeves behind a desk piled high with reports from Army and Navy officials, he declared there are two primary reasons for arms expansion at this time:

Knowledge gained within the last few weeks and months of modern warfare.

The progress of military events in the past few weeks, which has inevitably brought the defense picture of the United States a little closer to the United States.

He said he was afraid the cost of the program would be pretty high, but that this is a minor detail compared with getting the arms now. Whether the money is to be raised by additional borrowing which will require an increase in the $45,000,000,000 debt limit or by additional taxation, Mr. Roosevelt declared is a completely minor detail.

The important thing, he said, was national defense, and getting funds to work increasing our protection against foreign attack.

Would Modernize Army

The arms program, the President said, is designed to give the Nation complete and perfect defense in every weapon of war, and is said on good authority to emphasize modernization of the Army rather than the Navy or air force. The plan in its general lines provides for the following:

Additional antiaircraft, antitank, and machine guns, semiautomatics, tanks and other up-to-date equipment for a wartime army of 1,000,000 men—virtual completion of the Army's Protective Mobilization Plan.

Speeding up the current naval building program by: Placing navy yards and private shipbuilding plants on a 24-hour shift; relaxing restrictions on employment of Government technical workers; liberalization of restrictive laws.

Laying down all ships now authorized and starting work on the

'We Must Not Delay'

Pershing Pleads With Nation To Speed Up Its Defenses

Gen. John J. Pershing last night issued on his own initiative the following statement on the Nation's defenses:

PREPAREDNESS is as necessary today as it was for us when war was declared in 1917, and we find ourselves in practically the same condition. Congress has made certain appropriations for materiel, but that is far short of what I think America must do.

PERSHING
As he arrived in Washington yesterday

EVERY ENERGY in this country should be devoted to the idea of putting the United States in a condition of thorough preparedness against the possibility of war.

NONE OF US CAN tell when we may become involved in the struggle now raging with such tremendous fury in Europe. In my opinion, the very life of this Republic depends on the energy and determination with which our people undertake the task of placing the United States in a state of thorough preparation in both men and equipment.

THE TIME FACTOR should be the dominant consideration. In 1917, I sailed for Europe with nothing material available other than the will to do and a hasty plan as the basis for doing it.

OUR ALLIES protected us during more than a year of preparation. They provided us with the materiel.

TODAY THE SITUATION is utterly different. This great country must, within itself, be prepared for whatever instant action is required for our security. We must not delay longer in our preparations.

Neely Leads In W. Va. Vote For Governor

Democratic Chairman Trails in Close Fight; Senator Holt Behind

Yesterday's Voting

WEST VIRGINIA—Senator Neely maintained a lead for the West Virginia Democratic gubernatorial nomination last night, while Senator Holt, seeking Democratic renomination, was running third. State Senator Thomas B. Sweeney led for the Senatorial, and Mayor D. B. Dawson, of Charleston, for the gubernatorial nomination in the G. O. P. primaries.

OHIO—Representative Dudley White and Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland were running neck and neck for the G. O. P. Senatorial nomination, while John McSweeney held a steady lead in the Democratic race. Former Gov. Martin L. Davey was conceded the Democratic Governorship nomination, while Gov. Bricker was unopposed in the G. O. P. voting.

President Wins CAA Transfer In Senate Vote

Air Bureau Reform Program Sustained By Tally of 46 to 34

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt won a smashing victory yesterday when the Senate sustained his proposed reorganization of the Civil Aeronautics Authority by the unexpectedly large margin of 12 votes. The vote was 46 to 34.

The Senate's action means that the President's plan to abolish the Air Safety Board and transfer the hitherto independent CAA to the Commerce Department will take effect June 10 without further obstacle. Although the House had previously disapproved the proposal, negative action by both chambers was necessary to block it.

In addition to shaking up the CAA, the executive order will make shifts in other agencies, including transfer of the Weather Bureau from Agriculture to Commerce; Food and Drug Administration from Agriculture to Federal Security, and St. Elizabeths and Freedmen's Hospitals, Howard University and the Columbia Institution for the Deaf from Interior to Federal Security.

Prior to the vote yesterday, Administration forces had been claim-

Blitzkrieg Reaction

Stocks Plummet 2 to 15 Points; Grain, Cotton Prices Crumple

War's cannonading riddled American markets again yesterday for the second successive day, sending stocks, bonds and commodities to widespread lows on heavy selling.

Stocks toppled from $2 to $15, some blue chip issues such as duPont being off as much as 19 at one time. The ticker ran minutes behind, bogged down in the day's volume of 3,680,000 shares.

In Washington, the Securities and Exchange Commission, armed with plenary powers to suspend trading in the Nation's securities markets, was closely studying the sharp drop, but asserted that it had no plans to intervene. SEC officials kept close watch for signs of run-away bear activity, but saw no immediate cause for alarm.

In the wildest afternoon session since 1933 on the Chicago Grain Exchange, wheat dropped ten cents a bushel allowable, ending dollar wheat. May closed at 95¾, July down to 95⅝. Corn was off 7 cents at one time, rallying to finish with a net loss of 4¾ to 5½, while rye slid the dime and soy beans dropped the eight-cent Federal limit.

Cotton, likewise, crumpled under disturbing reports from Europe as the Nazi invasion closed additional export markets. Futures plunged as much as $3.50 a bale. Some speculative buying at the end of the session cut the loss to $2.50 for the day.

World sugar futures broke sharply, losing 3 to 6½ points on stop-loss liquidation. Slides were recorded for hides, cocoa, tin, cottonseed oil, wool tops and lead. Rubber closed slightly higher on fear of a shortage of supply from the Netherlands East Indies, the major source.

German Losses Heavy, French Say; Line Drawn For Great Battle

By G. H. Archambault
Copyright by New York Times

Paris, May 14.—"The enemy is making a momentous effort with furious obstinacy and at the cost of heavy casualties."

This phrase in the communique issued tonight by the Allied high command indicates sufficiently what the coming battle will be. The phrase relates specifically to the Sedan region, where after occupying that French town, the Germans are seeking to bring about a rupture of the front.

But it is becoming evident that it will be applicable to every action. People recall the statement attributed to Adolf Hitler that he was prepared to sacrifice 1,000,000 men to break through the Maginot Line.

Battle Scene Apparent

In a general sense the military situation had become cleared tonight although in detail it remains confused. It is apparent that the general battle—it will be one of the fiercest in history—will be fought on a right angle front having as pivot the twin French towns of Mezieres and Charleville, 15 miles west of Sedan. From there one section of the front runs northward along the river Meuse as far as Namur and Liege; the other runs eastward parallel to the Maginot Line as far as the Rhine.

At certain points of this front the main bodies were beginning to make contact today. Within 24 hours it is likely that they will be at grips. Everywhere the preliminary fights have been violent, mostly between mechanized units with constant cooperation with the air arm. There is no doubt that the battle will become fiercer and fiercer to its end.

Race Against Time

The German advance was swift, sometimes in leaps of as many as 90 miles a day. It was, in fact, a race against time in an effort to dislocate the Allies before the main bodies could be brought up. This object has not been attained, except in the Netherlands.

The French and British effected liaison with the Belgians, protected their retreat and fought many delaying actions. In five days the Allies have concentrated their forces on positions west of the Meuse River. On their part, the German main bodies are gradually joining the advanced guards. The stage is set.

So much for the general picture. It is more difficult to paint in the details. The high command obviously cannot furnish, at this stage, any indication that might serve to

Air Assault Against England Will Be Next, Berlin Says

By Preston Grover.
Associated Press Staff Writer

Berlin, May 14.—Germany's war machine crushed the Netherlands tonight and beat a bloody path along World War battlefields through Belgium to the ramparts of France

Capitulation of Holland after five days of blitzkrieg was hailed by the Germans as "a unique military achievement."

German authorities said resistance continued in Zeeland, blaming skepticism of the local Dutch commander, but said "negotiations are being conducted" to end hostilities there too.

Rotterdam Preserved

The German high command announced that surrender of Rotterdam, once-great Netherlands seaport, had preserved it from destruction by dive bombers and armored forces.

[Occupation of all Holland except Zeeland gives the German air force new bases within 185 miles of the English coast, and a Berlin spokesman told the United Press in Berlin that waves of warplanes would attack the British Isles "in the nearest future."

[The victory in the Netherlands also puts the German armies in a position to threaten Antwerp from the north and provides them with a far broader communications zone than the narrow bottleneck through which the Kaiser's armies moved and were supplied.—Editor's note.]

Nazis Reach Ligny

"In North Belgium," the German command announced, "armored units have reached Ligny, historic battle ground of 1815, in pursuit of the retreating enemy."

Earlier the Germans said the retiring Belgians, French and English had been thrown back at the River Gette in the direction of Loewen and Wavre.

The French apparently attempted to halt the onrushing Germans in the Charleville-Sedan sector by opening up a full-fledged but unsuccessful air attack, said DNB, German official news agency. It said the French thus lost 69 planes.

Historic Battle Scenes

Both Sedan and Ligny are rich in memory for Germans. It was at Sedan on September, 1870, that Germany decisively beat the French armies of Napoleon III. At Ligny, on June 16, 1815, Napoleon Bonaparte beat the Germans under Bluecher, but failed to follow up his advantage and Waterloo resulted.

Ligny is 8 miles north of Charleroi, famous World War battle-

Police, FBI Agents Continue Probe Of Torch Death

Federal Bureau of Investigation agents and Prince George County police yesterday continued investigations to determine whether the death of a man, chained and burned to death in an auto at Beltsville, Md., was due to murder or suicide.

Body of the victim, who authorities are convinced, is George Hofman, 39, of Branchville, Md., were discovered by a laborer Monday morning. A heavy tire chain was looped around the man's neck and attached to the doors. Investigators said yesterday that had the victim been conscious, he could have removed the chains, since they were loose. A 5-gallon can, believed to have contained gasoline, was found on the rear seat.

Members of Hofmann's family feel that the man had been murdered, but at a late hour last night Dr. James I. Boyd, county medical examiner, had not yet issued a certificate.

German Legions Conquer Fourth Nation in 8½ Months

GERMANY'S SWIFT, hard-hitting legions last night forced surrender of the main Dutch army, thus conquering their fourth country in eight and one-half months, and winning new air bases for promised massed bombing attacks on the British Isles "in the near future."

DUTCH TROOPS STILL FIGHTING in Zeeland now form the extreme left flank of the Allied line, and give Antwerp, Belgium, a measure of protection on the north. The Germans declared Antwerp was endangered from three sides.

FROM THERE THE BATTLE LINE extends southeastward toward Liege, claimed by both sides. Britons admitted the Germans may have passed Liege, leaving it an island of heavy fighting behind the German advance.

GERMANY TOLD OF DRIVES westward from the Liege area, to within a few miles of Louvain, but the Allies disputed this. Southwest of Liege, the city of Namur seemed the key point. The French admitted the Germans had reached Namur, but the Germans reported occupation of Ligny, 15 miles farther west. This might have fallen to a German column moving around Namur, however, through the Namur-Liege-Antwerp triangle, where the situation was vague.

SOUTH OF NAMUR, the front took definite shape, stretching south along the Meuse Valley through Dinant, across the French frontier, then east through Sedan, captured by the Germans, to Longwy, at the Belgian-Luxembourg-French corner, thence southeast between the Maginot and Siegfried lines.

ALONG THE ENTIRE front, from the Rhine to the North Sea, there was heavy fighting, although the main forces were not believed to have engaged. The full burst of battle was expected momentarily.

MEANWHILE, SWITZERLAND'S fears of a German attack grew stronger, the Balkans' anxiety continued, and Italy's anti-Allied fervor increased, either as preparation for war or as a feint to help her Axis partner.

Lord Beaverbrook Fills New Post of Minister For Plane Production

By the Associated Press

London (Wednesday), May 15.—The dire threat of German air and submarine assaults on Great Britain from bases in Nazi-overrun Holland weighed heavily on Britons today while expeditionary forces on the continent were declared officially to be maintaining "contact with the enemy."

The Dutch acknowledged the German conquest of all Holland except the southwestern province of Zeeland, but their legation here said the fight continued in Zeeland and the Dutch navy still was battling as a "state of war" persisted.

Lord Gort, commander in chief of British field forces, told his men "the struggle will be long and hard, but we can be confident of final victory."

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Churchill injected new blood into his cabinet, and the war office called on volunteers for defense against a possible Nazi invasion of England by parachute troops.

Chief among the cabinet additions was that of vigorous, 61-year-old Lord Beaverbrook, famed Canadian-born newspaper publisher, to the newly created post of minister of aircraft production. Long an advo-

Brussels, May 14.—Premier Hubert Pierlot told the nation tonight that Belgium's defenders had made "certain modification of defense positions according to order," but that there had been no German "break through" despite smashing assaults in many sectors.

"The situation is normal," the premier assured his people in a radio broadcast.

In the fortified area of Liege, he declared Belgian guns were inflicting tremendous losses on wave upon wave of attacking Germans. (The German high command claims Liege is in Nazi hands.)

Before he spoke, the Belgian high command reported in a terse communique that Belgian troops were "resisting energetically the pressure of the enemy forces," but that during last night, advance elements were compelled to retire.

The text of the communique tonight follows:

"During the night of May 13-14, Belgian forces took up in good order and without suffering any losses new defense positions in accordance with the plan of operations.

Fascist Party Demonstrations Whip Up War Fever in Italy

Rome, May 14.—New anti-Allied demonstrations, capped by the burning of British and French flags on a mock coffin in front of the British Embassy, heightened apprehension tonight that Italy soon might go to war.

Other signs of war fever were lacking, but some diplomatic observers expressed anxiety because of student parades in Rome and scores of other cities encouraged by Fascist leaders as "war cries."

In the midst of the agitation against the Allies, Italy's great liner, the Conte di Savoia, sailed from Naples for Genoa en route to New York, and Italy appropriated nearly 2,000,000,000 lire ($100,000,000) for the extraordinary expenses of five ministries to meet the "international situation."

Some observers said they believed the sailing of the Conte di Savoia was a sign that Italy would stay out of the war at least two weeks. Others recalled that the Germans went to war last September with the liner Bremen on the high seas.

Several thousand shouting students burned the coffin with the flags after they shouted against the Allies and for Hitler before the French, British and German embassies.

Premier Mussolini three times smilingly acknowledged their cheers from his Palazzo Venezia balcony.

95% of Nation Is Handed Over; Dutch Colonies Remain at War

Amsterdam (Wednesday), May 15—All of Holland except tiny Zeeland province on the southwest coast surrendered to Adolf Hitler's blitzkrieg today to "prevent further bloodshed," and avoid "destruction of our women and children" after the Dutch commander-in-chief ordered his troops to lay down their arms.

Within a few hours green-gray Nazi troops will ride into The Hague, Amsterdam and Rotterdam amid the wreckage of aerial bombings to extend Hitler's "protective" grip on the small nations of western Europe.

After an invasion that began only five days ago, the German army will take Holland's key cities and 95 per cent of her continental territory with the same ease that it rolled into Warsaw and Oslo.

Empire Remains At War

The Netherlands empire overseas remains at war with Germany, however.

Gen. Henri Gerard Winkelman, commander in chief of the Dutch armed forces, told the nation sorrowfully in a radio broadcast just before midnight that "there is no other way out" than surrender.

"It was no use," he said, telling of the shattering German air attacks on Rotterdam, Utrecht, Helden and other cities and towns and the superiority of the Nazi war machine that drove the Dutch defenders back steadily for five days.

Holland had been cut off from her British, French and Belgian allies to the south by a German drive that reached the North Sea coast and split the nation in half.

Navy Not Affected

Queen Wilhelmina and her government, having fled to London and set up a temporary government, will carry on the fight in defense of the sprawling Dutch Empire overseas, officials stated.

The surrender, it was explained, does not affect the Netherlands Navy, which remains in the war to defend these colonies, including the Dutch East and West Indies and Dutch Guiana.

Zeeland Province, which was not included in the surrender, lies just north of the Belgian coast, only 12 or 15 miles from the besieged Belgian seaport of Antwerp and has an important naval base at Flushing.

Not only to aid the British-French-Belgian defense of Antwerp and Ghent to the south of Zeeland does the province continue the war against Germany, but also—perhaps on British advice—to prevent German planes from acquiring a base only 150 miles from London.

Zeeland, with an area of 690 square miles and 254,000 population, comprises only 5 per cent of the area and 3 per cent of the people of Holland.

Surrendered to Germany are 12,000 square miles of lowland territory and nearly 8,400,000 population.

Gen. Winkelman told the people of the uselessness of further fighting, and ended his proclamation with a cry of "Long live Her Majesty the Queen! . . . Long live the Fatherland!"

Earlier last evening he had ordered the Dutch troops to cease resistance in the Rotterdam and

HELL BENT FOR ELECTION

RESIGN IN '42? One of the most hard-boiled of the inner circle, third-term New Dealers popped up with a new, novel and astonishing suggestion the other noon. He is one who evidently cherishes a secret affection for the two-term tradition.

Harlan Miller

He proposes that President Roosevelt might run for re-election with a tacit understanding that, if things quiet down a little in this turbulent world in 1942 or 1943, he might resign after one or two years of his third term and let his vice-president move into the White House.

* * * *

This would leave the two-term tradition bent, dented, but not pulverized.

"No President has ever resigned," he said. "So he would be breaking a tradition if he resigned. But maybe his opponents wouldn't be too bitter about his breaking this one."

* * * *

DEWEY SAVED: Out in Los Angeles, Tom Dewey's picture was about to be snapped on the city hall steps near a local politician whose mugg in a news picture isn't a 100 per cent asset. Quick as a flash one of Dewey's brain trusters, Mr. Lockwood, stepped in front of the camera and parked there. That picture wasn't made.

"—might split the third term"

BROKEN TRUCE: The Vandenberg troops are complaining that Dewey's masterminds have violated the truce concerning pursuit of delegates in Michigan. They assert that Dewey's manager, Russel Sprague, has quietly invaded Michigan disguised as an evangelist.

* * * *

DEWEY A GOOD EGG: Men who have seen a great deal of Dewey this spring, under all sorts of circumstances, assert that the wisecrack about him "You have to know Dewey well to dislike him," coined by Mrs. Kenneth Simpson, wife of his New York foe, is not a fair judgment.

* * * *

After talking with Dewey while playing golf, sitting on the grass, on his train, and as he lay in bed suffering from high-altitude diarrhea, they say he's likable and a good-egg; a good companion over a drink, an interesting conversationalist.

* * * *

He has his moments of withdrawal, when he is introduced to some important gent and walks away from him with a very casual how-d'ye-do. He isn't good with funny stories, though he tells dramatic ancedotes well.

* * * *

He's mistered a little too much for good campaigning, because his masterminds don't want him to be called Tom by every Tom, Dick and Harry. But he grows on you as a human guy, to the point where you're willing to forgive him his youth.

"—McNutt runs interference"

MCNUTT WALLOP: If you tune in on Paul McNutt's speeches during his swing through the West, you'll hear the most hard-hitting New Deal speeches made by anyone during the last three years. McNutt is having a lot of fun kidding the Republicans about being so dynamic. So far he's the most effective Democratic campaigner of the year, tossing back the same sort of grenades Dewey is throwing at the Democrats.

* * * *

SECRET BOOK: Willkie's braintrusters have compiled a handsome book of his articles, speeches and other tid-bits and are circulating it off-the-record where it'll do the most good. The reason for this secrecy is not quite clear, but those who receive a copy think they're in on something pretty special.

* * * *

GOP's ICKES: Perhaps the best campaign biography of 1940 is Sam Williamson's about Frank Gannett, the publisher. It reads better than Mr. Gannett's speeches, which have been the GOP equivalent of the Ickes speeches—they get so angry, indignant and outraged in the first 30 seconds that the general effect is somewhat comical. Over the air you get the impression that Mr. Gannett has both thumbs in the dike, like the little Dutch boy, and that the water is chin high.

* * * *

WHO BUT HH? Herbert Hoover receives newspapermen occasionally at his Waldorf suite in New York, even has a drink with them. If he speaks a little disparagingly of Dewey's candidacy, some suspect that that's his best way to help it. There are still plenty to tell him that he is the logical man for 1940.

Hull's Popularity Outstrips Garner's With Democrats

By Dr. George Gallup,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., May 14.—If President Roosevelt does not run for a third term, Secretary of State Cordell Hull is the leading popular choice for President among the rank and file of Democratic voters in a poll by the American Institute of Public Opinioin.

GALLUP

With national attention turned more and more toward foreign affairs, Hull's popularity has increased sharply in recent months, putting him ahead of John N. Garner as a popular Presidential choice. Last February and again today the Institute asked a cross-section of Democratic voters throughout the country:

If Roosevelt is not a candidate, whom would you like to see elected President this year?"

TODAY

Hull	47%
Garner	21
Farley	16
McNutt	6
Wheeler	4
Jackson	1
LaGuardia	1
Bankhead	1
Others	3

FEBRUARY

Garner	40%
Hull	25
McNutt	11
Farley	8
Wheeler	4
LaGuardia	3
Jackson	1
Murphy	1
Byrd	1
Others	5

In today's survey a little less than half (45 per cent) of the voters polled said they were undecided as to whom they would choose if Roosevelt does not run—a fact which indicates that sentiment is far from crystalized when Roosevelt is eliminated.

Roosevelt Most Popular

Other studies have shown that President Roosevelt is still the most popular man in the Democratic party and that an overwhelming majority of the party's voters want to see him elected again. But this does not mean that Roosevelt is necessarily the strongest vote getter in the party.

In fact, Institute researches have shown that Secretary Hull's vote-getting ability may actually be greater than Roosevelt's at the present time because (1) Hull does not have to overcome any third term prejudice, and (2) he wins a greater number of the voters who supported Landon in 1936 than does Roosevelt.

Farley Shows Gain

In addition to the sharp gain in Hull's popularity since February, today's study shows an increase for James A. Farley, who rises from 3 per cent to 16 per cent. Part of this rise is undoubtedly due to the extensive tour of the West and Southwest which he made earlier this spring.

Paul V. McNutt's popularity among Democrats dropped a little in the period since February, although the silver-haired Indianan is still among the toprankers. Senator Wheeler of Montana held his ground.

Other prominent Democratic Democratic leaders mentioned by voters in today's survey include: Gov. Lloyd Stark of Missouri, Secretary Harold L. Ickes, Secretary Henry A. Wallace, Senator Champ Clark, Justice Lewis O. Douglas, Senator Harry A. Byrd, Secretary Harry Hopkins, Alfred E. Smith and Jesse Jones.

District Fund Bill To Be Called Up Today

The District appropriations bill is due to be called up in the Senate today for approval of the amendments adding $1,405,623 to the House measure.

Senator Davis (Republican), of Pennsylvania, has notified Chairman Overton, of the subcommittee in charge of the bill, that he will talk about the Scott circle underpass authorization.

Jurisdiction Change Asked by District

Legislation to give the Juvenile Court undisputed jurisdiction in cases of nonsupport of wives and minor children was asked of Congress yesterday by the District Commissioners.

The Commissioners pointed out that a recent decision of the United States District Court held that such cases properly come within its jurisdiction. The juvenile court handled all nonsupport cases from 1912 until its organic act was revised

G. O. P. Figures On Roosevelt As Nominee

Leaders Arrange Program on 3d Term, Peace as Issues

By Robert C. Albright,
Post Staff Writer

From keynote speech to formulation of a program and nomination of a candidate, Republicans at Philadelphia will proceed on the assumption that they have Mr. Roosevelt to beat.

This was forecast last night by G. P. O. party spokesmen as President Roosevelt successfully parried another third-term query.

Republican strategists were convinced that whatever the President's intentions, he will not disclose them until the G. O. P. National convention is over. Consensus of Republicans is that the President will run, and the Philadelphia convention and the ensuing campaign will be planned that way.

Taunting the Republican third-term opposition, Senator Herring (Democrat), of Iowa, who heads his State's "Draft Roosevelt" delegation, urged them to "take a look at the critical world situation, and nominate Mr. Roosevelt on the first ballot.'

Herring predicted the Democratic convention will do as much, denying reports that Mr. Roosevelt told his delegation during a recent White House interview that he will not run.

At his press conference yesterday, President Roosevelt was asked if it were true that he so informed Iowa Democratic leaders.

A "Loss" of Memory

Reporters laughed as Mr. Roosevelt used a new device to duck the oft-repeated question. He said he did not remember.

Herring, in denying the "not a candidate" report, forecast Mr. Roosevelt's renomination, but stopped short of predicting his acceptance. He implied that third-term leaders who have the nominating votes in hand, have never received the "I will" signal.

Presence in Washington yesterday of Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, of New York, broadened the field of speculation on the Democratic keynote choice. Lehman's name is understood to be on the list of four or five under consideration.

Lehman said a vacation, not politics, brought him to Washington. But he conferred with the President at the White House, chatted 45 minutes with Attorney General Jackson, and visited Senators Wagner and Mead at the Capitol.

Third-term Democratic convention votes instructed or publicly committed reached approximately 500 yesterday, as Ohio's Democratic primary scored another 52 delegates for the President. Nominally pledged to Charles Sawyer as "favorite son," the Ohio votes will be cast for the President.

In Ohio's Republican primaries, Senator Taft pocketed the Buckeye States 52 G. O. P. convention delegates, and then prepared to move West today for speeches and conferences. In Illinois on Friday, Taft will confer with former Governor Frank O. Lowden and on Sunday he will dine with former Governor Landon at Topeka.

With the European crisis overshadowing recent Republican emphasis on domestic issues, Taft and other G. O. P. candidates were expected to concentrate more specifically on foreign policy solutions in the six weeks remaining before the Republican convention. A highlight of Taft's Midwestern swing will be his St. Louis speech on May 20, which has been billed to "deal with the war situation."

Vandenberg Is Boomed

Backers of Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, seized on the war in Europe to boost Vandenberg's "seasoned leadership" and "international experience."

A broadside issued by Michigan's "Vandenberg Movement" cited their candidate's 12 years of membership on the Foreign Relations Committee and declared: "He alone among available Republican leadership can effectually implement the inevitable pledge of the Philadelphia convention to keep America out of alien wars."

In the House, Speaker Bankhead yesterday appointed a committee to police campaign spending by candidates for the House. Bankhead named Representative Warren (Democrat), of North Carolina, chairman. Others named were Representatives Hart, of New Jersey, and Hennings, of Missouri (Democrats), and Hancock, of New York, and Michener, of Michigan (Republicans).

Byrd Admits He Is Doubtful As to Discoveries' Value

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd (right) arrived in New York yesterday and will report to President Roosevelt at the White House on new discoveries in the South Polar regions. Roger Hawthorne, recorder for the expedition, returned with Byrd, who admitted the commercial or strategic value of the discoveries was "doubtful"

Admiral in New York on Way to Report Antarctic Findings to Roosevelt; Sees Southern Plane Route to Australia

By the Associated Press

New York, May 14.—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, commander of the United States Antarctic Service Expedition, returned today to report to President Roosevelt new discoveries in the South Polar regions, but admitted their commercial or strategic value "was doubtful."

"Of course," he added, "planes could be flown from South America to Australia and Asia over this route."

The admiral said he had left 29 men at the base at Little America, in addition to the crew of the snow cruiser, nicknamed "Bouncing Betty," so far unused, and 26 men in the east base. They have three planes.

Admiral Byrd said: "The reason I am back is because I was ordered back. I am under Navy orders. I do not know whether I will return to Antarctica. I am subject to orders.

"Our first orders were to establish bases in Little America and the east base, 1,200 miles to the east, and try to find the coastline of the Antarctic continent, which other expeditions have been trying to find for 100 years."

Admiral Byrd said the expedition had mapped 900 miles of unknown coastline in three seaplane flights from the old Coast Guard cutter Bear, now a unit of the Navy. The Bear also charted about 900 miles of the edge of the ice pack between Little America and the east base, he said. About 400 miles of this stretch remain to be charted accurately.

Fortified Guam Would Bar Indies Move, Maas Says

Representative Maas (Republican), of Minnesota, told the Explorers Club last night that Japanese occupation of the Dutch East Indies would only be forestalled by converting the island of Guam into a "Gibraltar of the Pacific."

"Gaum," he said, "holds the key to our continued importation of vital rubber and tin supplies from the Dutch East Indies. Were Guam fortified, we would have nothing to fear from the Japanese navy."

Maas said that a fleet stationed at Guam could cut the line of communications of the Japanese fleet, should an attack on the Netherlands' possessions or the United States be attempted. Patrol planes flying from Guam could keep tabs on the Japanese fleet and prevent any surprise moves, he added.

U. S. Anti-'Chute Plans Perfected, Officers Reveal

Dayton, Ohio, May 14 (AP).—Wright Field Army officers said today the War Department has studied for about four years plans to combat possible attack by parachute troops. The officers, insisting on anonymity, said defense tactics have been perfected.

Germany's blitzkrieg in Belgium and the Netherlands indicates, they said, that the Nazis vastly improved parachute tactics initiated by Russian in Finland.

The Army men explained that German soldiers leap from transport planes at low altitudes, whereas the Russians jumped at 1,000 or more feet and exposed themselves to machine gunners below.

President Wins CAA Transfer In Senate Vote

44 Democrats Vote

The final tally showed 44 Democrats, Senator Norris (Independent), of Nebraska, and Senator LaFollette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, for reorganization, and 20 Republicans, 12 Democrats, and 2 Farmer-Laborites against it. Every Republican who voted was recorded against the President's proposal.

Decisiveness of the Administration victory was at least partialy attributed by some observers to hesitancy on the part of "doubtful" Democrats to slap the President at a time when the European situation is crucial and third-term possibilities loom ever larger.

However, Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, sponsor of the resolution to block the reorganization plan, said that the "swing" to the President was due to two causes: "The telephone from the White House" and the "personal appeal" made to various Senators by Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, chairman of the Committee on Government organization.

"The White House telephone was working constantly," McCarran declared, and another opponent of reorganization observed that "every official downtown who ever did a Senator a favor was on the phone telling him to vote for the President's plan."

In the closing debate, Senator Byrnes and Majority Leader Barkley both took the floor to plead for defeat of McCarran's resolution—which would mean victory for reorganization.

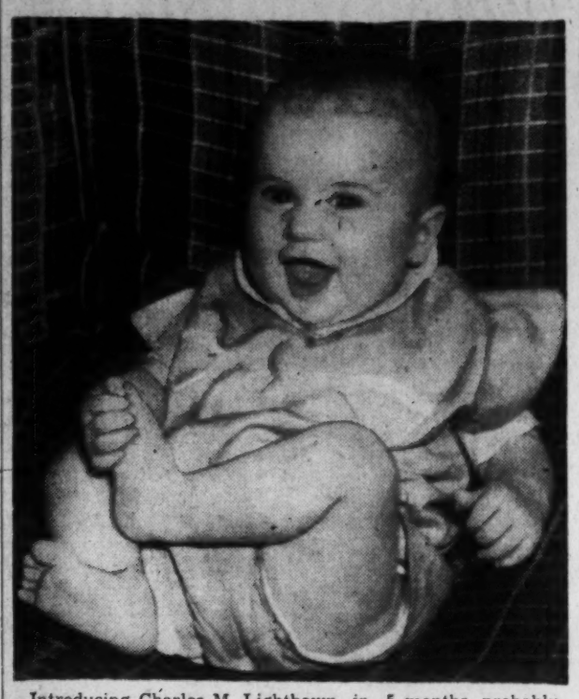
Praise Pilots

Both of the Administration's "big guns" denied that the CAA or the doomed Air Safety Board were primarily responsible for the absence of fatalities last year on American airlines. Major credit, they said, should go to restricting of airline competition, better training of pilots and physical improvements on the airways.

Under the reorganization order, the CAA, which will be known as the Civil Aeronautics Board, will take over the functions of the Air Safety Board in making independent investigations of accidents. Although the CAA will report to the President through the Secretary of Commerce, the CAA will continue certain functions independently of the Secretary.

Opponents of the plan contended that the transfer would make a "political football" of the CAA by placing it in an executive department.

'So This Is Life'



Introducing Charles M. Lightbown, jr., 5 months, probably the most sophisticated fellow his age. This was his reaction to firemen who climbed four stories with scaling ladders yesterday to unlock the door which kept his mother and nurse from him in the apartment house at 3621 Newark street northwest.

Federal Workers School Praised by Mrs. Roosevelt

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt yesterday lauded the Federal Workers School for providing a program of "better understanding among employes of the Federal Government" and suggested the project be enlarged to include workers in private industry.

She was guest of honor at a luncheon of the school faculty at the Hay Adams House. The group, a C. I. O. affiliate, is conducted by volunteer instructors and has approximately 600 students enrolled for two yearly terms, Mrs. Roosevelt was told.

In a series of impromptu talks, the various teachers described activities of the school, outlining subjects which range from English to government economics.

"I think you are doing a most important job,' said Mrs. Roosevelt. "To bring together workers of varying backgrounds, education and experience and to teach them to better know and understand each other is to my mind a vastly important project."

She urged the school faculty not to confine classes to Government "white collar" workers, but to expand and bring in students from private life and industry.

Aims and purposes of the organization were described by Miss Hilda Smith, educational consultant, WPA. She said one of the school's greatest problems was to adapt courses to the needs and desires of enrolled students.

Other speakers who discussed phases of the school were Dr. Caroline Ware on education techniques; John Edleman, on labor unions; Robert Nathan on economics; Emil Busie on English, and Ralph Heizell, secretary to John L. Lewis, also on labor.

Mrs. Roosevelt was introduced by Mrs. Margaret Wallace, director of the school.

State Department Advises Nationals in Italy to Leave

U. S. to Join 20 Republics' Protest to Nazis

Americas to Make Formal Declaration On Newest Invasion

By William V. Nessly

The United States yesterday announced its willingness to join the 20 other American republics in a formal protest to Germany against the invasion of Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg.

At the same time, amid increasing reports that Italy soon would be in the European war, the State Department said the thousands of Americans still in that country were being advised to leave. It was recognized that Italian entrance into the conflict and the closing of the Mediterranean ports, especially Genoa, would make it extremely difficult for Americans to escape the area of conflict.

Uruguay had advanced the proposal that all the American nations unite in condemning the German aggression that has set the Low Countries aflame, and the State Department yesterday replied that this country would be glad to join in such a declaration.

Draft of Text Approved

The department said it was in full agreement with the draft of a text for the joint declaration of protest as written by Uruguay. All consultations on the proposal are being cleared through the President of Panama.

The advice to Americans to leave Italy indicated a pronounced switch in official attitude here, since Undersecretary of State Welles some ten days ago said no consideration was being given the idea.

Yesterday Secretary Hull at his press conference said Ambassador William Phillips was giving Americans there the same kind of notice that has been given in other European countries now at war. The previous notice was to the effect that, conditions being serious, nationals of this country were advised to leave while communications still were open.

More than 19,000 Americans were in Italy at the latest count, more by a few thousand than in the United Kingdom, France and Germany combined. Some now have left but many are married to Italians and a majority of these may not leave. Americans married to Norwegians decided to remain when they were advised to leave as the war descended upon that country.

Roosevelt Asks Defense Increase

pending 11 per cent fleet increase, but no additional naval ship authorization.

Another development was a request to Congress from President Roosevelt for $8,098,660 for converting Coast Guard ships to naval use and $99,480 for an unidentified "special mission" for the Coast Guard. In time of war, the latter service becomes a part of the Navy.

Large pilot and air mechanic training programs for the Army and Navy.

Subsidizing an expansion of munitions plants by means of "educational orders" and other means.

Just what is contemplated immediately in enlargement of Army and Navy aviation was not clear. Chairman Vinson of the House Naval Affairs Committee said he would present a bill tomorrow for a large increase in planes for the Navy, and another Congressional source said $80,000,000 is included in the program for from 400 to 500 bombers for the Army.

The Navy has on hand or order 3,200 planes, a goal that would be raised to 4,500 by the pending 11 per cent naval expansion bill. The Army has now or contracted for 5,500 planes, 500 short of its authorized limit.

The President referred to a metaphor used by his press secretary, Stephen Early, some hours previous. Early had compared the situation today to a four-alarm fire up the street which the wind is carrying toward your home. In such a case, Early said, the issue is protection of your home even if you haven't got the money to buy chemicals and other equipment or the time to go to the bank and borrow it.

Carrying it a bit farther, Mr. Roosevelt declared a fire in a great city would require additional expenditures there the following year, which would affect its financial status, but that reporters covering the fire would not write their leads on the future payment of the fire but on the fire itself.

The tension evidenced in official circles downtown over the news of Nazi advances in Holland and Belgium was also noted on Capitol Hill.

Rear Admiral Samuel M. Robinson, coordinator of naval shipbuilding, appearing before the House Naval Affairs Committee with plans for speeding the shipbuilding program, bore the brunt of criticism from anxious committeemen for the Navy's failure to act sooner.

"You people have to be prodded to get any action," Representative Mott (Republican), of Oregon, charged. "You lack initiative and have been slow to press for additional aviation and air bases."

Chairman Vinson also assailed the Navy for having "done nothing" to speed up the building program since war broke out in Europe last September.

Admiral Rooinson proposed immediate appropriation of about $300,000,000 to accelerate ship construction. This would include additional building facilities for ships, and shortening the building time of 68 war vessels now on the ways.

Part of the additional funds would mean increased cost of the vessels—possibly as much as 15 per cent of the total—Robinson said, while the greatest portion would merely mean an advance of money which normally would be spent next year.

Shipyards under the speed-up plan, both public and private, would be placed on a 24-hour basis. Workers in navy yards would work a six-day, 48-hour week, and those in commercial plants, a five-day, 40-hour week. Navy ship construction could get priority over Maritime vessels. It also contemplates modification of the Walsh-Healy Act, removal of restrictions on civil service employment to make possible hiring some additional 50,000 naval employes, and authority for the Navy to negotiate contracts for ships rather then let orders to the lowest bidder.

Such changes would advance the completion dates of ships building from four to seven months, Robinson stated. Committee consideration of the proposal will continue this morning.

A reporter asked the President about a question raised by some Senators—whether the United States had gotten its money's worth for the billions spent in the last seven years for defense? Mr. Roosevelt said he thought the answer was obvious.

The expenditures were necessary, he said, first because the United States had to keep up with other countries on defense and spend money for the same weapons they were buying, and second, because we spent so little between 1921 and 1933 that in the later years we had to catch up and keep up.

A great deal of replacements were required and many gaps had to be filled, he said. At present, Mr. Roosevelt added, we feel we are up-to-date and are trying to keep abreast of the arms race forced on us.

Sales are hitting new highs..so Buick dealers are ready to make swell deals.

Wouldn't it be tragic if you missed it!

JUST suppose that down the street a dealer had an automobile so close to your heart's desire that it might have been made to your own specifications.

Suppose it had the room you've been wanting—the big, strapping size you'd like—the imposing style and good looks and soul-satisfying luxury of appointment.

Suppose it had all the life and zip and action you could ask for and a big, durable, thrifty power plant that could match even fine watchworks for smoothness.

Suppose you knew that car set the standard for real modernity and value—but just assumed that it must be out of your reach because it was so obviously good!

Wouldn't it be tragic if you passed up that honey—just because you didn't inquire what the prices actually were?

Here and there that's happening, we fear. Happening because people who want Buicks aren't getting the actual facts.

Maybe you didn't know that there are five 1940 Buicks at five different price ranges.

That every one of these has a big, husky, straight-eight engine electrically balanced after assembly by Buick's own exclusive process.

That soft, stout coil springs are found on every one—that every one has recoil-mounted Knee-Action, finger-flick transmission, bona fide Buick styling—features literally counted by the dozen.

Maybe you didn't know, above all, that for Buick SPECIAL models, current prices begin as low as $895 ★for the business coupe, delivered at Flint. That even when you add transportation based on rail rates, state and local taxes (if any), and optional equipment and accessories, delivered prices are the lowest ever on such value.

But all that's true. You can prove it any day by asking for a demonstration that costs nothing, and involves no obligation.

So why take a chance of missing something gorgeously great that could be yours for the trying? Do something, and do it now—go see your Buick dealer!

Buick prices begin at $895★ for Business Coupe (illustrated)

3d 'Practice' In 3 Days Finds Nation Ready

20 to 25 Reich Divisions, Same Number of French Reported in Sector

Basel (Wednesday), May 15.—German engineer detachments early today threw a pontoon bridge across the Rhine River at the entrance to Lake Constance, where the German town of Konstanz lies surrounded by Swiss territory on the southern bank.

It was the third time in three days that the Germans have "practiced" with pontoon bridges on this stretch of river, and lent point to Swiss speculation whether Germany might combine her smashing drive across the Low Countries with an attempted push through Switzerland into France's back door or whether the Nazis merely wanted the Allies to think they would.

While awaiting the answer, the Swiss were prepared for war almost as fully as though it already had come.

Reports Filter Across Border

The Swiss minister in Berlin was ordered to protest bombing of a Swiss railroad May 10 and to demand damages.

The government denied that large numbers of Germans had entered the country.

Germany allowed reports of elaborate military preparations to filter across the border.

Informed quarters estimated that Germany had between 20 and 25 divisions in this sector and France equally as many.

Many expressed belief the Germans actually planned to strike in an effort to reach the Rhone Valley, then to persuade Mussolini that the time had come for a "death blow" at the Allies.

Search for "Fifth Column"

Soldiers and militarized police established control on the Thunstrasse, one of Bern's main streets, and examined the credentials and contents of all cars entering the Swiss capital.

The guard was established to prevent any infiltration of "fifth column troops." A special search was made for arms.

Dollar bills were unobtainable, because many persons had left for Italy, carrying dollars with them as the most certain currency in Europe.

Hungarian Border Closed

Budapest, May 14 (U.P.).—The frontier between Hungary and Germany's protectorate of Slovakia was reported closed tonight while both nations called up reservists and massed troops in the border regions.

The controlled press in Budapest said the frontier had been closed since Saturday and that the Slovakians were mobilizing all reservists between the ages of 23 and 42.

Tension, growing for weeks and accentuated by the calling up of two classes of reservists last week-end, was at a peak in Hungary. Rumors of brewing trouble with Slovakia went the rounds, only to draw categorical denials by Hungarian officials.

More Ships Sunk, Nazis Say

Berlin, May 14 (INS).—Two British cruisers and one destroyer were bombed and sunk, another cruiser heavily damaged and two Allied troop transports set afire by German planes off the Dutch coast today, it was officially announced tonight.

Thousands Answer British Call For Men to Fight 'Chute Army

Citizens in All Walks, From 17 to 65, Rush to Sign Up With New Rifle Corps; Eden Pledges 'Pr 'ompt Defeat' for Invaders

By the United Press

London (Wednesday), May 15.—Thousands of Britons today responded to a government mobilization of 100,000 volunteer "minute men" to resist any German bombing or parachute invasion of the British Isles from the nearby coasts of Nazi-conquered Holland.

War Minister Anthony Eden, in a radio broadcast to the nation, appealed for volunteers for a home guard corps.

Hardly had Eden's voice died on the radio when thousands of men besieged police stations throughout the nation, offering their services. Bank clerks, amateur sportsmen, World War veterans and messenger boys, ranging in age from 17 to 65, poured into streets in cities and towns and villages throughout the country, all hurrying to police stations to sign up.

All Able Men Eligible

Most of them were persons who had not been called to service because of age stipulations, but under the regulations of the new rifle corps any man able to carry a gun is eligible.

Many who heard the appeal from public house radios were the first in London to rush to police stations. Police soon were registering hundreds.

Eden asserted that arrangements already "are existing which will make and keep our country safe," and that danger from parachutists should not be exaggerated. The government, he said, had laid plans for "prompt and rapid defeat of the parachutists, although naturally they cannot be revealed."

The aid of every man over military age or in reserved occupations capable of handling a gun will be sought to patrol woods and open spaces, particularly from dawn to dusk, and to keep watch with field glasses for planes and parachutists.

Cyclists to Aid

The National Cyclists Union unofficially was mobilizing 250,000 men and women cyclists to watch for parachutists.

There was growing conviction that a main objective of the Germans in their drive to the Dutch-Belgian coast was to establish bases from which they could raid Britain and counter the harrying campaign which British planes are carrying out against German troops in the Low Countries.

The new "Local Defense Volunteer Corps" will be armed and used mostly in small towns and villages and other sparsely populated areas.

Arms to Be Provided

It was announced officially that the volunteer unit will serve for duration of the war. Uniforms and arms will be provided by the government.

Thousands of soldiers and policemen have been assigned to special antiparachute duty.

Steel-helmeted soldiers stopped motorists at barbed-wire barricades and demanded identification papers in connection with a nation-wide roundup of aliens.

Books on Display

Rare books, letters and other items from the Lima Library at the Catholic University have been placed on view in the main hall of the Mullen Library on the university campus, in cooperation with the Pan-American Scientific Congress now meeting in Washington. Prepared by Dr. Manoel S. Cardozo, assistant curator of the Lima Library, it will be on exhibit from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. until the end of May.

Yaden to Speak

James G. Yaden, president of the Grand Army of the Republic Memorial Day Corporation, will address representatives of numerous District veterans organizations at a meeting at Central High School at 8 p. m. today to discuss plans for Memorial Day exercises.

Important to Users of Nylon Hosiery

The wear you derive from Nylon hosiery will depend largely upon the same precautions in wear, handling and laundering that any sheer hose demands. Especial care should be used in putting on and taking off Nylon hose, so as not to snag or break the threads. Nylon's moisture-absorbing capacity being low, it dries quickly and tends to prevent dirt from being carried into the fiber. Nylon washing may be very gentle, because it is necessary only to wash dirt off, NOT OUT.

Nylon hosiery, made of 30 and 40 denier (size) yarn, is equivalent in weight to 2 and 3 thread chiffon silk hosiery.

Do not press Nylon with hot iron or place on a hot surface.

Great Air Battle Continues; Ground War At Skirmish Stage

By Harold Denny
Copyright by New York Times

With the British Army in Belgium, May 14.—Leading elements of the British army now are in contact with the Germans, according to an authoritative statement tonight, but the main bodies have not yet come to grips.

These leading elements undoubtedly are mechanized cavalry, consisting of light tanks and armored-carrier cars. The statement added that "all goes according to plan."

Thus the real battle the British are preparing to fight on this front has not yet advanced beyond the skirmish stage on the ground.

In the air, however, fliers are continuing, with only occasional snatches of sleep, what is certainly the greatest air battle of history as it has been since the first take-off at dawn Friday sent them roaring to meet advancing Germans in Holland and Belgium.

Dog-fights went on all day long today, one British fighter engaging nine Messerschmitts and shooting down two. British bombers dived below the tree tops and strafed marching columns and supply trains. They report having caused many casualties, inflicting much damage and causing confusion in the German ranks.

Little battle news can be expected from this front at the moment.

Belgian towns and farms in the path of the invading Germans now have become no-man's land. Remembering the fate which overtook the population 26 years ago and spurred by daily bombings, the inhabitants, almost entirely have deserted a wide belt of green fields, gracious towns, and even cities.

Nearer the front one comes upon a more disheartening scene. Today leaving a sizable city which had a thriving populous last week but today is awaiting possible destruction, I encountered a long train of nuns, at least a hundred, walking in twos along the roadside to safety. They were the last to leave the city, for only when the remaining inhabitants had been evacuated was there no longer need for them.

An aged priest walked at their head. They carried what possessions they had time to salvage in pillowslips, small bags, or boxes. Their white headdresses and flowing black robes fluttered around them in the brisk wind and they looked bewildered as they came forth into a world of which they know little.

They were the rear-guard of a pathetic army of men, women and children; many of whom made this same trek in 1914. Few had any vehicles. Most carried what they could salvage in sacks hung from their backs. None wept but their faces all were tragic, except the children, too young to know it was not a pleasure trip.

Belgians Hold, Says Pierlot

armies.

"At Namur, our troops are offering strong resistance to violent attacks of mechanized troops supported by aerial bombardment.

"Our aircraft have today carried our several reconnaissance flights in front of our positions.

"During yesterday Belgian motorized units and cavalry corps fought a brilliant engagement in the region of Gette, equaling the famous battle of 1914."

"No parachutist has dropped in Brussels yesterday or today," Pierlot asserted.

The government announced earlier that it would remain in the Belgian capital, objective of a German army driving westward. A series of air raid alarms sounded during the day but there were no bombs.

"In a large number of bombings in Belgium there have been a number of civilian losses which should be heard by the civilized world," the premier said. "The hour will come when the enemy must pay for this."

He said that towns bombed since the invasion started included Antwerp, Namur, Louvain, Alost and Tirlemont, and that trains filled with refugees were "mercilessly machine-gunned."

Declaring the Germans were waging war on a more savage scale than during their 1914 invasion, the premier exhorted Belgians to "guard intact your morale."

United States Ambassador John Cudahy said he planned to remain in Brussels indefinitely with his entire staff. Other important embassies also are remaining here, as are officials of the National City Bank of New York.

cate of "planes, and more planes," his energies will be directed toward bolstering a fighting arm in which Britain admits a deficiency.

Despite gloomy news for the Netherlands, British fighting pilots were reported to have inflicted four losses for every one suffered at the hands of the Germans in the Low Countries.

Military sources said British troops now were in place with the Belgians in a developing battle expected to tell within the new few days the course that the war would take.

An air ministry communique said that "throughout yesterday and last night our bomber aircraft continued to attack the enemy's road and rail approaches to the Dutch and Belgian battlefields," inflicting considerable damage.

"Vigorous attacks were made on enemy columns along roads in Brabant (in Belgium) which were successfully blocked. . . .

"Farther north on the Dutch battlefield, important railway bridges were attacked and fire was seen to break out following a direct hit from 4,000 feet. From these operations all our aircraft returned safely."

FLIES WORLD'S FASTEST PLANE!

TEST PILOT HOMER BERRY LIKES ALL THE SPEED HE CAN GET IN A PLANE, BUT HE LIKES HIS SMOKING S-L-O-W! SLOWER-BURNING CAMELS ARE HIS CIGARETTE

"FASTEST PLANE off the production line today!" That's how Homer Berry describes the Bell Airacobra, amazing new speed plane. He should know. This veteran speed test pilot started flying in 1913...started smoking Camels the same year. "No other cigarette ever gave me anything like the pleasure of a Camel," he says. "They burn slower, smoke milder and cooler. Camels don't irritate my throat and their full, rich flavor doesn't tire my taste. In 26 years, that slower burning has given me a lot of extra smoking." Before you take it for granted you're getting all the pleasure there is in a cigarette, try Camels. Enjoy the advantages of Camel's slower-burning costlier tobaccos. Penny for penny your best cigarette buy!

TEST PILOT HOMER BERRY SAYS:

"No fast burning for me in my cigarette. I've smoked Camels ever since there have been any Camels. They burn slower and give me more pleasure per puff and more puffs per pack. 'I'd walk a mile for a slow-burning Camel!'"

- In recent laboratory tests, CAMELS burned 25% slower than the average of the 15 other of the largest-selling brands tested—slower than any of them. That means, on the average, a smoking plus equal to

Duce to Raid Swiss First, Says Writer

Canton on Alpine Slope to Be No. 1 Victim, He Predicts

By Augur

Copyright by New York Times

London, May 14.—The thunder of the great battle now started in the Low Countries will not prevent the British from keeping a close watch on Premier Mussolini. The situation in Rome is swiftly coming down to the sharp point when Italy will com out into the open in support of her German ally. That is the view of experts in London.

Originally Mussolini intended to attack Yugoslavia, timing his intervention in conformity with German operations against that country. It is certain that he imagined that the British and French would hesitate to make war on him if the Italian action was restricted to the occupation of the Dalmatian coast. Indeed, Mussolini had thrown out feelers to Paris and London in an attempt to create a favorable atmosphere by the explanation that his move was inevitable to prevent the Germans from reaching the Adriatic.

The concentration of the Allied fleet in the Mediterranean and the undisguised warnings from the Allied capitals added to President Roosevelt's intervention contributed to cool off Mussolini's enthusiasm for that plan. Fuehrer Hitler also suddenly decided to transfer the weight of his military operations to the western theater of war.

Duce's Plan Altered

Mussolini's plan has now been altered to suit the changed conditions. Italy's first victim no longer will be Yugoslavia but Switzerland. The canton of Ticino, sole Italian-speaking state in the Swiss confederation, is invitingly situated on the southern slope of the Alps. The Swiss army is unable to defend Ticino against the Italians because of the lack of good positions.

If Mussolini gives the word the troops now massed on the Ticinese frontier are expected to enter without meeting serious resistance.

The Swiss commanders are fully awake to the dangerous possibilities and they have already planned to retire to the main Alpine passes, where it would be easy to hold up for an indefinite time even overwhelming forces with machine guns and mountain artillery, which they possess in abundance.

The Italian action against Switzerland is timed to coincide with the German march into Basle territory. Indications multiply that Hitler is preparing as the battle in the North develops to create a diversion at the southern end of the Maginot Line. In spite of the magnitude of the Belgian-Dutch battle the German army has sufficient divisions to undertake forcing a passage via Swiss territory around the main block of the Alps through the depression forming the corridor between it and the Jura Mountains.

Aim for Lake Geneva

Germany would aim to reach Lake Geneva, occupying on the way the lateral passes through the Jura Mountains into France, while the Swiss army was confined within the fastnesses of the Alps.

Mussolini may expect, under the cover of a sensational move by Hitler against independent Switzerland, to offer his coup without the Allies worrying. In other words, Mussolini hopes the Allies will not be anxious to add to their difficulties at the height of battle by declaring war on Italy.

The calculation recorded above is not lacking in clever perception of the Allied difficulties. Rome, however, probably is destined to disappointment because Switzerland, as soon as she is attacked by Hitler, will invoke the help of Britain and France, therefore technically all her enemies will become enemies of the Anglo-French entente.

This plan, intended to increase the prestige of Mussolini and Italy by adding new territory with an Italian-speaking population, may produce results opposite of expectations.

British Employ Newest Fighter Plane, 'Defiant'

London, May 14 (AP).—Britain's new secret fighter plane with a sting in its tail and a greater fire power than the famed British Hurricane, is being used in the fierce air battles for supremacy over the Nazis over The Netherlands and Belgium.

The new two-seater fighter, "Defiant," in addition to an unknown number of machine guns firing from forward positions, is equipped with a power-operated gun turret aft.

This new fighter, whose details are secret, was known to have been in large scale production last winter. The "Defiant" is powered by a 1,030 horsepower Rolls Royce Merlin engine. It is a low wing, all metal monoplane.

The power-driven turret is designed to swing easily at high speeds, whereas ordinary turrets are difficult to operate because of the wind pressure. The turret permits a broadside attack on a formation of enemy planes.

Order of Dorian Founders Elect Four Officers

Four presiding officers of the recently formed Grand Order of Dorian were elected to office last night at a founders meeting of a local unit of the organization at the Occidental Hotel. Purpose of the national organization is to "combat communism, nazism and to promote true Americanism."

Elected were Herbert C. Harris, Zeus, and regional director for the eastern seaboard; Dr. Thomas Thompson, Hermes; Dr. C. R. King, Apollo, and E. Lloyd Ettenger, Aeres. Beverley May, of Alexandria, Va., was elected secretary-treasurer. Herbert Taylor and Andrew Clarke, both of Alexandria, were elected outer guards, to serve alternately.

Callom B. Jones, national president of the organization, outlined its plans in a brief address. The group decided to start the movement in Maryland, and elected Herbert Haines, of Baltimore, organizer in the Maryland area.

'Eyes of all Lighted Up'

Nazi Tells of 'Glory' in Bombing Belgians—'Hopes It'll Be Often'

Glowing Terms of Aerial Machine Gunner Describe Raids Which Accompanied German Onslaught—for Propaganda

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Berlin, May 14.—Lust of combat and the glories of war in general are portrayed in glowing terms in an account of the German air offensive over Belgium by an aerial machine gunner who participated in the onslaught. The account is published in the press.

Even among the German people there are "two schools of war," that represented by Erich Maria Remarque as reflected in his "All Quiet on the Western Front," and that represented by Fuehrer Hitler, who wrote in his "Mein Kampf" that "the first bullet" which provided the baptism of fire for his company in Flanders in 1914 was greeted with the roar of cheers from 200 throats."

The young machine gunner's account is intended, of course, for propaganda purposes. Clearly, if he writes what he thinks, he belongs to the Hitler school. The account reads in part:

"None of us had any forewarning of this sudden attack. The schedule for Friday called once again for concrete practice bombs to be dropped over training fields. The evening before the planes loaded with such bombs were standing in their places.

"In the middle of the night a flier came into my room, awakened me and said: 'Get up—there's to be a conference in the classroom in 10 minutes.' It was just ' o'clock. I thought it was to be an ordinary exercise, until the commander of the squadron stood before us with maps tucked under his arm. He looked at us and then said with a smile, 'It's to begin.'

"The eyes of all of us lighted up. We were all happy to know that the time of waiting was over. Orders were given. At dawn the men reloaded the planes with real bombs. Soon plane after plane was rolled out to the starting point. The motors were started. The sky was pale red. We were flying westward over Belgian soil.

"Below along a highway there were flashes. The enemy troops had opened fire on them. Small patches of clouds here and there on either side didn't trouble us. In a wide circle we steered toward our target. The bomber made ready for action. He adjusted his sights and shouted to me, 'Open the bomb traps,' and I replied, 'Ready.'

"Flying low, we raced toward our target. We were scarcely 100 meters above ground. I was lying over my machine gun, staring down. I could see everything clearly, even the machine gunners on the ground below who were aiming at us. At the same moment we began to loose our bombs. I could even see them strike.

"Dazzling flashes as the bombs exploded—tiles, pieces of concrete and paving stone were hurled into the air. There was smoke and also fire. We could feel the concussions distinctly. Enemy troops ran in all directions. The bombs were well aimed.

"Homeward now. We could see our German troops marching along below. We waved at them and they waved at us. Then we landed. There was scarcely one of our planes which had not been hit. While we reloaded with bombs, others made emergency repairs to the plane. Then we lay about in the grass. Soon the squadron commander returned with orders for a new raid, this time at a great height.

"Once again we were in position over enemy territory, and the bombs were dropped. Below everything was wrapped in black smoke and fire. From far beneath us antiaircraft fire had been opened, but it was too late. Our task was accomplished. Landed at our bases again, we had just time for coffee and sandwiches before going up at the enemy once more.

"We don't know how many times we may have to start out like this, but all the boys of our squadron which is helping the army in its advance hope it will be very often."

Dutch Letter Combinations Are Difficult for Americans

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

New York, May 14.—With the center of European fighting moving into The Netherlands, another language is added to the several with which readers of the news stories and maps must become familiar, and it is a language with which not many persons outside the country itself are familiar.

Of the often-encountered letter combinations in the Dutch language, probably one of the most confusing to the non-Dutch speaker is the dipthhong "IJ" which essentially is a dotted "Y" and is pronounced something the English word "eye." This combination comes in the early war news from The Netherlands in the name of Ijssel River, roughly paralleling the east-central boundary of the country. The pronunciation of this is simply "Eye-sel," with the accent on the first syllable.

The same combination comes in the new name for the Zuider Zee—Ijsselmeer, which means Ijessel Lake, into which the river of that name empties. Another usage of the same diphthong is in Ijmuiden, which roughly in English could be prounounced "Eye-moyden," although the "oy" sound is not quite so prounounced as in English. This city is at the west end of the shipping canal which connects Amsterdam with the North Sea.

Another somewhat confusing diphthong is the combination "Oe," as in Roermond, in the southeastern Netherlands. The pronunciation of "oe" is similar to the English "oo," and Roermond becomes simply "Roormond," except that the Dutch roll their "R's" in a way that English speakers will find it difficult to duplicate.

Another letter in the Dutch language which the tongue accustomed to English is never likely to duplicate is "G" and the best thing for the English speaker to do is to pronounce it as a simple heard "G." The Dutch pronunciation of it somewhat approximates a clearing of the throat, but with the tongue widened and pressed against the bottom of the upper teeth. An approximation in English without the clearing of the throat would be the letter "H." It is best not to attempt it.

The letter combination "SCH," as in Schiphol airdrome near Amsterdam, approximates a softly-uttered "SK," and the approximation in English of that particular word would be "skip-hole." The Dutch diphthong "OO" is pronounced as a long "O" in English, and so the Dutch word "School," meaning the same as in English, would be pronounced approximately "Skole," but with a softer "SK" than in English.

Amsterdam, Rotterdam and The Hague are pronounced approximately the same as in English, except that in the first two the "A's" are broad, somewhat as in "AH." The Hague is simply an English equivalent of the Dutch "Den Haag," which in itself is an abbreviation of the name 'Sgravenhage, which often confuses persons by appearing on postmarks and cablegrams. The longer form of the name is translated roughly as "the hedge of the count."

General place names on which advice might be given are Zuider Zee, which means South Sea, as differentiated from the North Sea, and which is pronounced roughly "Zoyder Zay;" the Maas River, which is the Dutch version of what the Belgians call the Meuse, and is pronounced as it is spelled, with a broad "A," and the Waal River, pronounced the same, except that the "W" takes a "V" sound, as all "W's" do in Dutch. The "V's" on the other hand take an English "F" sound.

In Belgium, except along the northern border, where Flemish is spoken, the place names generally take the French pronunciations.

Armies Locked On Historic Battlefields

Tide of Civilization Changed on Soil Of Low Countries

By the Associated Press

"The Battle of the West" for possession of the Low Countries was raging today over land where men have fallen through the centuries since Caesar's legions crossed the Ijssel River to subdue the German barbarians.

The fighting goes on near the fields where Napoleon met his great decisive defeat at the hands of Wellington and Bluecher, where the Burgundians fought in an earlier day, and where in a more remote day Attila the Hun was crushed by the Christians.

Men are dying there whose fathers died in the British retreat from Mons, in the World War attack on the Liege fortresses, and in the terrible battles of the Marne and Verdun.

Antiaircraft shells explode, artillery booms and machine-guns chatter where Arminius and his Teuton hordes slew Lucius Quintilus Varus and 20,000 Roman legionnaires in hand-to-hand conflict.

And the battle, according to reports, is just beginning.

To Be Bloody Saga

Whatever the outcome, it is bound to go down in history along with the great battles of the past—Gettysburg and bloody Shiloh, Sedan and Hastings and Agincourt, Blenheim and battles as ancient as Marathon.

Marathon, between the Persians and the Athenians in 490 B. C., is the first of 15 decisive battles listed by Sir Edward Creasy, whose work was published in 1851. Herodotus estimated the Persian dead at 6,400 and the Athenian at 192.

Alexander the Great fought another ancient, decisive battle in 331 B. C. on the plains of Mesopotamia, routing the army of Darius the Persian.

The battle of Chalons, in 451, was fought between the Goths of the kingdom of Toulouse, under Theodoric, and their allies, against Attila the Hun and his vast hordes. Some chroniclers say 162,000 were slain. Others say 300,000 were killed. Neither side claimed victory, but neither desired further fighting, and the Huns left Gaul forever.

Tours Saved Europe

In the year 732, Charles Martel fought a great battle at Tours, driving back into Spain the Saracens who were threatening all of Western Europe.

Two other decisive battles were those of Hastings and Orleans. In the first, William the Conqueror defeated Harold, last of the Saxons, in 1066, and at Orleans in 1429 Joan of Arc crushed the English and Burgundians and made possible the coronation of Charles VII at Rheims.

The English fared better in 1588 when Phillip II, hoping to dethrone Elizabeth and impose the inquisition on England, rashly sent forth his great armada, only to meet disaster.

At Blenheim, Germany, in 1704, the Duke of Marlborough, ancestor of British Premier Churchill, gave the British another brilliant victory when his army of English, Dutch, Danes and Germans, mainly mercenaries, numbering about 53,000, defeated the French and Bavarians, numbering about 60,000, who were scattered or driven over the Rhine after 14,000 surrendered.

Swedes' Last Bid

In the space of two hours on a summer's day in 1709, Charles XII of Sweden lost the fruits of nine years' victories and all of his army which had terrorized Europe. Charles met the army of Peter the Great of Russia at Poltava, a fortified city on the frontier of the Ukraine. The Swedes lost 8,000 in dead, 6,000 were taken prisoners, 12,000 others later captured. Siberia was their lot.

The British fared badly in 1778 at Saratoga when the American colonials under Gates forced Burgoyne and 7,900 men to surrender, and thus ended the threat of attack from the north.

Lord Lothian Expects War to Reach Decision in 30 Days

Envoy Believes Allies Will Halt German Drive

Predicts They'll Get A Breathing Spell To Win Control of Air

Copyright by New York Times

New York, May 14.—The Marquess of Lothian, British Ambassador to the United States, asserted in an address here tonight that the next 30 days may determine whether Hitler can succeed in his evident attempt to win a decision this year, or whether the Allies can check him in time to permit them to mobilize their world-wide resources to crush him.

Speaking at a dinner of the English-Speaking Union, Lord Lothian expressed confidence that "in the end freedom will prevail." Despite all the murk and gloom of the time," he said, "I am not depressed or afraid."

The ambassador based his hope upon the belief that the Germans can be checked in the "decisive battle" now beginning on the Western Front and that the British will thus have time to complete their plans to overcome Nazi superiority in the air.

Although the Allies have been "going through a bad time," he said the exposure of their defects is "the first step toward their remedy." He asserted that there were "follies and stupidities as well as crimes" on the Nazi side also, but that Hitler "would not dare to hold a solemn inquest upon them," as we did last week.

Saying Norway had believed the best way to avoid war was to maintain neutrality and refuse all help or cooperation to the Allies until it was actually attacked, Lord Lothian called "that view of neutrality one of the greatest illusions of the democracies and the surest road into war."

Germany had taken advantage of this conception of neutrality, he went on, to commit "the most complete act of highway robbery on an unsuspecting and harmless neighbor since the siege of Troy."

Despite the failure of the Allies to save Norway, the British had received an advantage from the Norwegian campaign in that "we can strengthen our blockade."

And despite all the suffering the British may have to endure, he said, "in the end, we, because we are free men and women, will do what is necessary not only for victory, but to prevent such a catastrophe from overtaking mankind again."

Germans Say Raid On Britain Next field where the Allies fought in retreat to the Marne, and the scene of Napoleon's defeat of Blucher's Prussians in 1815, two days before Waterloo.

The town is about 15 miles west of Namur, on the Meuse. (Both French and Belgian communiques claimed Allied possession of Namur, and the German report places Nazi troops in Namur's rear.)

Planes Dive on Tanks

The Germans were reported to have advanced to the Meuse River line at Sedan, Givet and Dinant.

Northeast of Namur the Germans reported earlier a furious tank battle in which German battle planes dived in French tanks. (Perhaps the same battle with the French reported Monday.)

The Germans said the French tank companies were driven back to positions along the Dyle River, west of the Meuse.

German military experts said the first great battle of the war is likely to take place along a line running west of Namur to Antwerp.

The Meuse, from Givet, on the French border, to Namur, is regarded by the Germans as a natural continuation of the French Maginot Line, and north of Namur, the Dyle River fortifications running to Louvain are regarded as a further continuation.

German military experts said what interested them was whether the Allies would choose to defend that line or retire farther west, beyond Brussels.

The high command and other German sources asserted Nazi forces not only made faster progress in this drive than Kaiser Wilhelm's legions did in the World War, but had beaten Allied air resistance into futility.

In five days of battle, the Nazis claimed a toll of about 1,200 Allied planes, at a loss to themselves of perhaps one-sixth that number.

The high command said the German progress, on the other hand, was made "under the protection of continuously attacking German fighting planes, Stukas (dive bombers) and destroyer-plane units."

In the Sedan region alone, where German columns crossed the Belgian and Luxembourg frontiers into France through the Meuse River Valley, an official announcement said German pursuit planes had shot down 70 enemy planes today.

Allies Fall Back

British, French and Belgian troops fell back at the Gette River, east of Louvain, Belgium, DNB said. It reported the Nazis in pursuit of the Allies toward the Dyle River, west of the Gette and about midway between Liege and Brussels.

A glance at pins tracing the German progress on war maps shows that the Nazis have established a great L-shaped salient extending westward from the end of the Maginot Line along the French-Belgian-Luxembourg boundaries to a point west of Sedan.

From there it runs northward past the strong Belgian fort of Namur and north into Holland.

The Germans reported gains also from a point 30 miles east of Saarbruecken, between Germany's Siegfried Line and France's Maginot Line, clear to the Sedan salient, al-Line, clear to the Sedan salient, although much slower on the section facing the Maginot Line.

The powerful Albert Canal defense system between Liege and Antwerp, DNB said, hasbecome unimportant.

Th canal itself has ben crossed at several points and, the high command declared, Liege is in German hands.

(The Allies declared Liege had not been captured, although it was acknowledged in London that the city might have been isolated.

(Contrary to German reports that the citadel of the Liege fortress had fallen, they said the only fort the Germans held in the Liege sector was Eben Emael, 10 miles to the north.)

Nazis Feel Victory In Holland Bolsters Own Blockade

Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, May 14.—With most of the Netherlands now also included in conquered territories of the Reich, the Germans feel they have not only dealth a severe military blow to the Allies but also advanced another great step forward in their campaign to blockade Britain.

The Netherlands, it is stated, is the second great deliverer of milk, butter and eggs which Britain has lost in the last five weeks to Germany's gain. Furthermore it is pointed out that the Germans are cutting down through their march into Belgium, valuable sources of industrial supplies on which England drew heavily.

jection to the anti-Allied campaign but comment on the French stand was withheld by both officials and the press while the demonstrations continued unabated.

Some embassies and legations advised their nationals it would be wiser to leave Italy if they did not have a good reason to stay.

Belgian delegates to the meeting of the International Institute of Agriculture, scheduled to begin May 20, were ordered home.

The American Embassy refrained from ordering an exodus of approximately 20,000 Americans, mostly naturalized citizezns, in Italy. It continued, however, to advise Americans without imperative reasons for staying to leave and most of them without valid reasons for remaining are said to have gone.

Most foreign observers believed the purpose of the demonstrations was to aid the German army attack in the Low Countries and on the Western Front by worrying the French into keeping strong forces on the Italian frontier, and the British into keeping their fleet in the Mediterranean.

Mussolini's newspaper, Il Popolo d'Italia, in an article written in Il Duce's style, showed one purpose of the demonstrations in warning that the Fascist regime would not tolerate defeatism among Italians.

It inveighed against "peace mongers, bellyfillers, cowards and democracies' lovers" who had been misinterpreting Italy's position since her nonbelligerence was declared last September, and called for a cleanup of such "enemies of fascism" in "little corners."

French Find Major Battle Scene Defined

German Casualties In Sedan Area Heavy, Paris Declares

reveal its plans. Rumors, on the other hand, are too numerous, and as a rule too wild and contradictory, to merit attention.

Planes Cover Attack

Events in the last 24 hours have been concentrated in three zones. Of these the most important lies in France immediately south of Belgium is Luxembourg Province and the neighboring Grand Duchy. German armored vanguards, followed by motorized troops, swept toward the French frontier so swiftly that the Belgians had not time completely to operate the elaborate demolition scheme prepared in that district.

This force pushed on toward the French town of Sedan which is located on the northern bank of the Meuse. It was accompanied by a swarm of low-flying planes. The civilian population had been evacuated as soon as the menace became apparent. The French forces fell back after long resistance and the enemy occupied the town, which it should be stressed stands north of the Maginot Line.

Simultaneously the enemy launched a violent attack on Longwy, a small French town further to the east almost on the Luxembourg border. Longwy also stands north of the Maginot Line. The French garrison made a determined stand and there was fierce hand-to-hand fighting in the streets for many hours. At the latest news the enemy had occupied about three-fourths of the town but the defenders were still holding the southern portion.

Fighting at Bridgehead

There has also been fighting between Longwy and Montmedy, a very strong bridgehead between Longwy and Sedan.

Still farther east there have been actions, some very severe, at various points in the outworks of the Maginot Line between the Moselle and the Rhine rivers—the portion generally called "the Western Front" before May 10. There were sharp attacks, notably just east of the Moselle in the Apach sector, in the Forbach salient, and also near the Rhine in the Wissembourg sector. In all cases the enemy was thrown back; at several points the guns of the Maginot Line came into action.

The second zone extends from the French frontier north along the Meuse through Dinant to Namur. Both these Belgian towns have been heavily assailed. According to the latest information reaching French military quarters, the Germans there are using the same methods as at Sedan—armored units and many low flying bombing planes. Both Namur and Dinant have been resisting with vigor. South of Namur the enemy has attempted to cross the Meuse at several points. Counter-attacks were launched and fighting was still in progress late this evening.

Liege Area Activity

The third zone has Liege as center.

Very little information regarding it has come to hand today. At the latest news the forts were still in action. The seriousness of the situation there lies in the fact that the Germans threaten to outflank the fortified position by sweeping round both north and south.

The brilliant charge by French tanks reported yesterday had stemmed the northern flanking movement but since then no news has been received beyond the fact that mechanized Belgian cavalry also has been in action and inflicted much loss on the enemy.

The French communique this evening makes it clear that on the Allied side the air arms are cooperating in all the fighting and that in addition, French and British bombers are attacking strategic points and military convoys.

French Troops Capture Town Near Narvik

British Naval Guns Protect Attackers; 9 Nazi Ships Sunk

Copyright by New York Times

London, May 14.—Under protecting fire from British warships French forces have landed and captured Bjerkvik, on Herjang Fjord, seven miles north of Narvik, "suffering only a few minor casualties," according to a war office announcement tonight.

Coincidentally, it was asserted in other official quarters that British submarines operating in south Norwegian waters have sunk at least nine more German supply transport ships since the beginning of this month.

The size of the landing force at Bjerkvik was not disclosed, but that operation, which was carried out yesterday, together with British submarine activity in Norwegian waters, showed that Britain and France have not allowed the intense fighting in the Low Countries to divert their attention from the northwestern front.

Bjerkvik is to the rear of the German positions in the Gratangen area where Allied attackers engaged the enemy while Bjerkvik was being stormed. Another phase of the same general engagement was the bombarding of Hemnes by a British warship where, according to the brief war office communique tonight, "casualties were inflicted on the enemy." The communique did not go into details on these casualties.

Nazi Transports Sighted

Stockholm, May 14 (AP).—Sighting of numerous German transports moving both north and south in the Kattegat led to reports tonight that the Germans are reinforcing their Low Country drive with their forces from Norway.

Seven large transports, escorted by warships were seen moving south. But observers were unable to tell whether they were loaded with troops, leaving the possibility they were strengthening their Norwegian force instead.

Sweden Thrust Feared

Copyright by New York Times

Paris, May 14.—After Germany's assault on the Netherlands and Belgium there remains, in the view of the Allies, no neutral state in Europe free from the threat of sudden invasion.

For the moment that state which is thought here to be most endangered undoubtedly is Sweden. As German forces press northward toward Narvik in Norway, they are encountering more and more obstacles in traversing a section of the country with no railroads or practicable roads.

Owing to this situation it is thought inevitable that the Reich will bring stronger and stronger pressure upon Sweden to allow the Reich forces, or at least supply trains, to cross Swedish territory.

Sweden has been resisting and has taken action to obtain Soviet support against the violation of her neutrality. In this connection the Swedish trade delegation now in Moscow has an important mission, which may have been a political as well as a commercial rapprochement.

U.S. Will Represent Invaded Nations

The United States has agreed to represent the interests of Belgium and Luxembourg in Germany.

The State Department yesterday issued a list of the countries whose foreign interests are represented by American diplomats in Europe's war capitals. The list indicated that the American Embassy would remain in Brussels and, should the city fall to the Germans, would represent the Allies there. The same was true of the American Legation at The Hague.

YOU, TOO, CAN AVOID BALDNESS

YOU: My scalp almost drives me crazy—it itches, is thick with dandruff, and my hair is getting very thin. What is the matter?

THOMAS EXPERT: Some of the 14 local scalp troubles which cause 85% of all baldness are attacking your hair growing structure and making it impossible for your hair to grow as nature intends it should.

YOU: I've tried everything—can't you do something to help me? I don't want to be bald!

THOMAS EXPERT: We can help you save your hair. We have helped a quarter-million other persons during the past 20 years.

YOU: What does Thomas treatment do?

THOMAS EXPERT: Thomas experts first determine the exact cause of hair loss. We then rid your scalp of local infections which results in stopping the itch and in normalizing your hairfall. We then stimulate the dormant sources of hair-growth and help nature to grow hair.

YOU: Can you help everyone?

THOMAS EXPERT: No, we treat only the 14 local causes of baldness. We examine each person's scalp—without charge or obligation—and those who do not come within the scope of our treatment are frankly told.

YOU: Let's start today. You have 45 offices—have been successful for 20 years—"such popularity must be deserved."

THIS RIDE SETTLES IT, WE'VE BOUGHT A FORD!

WE'RE seeing lots of real-life situations in Ford showrooms this year like the typical but imaginary one shown here. It doesn't take you long, on the road in a 1940 Ford V-8, to find that here's the greatest money's worth so little money ever bought!

TRY THE RIDE! The surprising big-car ride that's one of 1940's big motoring events!

SEE THE ROOM! Extra knee-room, leg-room, head-room . . . you'll find a Ford surprisingly big inside . . . where bigness counts most!

FEEL THE POWER! Of the only 8-cylinder engine in any low-price car. Smooth, responsive power fewer cylinders don't give!

CHECK ON ECONOMY! The 85 h.p. Ford's 24.92 miles per gallon in the famous Gilmore-Yosemite economy test was best of all standard-equipped cars at its price!

COMPARE FEATURES! Biggest hydraulic brakes at low price! Only semi-centrifugal clutch giving lower pedal pressure at shifting speeds, and the only hardened valve seat inserts for all engine valves at low price. Positive, easy-acting finger-tip gearshift. Lots of others, too, worth your knowing!

COME IN TODAY! Drive a Ford V-8. Get its whole convincing story for yourself . . . before you choose any new car!

Dutch Submit 'To Prevent Bloodshed'

95% of Netherlands Yielded to Nazis; Colonies Still at War

Utrecht areas, chief points against which Nazi motorized columns were smashing from three sides.

The commander-in-chief indicated Holland was capitulating because, with a German barrier stretched across the nation's midbelt from the German border to the North Sea, the Dutch forces could not hope to aid their Belgian, British and French Allies fighting on Belgian and French soil.

Simultaneous with Gen. Wilkelman's proclamation, an official order from The Hague lifted the wartime blackout throughout Holland, a certain indication of capitulation.

Winkelman's proclamation came at 8 p. m.

In ordering troops to cease defending Rotterdam and Utrecht, General Winkelman said the cities were "certain to be annihilated" should fighting continue.

"To save the inhabitants and to prevent further bloodshed I hold myself entitled to order al ltroops concerned with the defense of those towns to abandon the fight and keep order until the regular German troops arrive," he said.

As he read his radio proclamation fires blazed in Amsterdam, and in parts of Rotterdam as well, after Dutch military authorities apparently destroyed valuable stores to prevent their falling into the hands of the Germans.

The old quarter of Ymuiden, seaport just west of Amsterdam, was reported tonight to have been partly destroyed by repeated German air attacks.

Military authorities said fires burning in and around Amsterdam were set as "military measures" as Germany's mechanized forces struck at the province of North Holland west of the Zuyder Zee and only 40 miles north of Amsterdam.

Another German force was moving up from the south after crossing the Hollandsch Diep, 13 miles from Rotterdam, and a third Nazi column striking westward below the conquered Groningen-Arnhem zone was nearing Utrecht directly east of Amsterdam.

The Dutch high command said earlier that the Germans heavily shelled and then attempted to cross the 20-mile-long dyke spanning the Zuyder Zee 40 miles north of Amsterdam and about 70 miles north of The Hague but had been repulsed.

'It Could Not Be Otherwise,' Declares Commander-in-Chief

By the Associated Press

London (Wednesday), May 15.—The text of the radio announcement of the Dutch commander in chief, Gen. Henri Gerard Winkelman, as received here:

I, H. G. Winkelman, supreme commander of the Dutch land and sea power, am telling you personally that we had to lay down our arms this afternoon.

It could not be otherwise. Our troops did all in their power, and our air force was so small that it was not able to support our troops.

Our towns have been bombarded, our women and children have been bombed and the German air force took a toll of thousands of victims.

Military and nonmilitary objectives were bombed.

Our soldiers did their best. They held on bravely and fought against an overwhelming enemy.

Rotterdam Destroyed

But they were not equal to modern weapons.

Not only the soldiers, but even the civil population has suffered enormously.

Rotterdam was bombed and destroyed. You can imagine what was going on.

Utrecht had the same fate. Thus we were compelled to lay down our arms.

I, the commander in chief, gave the order to cease firing in order to spare further bloodshed and complete destruction of the country. At least a small part of our beautiful country will be saved.

As commander in chief, I had obtained from the Dutch government the power to act according to my own mind to prevent further bloodshed. So many Dutchmen may ask how all that happened, but you can understand how hard it was for me to decide as I did.

Hollanders, keep your faith in the traditions of our country. Let us bear our lot with calmness. Be faithful in the future. Keep order and calm.

Our fatherland will be restored, because that is our first duty.

Long live Her Majesty, the Queen, and long live our fatherland.

Text of Communique

The text of the communique issued by the Netherlands Legation:

"The commander-in-chief of the Netherlands army has issued a proclamation to the troops concerned that fighting is to cease. The proclamation goes on: 'Fighting in Zeeland continues.'

"The decision was taken toward the end of the afternoon of May 14. Enemy troops in great numbers had succeeded in crossing the Moerdijk Bridge and in retaking Rotterdam, which had previously been heavily bombarded.

"Consequently the heart of the country was laid open to the enemy and the main forces of the army behind the Dutch waterline were threatened by immediate enemy troops on their rear."

"Under these circumstances and in order to avoid complete destruction of the country, the commander-in-chief was of the opinion that further resistance had become useless and, therefore, was to be abandoned.

"In conformity with the decision taken by the Netherlands government, the state of war between the kingdom of the Netherlands and Germany continues to exist."

Nazis to Fail In Mexico Says Daniels

By the Associated Press

Josephus Daniels, Ambassador to Mexico, told reporters yesterday he had informed President Roosevelt that he did not believe any attempt to set up a "fifth column" in Mexico would succeed.

Daniels, who lunched with the Chief Executive, said the Mexican government was taking precautions and had requested him to furnish any information the United States Government might have on such activities in Mexico.

"Of course," the Ambassador asserted, "there are Communists in Mexico, a Communist party in fact. And it is the belief that a group of Nazi agents are trying to work into Mexico, but they haven't been able to do much and are not very strong."

Daniels said he had noted that President Cardenas had deprecated the German invasion of Belgium and Holland and that candidates for President in the July 17 election were echoing that condemnation.

That offers pretty good evidence, the ambassador said, that these candidates are "not in favor of any fifth column in their country."

Mexico, the ambassador declared, strongly favors the Panama declaration, in which the American republics voiced an intention to work together while remaining neutral. The nation is "very strong for what you would call the united Americas," he added.

The question of settlement of the dispute over Mexican seizure of American-owned lands did not come up specifically in his conference with Mr. Roosevelt, Daniels reported.

The ambassador said he expected to leave for Mexico City about June 10, but might delay his departure somewhat to accompany Mr. Roosevelt to North Carolina on the first leg of a Presidential swing around the country.

Ex-Kaiser's Fate Uncertain As Nazi Army Envelops Doorn

Family at Potsdam Unable to Learn Status of Wilhelm, But He Is Believed Under Protection of German Forces

By Guido Enderis.

Berlin, May 14.—Former Kaiser Wilhelm II presumably sleeping tonight under the protection of the German army, but it is not the army he left defeated when he bolted into the Netherlands two days before the Armistice in 1918.

The last of the Hohenzollern sovereigns, it is believed, is under the protecting wings of the eagles of Adolf Hitler in his mansion at Doorn, the Netherlands, where he has been living the life of a country squire for the last 20 years—sawing wood and saying nothing.

The Germans' lightning advance into the Netherlands caught the village of Doorn in its meshes, although the Germans lost half a day in making a polite detour of the former Kaiser's vicinity, on orders from higher up.

His Fate Uncertain

Berlin, May 14 (AP).—All attempts by the Hohenzollern family to learn something concerning the fate of the venerable head of the dynasty, former Kaiser Wilhelm II, have failed.

"We don't even know whether grandpa still is at Doorn," one grandson said today.

"So far as grandpa himself is concerned, all he desires is to be left in peace on his little Dutch estate."

The former Kaiser is 81.

One member of the Hohenzollern administration was understood to have been at the German-Dutch borders since May 10—when the invasion of the Low Countries began—waiting for an opportunity to join his old master and bring him tidings of his family in Potsdam.

He also sought to learn his emperor's fate.

Efforts to reach Doorn have been unavailing, however.

Auto Hurts Fatal To Store Operator

A 59-year-old dry goods store operator succumbed here yesterday, the nineteenth District traffic fatality for 1940. Thirty-one persons were killed over the same period last year.

Robert Fox, 6618 Piney Branch road northwest, was struck by an auto March 21 as he crossed the road in front of his store, 1744 Seventh street northwest. He died yesterday at Garfield Hospital.

Driver of the auto, Leonard Griffin, 26, colored, of 3941 North Glebe road, Arlington, has been notified that he must appear at an inquest shortly.

Mr. Fox leaves his wife, Leah; a son, Harry, of Pittsburgh, and a sister, Mrs. O. H. Basseches, of Washington. Services will be held tomorrow at Danzansky's funeral home, 3501 Fourteenth street northwest, with burial to follow in Adas Israel Cemetery.

Jones Takes Oath

Baton Rouge, La., May 14 (AP).—Sam Houston Jones, plain-spoken small town lawyer, became Louisiana's forty-ninth Governor today, ending 12 years of dictatorial government of the Huey Long regime with a pledge for the "restoration of thriving, unshakable democracy" to the State.

MURALS A LA MODE. What Washington artist's work is viewed by thousands of people every day? The answer is Barry Barretto, alias columnist Don Alba. Senor Barretto executed the fascinating fish in the Neptune Room, the Robin Hood murals in the Robin Hood, the esquirish 1940 King Cole in the King Cole Room, and the clowning monkeys in Burt's Trans-Lux. His first Washington commission was for the La Venta Room in the old Harris Hotel. He still has a fondness for the La Venta murals, though the room, we're told, is now used for table tennis.

Summer luncheon and dinner music at the Carlton will be by Violinist Jack Minovich, Pianist Burrus Williams and Cellist Eli Amanuel . . . Madrillon's new Caballeros wear marvelous ruffled Cuban blouses that are the envy of all the leddy customers . . . When Maestro Don Bestor (Metronome) can't find a gardenia for his buttonhole he snaps on a make-believe white rosebud. "It's woolworth the price," he quips . . . Ray Harts' Diplomats at the Hi Hat are so darned popular that it looks as though they'll stay there all summer . . . "Bill Downer's Nightingale Orchestra is the best around here or anywhere," said Eileen Ritter, cunning Earle Roxyette. Maestro Downer was sitting across the table from her.

Joint Action By Neutrals Urged in War

Law Society Told League Could Use Force If Necessary

Propositions for the unification of the Americas to keep the European war out of the Western Hemisphere and to preserve in at least one portion of the world a system for peaceful solution of its controversies were laid before gatherings of international law experts here yesterday.

A league providing for joint neutral action in wartime "possibly even to the point of the use of force," was declared by Lester H. Woolsey, former solicitor of the State Department, to be the "only method of meeting encroachments of belligerents and preventing violations of rules of warfare and neutrality."

Woolsey addressed a joint session of the thirty-fourth annual meeting of the American Society of International Law and the international law section of the eighth American Scientific Congress.

The same gathering heard from Dr. Charles E. Martin, of the University of Washington, a declaration that "peace in the Americas must be attained through regionalism." He warned, however, against a regional effort which would be a "league of the American nations, designed to use force against a state or states within the Americas, as a means of enforcing here the principle of collective security."

Study Organization

The congress made at least one move in the direction pointed out by its experts. A committee of congress delegates, it was announced, is studying organization of an Inter-American Bar Association under the chairmanship of William S. Culbertson, former American Ambassador to Chile. Dr. Natalio Chediak, the Cuban delegate who Monday introduced a resolution calling for a second Pan American neutrality conference, is a member of the committee.

Meanwhile, at other sections of the congress, which covers 11 scientific fields, two members of President Roosevelt's Cabinet made peace suggestions.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, speaking in Spanish, declared the American republics "must develop a hemisphere consciousness by studying—nation by nation and region by region—the needs of the people and their ability to work with available resources in satisfying those needs."

"Those of us who have ample supplies of capital and of technicians, for example, should find ways to make them available to those who need them on such terms that they will increase the welfare and standard of living of the countries to which they go," he said.

Secretary of Interior Ickes, in a letter to the congress, declared the Americas' "supreme task is to preserve peace by maintaining plenty in our own lands."

Launches Debate

Dr. Joseph W. Bingham, Stanford University law professor, launched the law society into debate by proclaiming that many of the assertions of international law are based on fiction—"that we have, or have had until now, a world normally devoted to peace and systematic impartial determinations of all irreconcilable controversies."

No start toward stabilizing international order can be made, he declared, until the experts recognize that "international law always has been and always will be a product of the interplay of national interest, prejudices and pressures . . ."

H. Duncan Hall, formerly of the League of Nations secretariat and visiting professor at Harvard University, struck an even gloomier note by reclaring that if totalitarianism wins in Europe and Asia "diplomatic procedures for pacific settlement will have disappeared except for the enfeebled rump left in the sphere of the interrelations of the American peoples."

He then added that discussion of means of peaceful settlement of international disputes "can hardly have any relation to the future except on the doubtful assumption of victory by the Allies and China."

Etta H. Matthews Heads Teachers

Etta H. Matthews, teacher at Langley Junior High School, yesterday was reelected president of the Junior High School Teachers Association at its final meeting for this semester.

Other officers elected were Mrs. Mary Ambrosi, of Powell, vice president; Mrs. Bruce Trundle, of Paul, corresponding secretary; Franklin Padgett, of Jefferson, recording secretary; James Brammell, of Taft, treasurer.

Committee chairmen announced were Miss J. A. Tennyson, education; Charles Barton, administration; Frank Stutz, legislation; Mrs. Mildred Eichner, membership, and Miss Catharine Delaney, publicity.

Vitamin B Used in Variety Of Ailments

A Federal scientist yesterday reported the successful treatment of such diverse conditions as impending blindness, due to keratitis, and "insanity" by administration of certain factors of the remarkable vitamin B complex.

In an outstanding section meeting of the American Scientific Congress, Dr. W. H. Sebrell, public health service nutrition expert, described how five separate factors in the B complex have now been synthetically prepared. They are thiamin, nicotinic acid, riboflavin, pyridoxine and pantothenic acid.

Interstitial keratitis, an important cause of blindness, is definitely a manifestation of a riboflavin deficiency, Dr. Sebrell said. He reported cases in which rapid improvement followed administration of the substance and relapses on its withdrawal.

Where the eye disease was associated with syphilis, as is frequently the case in the newborn, riboflavin injections resulted in marked improvement after antisyphilitic treatment had failed.

Acid Used in Insanity

Nictotinic acid has been employed successfully, Dr. Sebrell reported, in cases which had been diagnosed as alcoholic insanity and insanity due to hardening of arteries in the brain.

He pointed out that recent investigations have shown that pellagra is a disease which is not peculiar to the Southern States. Nicotinic acid deficiency, which produces pellagra, is widespread throughout the country, according to the nutrition expert.

He told of meeting five physicians in the last few months who had been suffering, unknown to themselves, from riboflavin deficiency.

While the vitamin B complex is yielding gradually to the probing of science, much remains to be learned about it, Dr. Sebrell declared.

A well-planned diet is the mainstay against vitamin deficiency diseases, said Dr. Sebrell, adding that the use of concentrates is expensive, unnecessary in most cases and possibly dangerous if not well directed.

New Disease Discovered

The congress' section on public health and medicine, which heard Dr. Sebrell, also discussed another vital topic—discovery of a new disease, apparently related to syphilis, known variously in South America as azue, pinto and carate.

Dr. Salvador Gonzales Herrejon, of Mexico, said the disease has been found in Mexico, Cuba, Guatemala, Honduras, Colombia and Ecuador and may be prevalent in the United States, assumed to be some superficial skin affliction.

The theory that it is caused by a species of spirochete, the germ of syphilis and yaws, was advanced in Mexico and appears to be sound, said Dr. Gonzales Herrejon. Surgeon Gen. Thomas Parran of the United States Public Health Service, said the disease is being considered with great interest in connection with this country's antisyphilis campaign.

The hemisphere in which we live is superior to Europe's in several respects relating to accommodation of population, Dr. Raymond Pearl, of Johns Hopkins University, told the statistics section.

POSTLUDE

By Ray C. B. Brown

In honor of the delegates to the Eighth American Scientific Congress, Arturo Toscanini conducts the National Broadcasting Co. Symphony Orchestra in Constitution Hall Tuesday night. Program: Overture to "Egmont" (Beethoven), Symphony No. 1 in C minor (Brahms), Adagio for Strings (Barber), "Batuque Danza di Negri" (Fernandez). "Don Juan" (Strauss), "La Valse" (Ravel).

Through the courtesy of the Radio Corporation of America and the National Broadcasting Co., the delegates to the eighth American Scientific Congress were entertained last evening in Constitution Hall with a concert by the N. B. C. Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Arturo Toscanini. Invitations had not been confined exclusively to the visitors from various parts of North and South America, however, and a goodly number of resident Washingtonians swelled the audience that filled the auditorium. It was a gala event under the auspices of the Department of State, and its official character was signalized by the playing of the National Anthem as a prelude to the program.

BROWN

Instead of attempting the impossible task of complimenting all the American republics with a selection of music by representative composers, Toscanini wisely built his program on the foundation of two established classics, the "Egmont" overture of Beethoven and the first symphony of Brahms. North America was represented by Samuel Barber's "Adagio for Strings," and South America by "Batuque Danza di Negri," by Oscar Lorenzo Fernandez, of Brazil. The last course of the superstructure was the "Don Juan" of Richard Strauss, and the capstone Ravel's "La Valse"—two compositions which are in the process of becoming classics.

Toscanini's reading of the "Egmont" overture was an admirable piece of dramatic projection, both sensitive and intense. His conception of the Brahms symphony was that of mental energy at work upon emotional material; the music had a tremendous drive and urgency, and the sentiment of Brahms was reduced to a minimum.

The two novelties on the program were of sharply contrasting character. Samuel Barber's "Adagio for Strings" is a beautiful work, meditative and elegiac, harmonically consonant, and filled with a sincere poignancy, and it was beautifully performed with finesse of phrasing.

There Are Two Ways to Get at Constipation

Yes, and only two ways—before and after it happens! Instead of enduring those dull, tired, headachy days and then having to take an emergency cathartic—why not KEEP regular with Kellogg's All-Bran? You can, if your constipation is the kind millions have—due to lack of "bulk" in the diet. For All-Bran goes right to the cause of this trouble by supplying the "bulk" you need.

Eat this toasted, nutritious cereal regularly—with milk or cream, or baked into muffins—drink plenty of water, and see if your life isn't a whole lot brighter! Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

KIDNEY TROUBLE

Stop Getting Up Nights

To harmlessly flush poisons and acid from kidneys and relieve irritations of bladder so that you can stop "getting up nights" get a 35 cent package of Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules and take as directed. Other symptoms of kidney and bladder weaknesses may be scant, burning or smarting passage—backache—leg cramps—puffy eyes. Get original GOLD MEDAL. Refuse a substitute.

All-Metal Fighter Ready for Navy; Britain's Secret Warplane Attacks

The Bell Aircraft Corporation, Buffalo, N. Y., announced completion yesterday of an experimental all-metal, low-wing single-seater fighting monoplane for the United States Navy. Similar in design to the Army Air Corps Airacobra, the new Navy plane is powered with an Allison 12-cylinder engine of more than 1,000 horsepower. Designed for aircraft carrier operation, the ship is equipped with a conventional two-wheel retractable landing gear and tail wheel and special arresting gear for deck landings. The ship's power plant is installed near the middle of the fuselage. The engine drives the three-blade propeller through an extension drive shaft and gear box located in the nose. The pursuit weighs approximately 6,500 pounds, has a wing span of 35 feet and a length of about 29 feet 9 inches. After flight tests, the plane will be turned over to the Navy in Washington, Lawrence D. Bell, company president, said

U. S. Personnel Chiefs Argue Grievance Plan

All Are Opposed To Idea, But Debate It for Ellender

By Edward Ryan
Post Staff Writer

Government personnel directors yesterday fought toward a showdown on the question of setting up an independent board of appeals to decide employe grievance cases.

They did not reach a showdown, possibly because they were all of a mind against the proposed appeals plan. They had voted against it to a man before the debate. They agreed, however, to argue both sides of the problem, for Senator Allen Ellender (Democrat), of Louisiana, chairman of the special committee investigating civil service.

Attack on the stand of the personnel chiefs, including his own, was led by Oliver C. Short, personnel director in the Commerce Department.

He told about charges that in dealing with employes "the Government has a closed front door and an open back door."

In sending employes out the back door, and in ordering suspensions and demotions, Short indicated, the present system is not all good.

"Have administrators and executives in ordering demotions, suspensions, and final separations, been always fair and impartial?" he asked. "Have they been free from prejudice and bias? Shouldn't they be?"

E. R. Ballinger, Treasury personnel chief, said the present system is flexible and efficient. He warned that submitting employe cases to judicial review would make administration slower and more costly.

A. J. Sarre, of the Federal Works Agency, said that the Government, in the National Relations Board, and the Railway Mediation Board, had set the example for throwing protection around a man's job. An outside appeals board, he said, would make administrators think "fully, objectively and carefully" on employe cases.

"I agree with the objective of getting fairness," said Robert Barnett, of Federal Security, "I do not agree with the idea that only the outside judicial mind can be fair."

An outside appeals board, said Barnett, would give the administrative man a premium for putting all unfavorable things into an employe's record, and keeping out favorable reports, on the chance that the record would some day go into court.

"If we deprive the administrator of control over employes, you give him a perfect alibi for nonperformance of the job Congress authorized him to do," said Barnett.

Edward Yardley, of the State Department, spoke for the plan; J. M. Chambers, of the Maritime Commission, against it. Membership in the debating group will be enlarged later this week, to give representatives of employe organizations their chance to indorse the appeals board plan.

William O. Brownrigg, former Justice Department personnel director, has been appointed assistant personnel director in the Labor Department. He succeeds Elred M. Cocking, who transferred to the wage-hour division.

Brownrigg, with his assistant, Warren Huff, went out of the Justice Department several weeks ago when Congress cut away the $11,000 appropriation for their two jobs. Huff is now at the Railroad Retirement Board.

Brownrigg, before coming to Washington for his year as Justice, served with the California Civil Service Commission, and as State personnel director in Michigan.

Samuel H. Ordway, jr., former United States Civil Service Commissioner, yesterday urged passage of the Ramspeck civil service extension bill as "the first major step in national preparedness."

Ordway, in a letter to Chairman Bulow of the Senate Civil Service Committee, said that civil as well as military personnel must be brought to top efficiency.

"American democracy still suffers from patronage, spoils and partisanship in office," Ordway said. "With spoilsmen holding many key and routine positions we will continue to lack competence and discipline in the essential services of government."

The Senate committee, it was learned, will probably meet in executive session late this week to go over the bill and hearings.

Jacob Baker, president of the United Federal Workers, yesterday asked for public hearings on the bill to set up an Association of Government Employes, as an incorporated welfare and recreation organization.

Baker told Chairman Ramspeck, of the House Civil Service Committee, that the bill was "unwise" and might create "either a highly profitable commercial outfit or a widely spread paternalistic company union."

The welfare organization was proposed by a group of Government executives. Their plan is to give employes a club, and "in no sense a union."

Neely Leads in West Virginia Primary Fight

Neely and Democratic State Chairman R. Carl Andrews.

Neely, C. I. O. backed and the choice of the Federal faction of the party, in the first 352 of 2,379 precincts to report, had 23,046 to 18,692 for Andrews.

The Republican gubernatorial nomination contest found Mayor D. Boone Dawson pushing ahead of Judge Lewis H. Miller, of Ripley. In 301 precincts the vote was 12,478 for Dawson and 7,600 for Miller.

Senator Holt Trails

Former Gov. H. G. Kump, Statehouse candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senate, was front man in early precinct reports with Senator Rush D. Holt, incumbent, and Judge Harley M. Kilgore, Federal-C. I. O. candidate, bunched close together. State Senator J. Buhl Shahan was hopelessly behind.

In 290 precincts Kump had 11,777 votes, Kilgore 9,773, and Holt 9,130.

A surprise in the Republican Senatorial contest bobbed up in the race being run by State Senator Thomas B. Sweeney, young State legislator.

Sweeney ran up 7,418 votes in 126 precincts to lead Judge Decatur H. Rodgers, who had 3,501, former Congressman Carl G. Bachmann, who had 5,319 and former Gov. E. F. Morgan, with 2,884.

The harsh struggle for Democratic Party control, highlighted by Senator Neely's effort to capture the nomination for the governorship, apparently drew a much heavier party vote than a much less bitter campaign did for the Republicans.

There were 614,000 registered Democrats and 451,000 Republicans.

Davey Wins in Ohio

Columbus, Ohio (Wednesday), May 15 (A)—Harold H. Burton, Cleveland's mayor, and Dudley A. White, editor-Congressman, were locked early today in a close race for Republican nomination to the United States Senate. John McSweeney, former Congressman, appeared assured of Democratic nomination.

The party winners will seek in November the seat from which Democrat Vic Donahey is retiring.

Rural counties' returns from Tuesday's primary cut into a Burton lead after the Cleveland mayor received powerful support in his home county.

McSweeney maintained an approximate 2-1 lead over Herbert S. Bigelow, pension plan proponent, through the first five hours of tabulation.

Former Gov. George White conceded to another former Governor, Martin L. Davey, the Democratic nomination for Governor, carrying with it the right to fight reelection of Republican Gov. John W. Bricker, unopposed in the primary.

With Davey holding a 2-1 lead at midnight, White telegraphed congratulations to Davey, tree surgery company executive who served two terms until his defeat for renomination in 1938.

Seven Democrats sought the gubernatorial nomination.

Latest returns from the State's 8,624 precincts showed:

For Senator, Republican, 667 precincts, Burton, 17,067; White, 14,564; Charles Wharton, 2,287.

For Senator, Democratic, 388 precincts, McSweeney, 9,051; Bigelow, 5,630.

First Lady Eats 5c. Meal as Relief Mothers Feast

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt ate a 5-cent meal last night, while a group of relief mothers with whom she sat feasted on pot roast and "as much bread as they want."

Next to the First Lady at the dinner in the National Press Club was Mrs. Hughes Easley, 37, named "America's Unemployed Mother."

Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Easley, who is the wife of an unemployed St. Louis electrician, chatted through the meal on how a family of 10 gets along on $68 a month. Mrs. Easley held her youngest of eight children in her arms, but 3-year-old Irene was not impressed by the First Lady; she fell asleep.

Mrs. Roosevelt and other guests, including members of Congress, ate beef stew (made with two ounces of meat, one-fourth of a carrot, one fourth of an onion and one-half a potato), one slice of bread, a pat of oleomargarine, coffee and one canned prune for dessert.

It was a final event of the National Women's Conference on Unemployment for the "Daughters of the American Depression." And the "daughters," who are on WPA or relief, at their larger-than-usual meal with gusto, because at the afternoon session a "jury" of prominent women had recommended measures to improve the conditions of families of that status.

Representative Marcantonio (American Labor), of New York, at the dinner suggested that all Representatives and Senators eat this type of 5-cent meal for 30 days. Then legislation to better such living conditions might be passed, he said.

Mrs. Roosevelt, in her address, suggested that a change in psychology might be needed to get capital to start new enterprises.

"Perhaps we're never going to get quite so much returns for the risks we take," she said. Perhaps it will be necessary, she said, "to risk what we are able to risk, in order to give other human beings a chance to exist."

At the afternoon session in the Roger Smith Hotel, the "jury" of 21 women, who listened to testimony from numerous "daughters," led off their "verdict" with recommendation for an expansion of WPA. Among Congressmen's wives who signed the verdict were Mrs. Bruce Barton, Mrs. D. Worth Clark and Mrs. John J. Dempsey.

The "jury," which said that conditions among the Nation's unemployed "are so deplorable as to constitute a crisis in the health and morale of our Nation," recommended also:

Extension of the food stamp plan throughout the Nation.

A large-scale low-rent public housing program within the range of families on WPA, Social Security and relief rolls.

Standardization of State relief budgets, with the probability that the Federal Government might have to match State funds.

Extension of National Youth Administration facilities.

Raising of present levels of such social security programs as aid to dependent children and old-age assistance.

Besides those mentioned, the recommendations were signed by Mrs. Thurman Arnold, Miss Sophie August, Mrs. William B. Barry, Miss Frances Bryant, Mrs. Louis Caldwell, Mrs. Raymond Clapper, Mrs. Helen Gahagan Douglas, Mrs. Phil Ferguson, Mrs. Henry Grady, Mrs. Gardner Jackson, Miss Thelma M. Kelvey, Mrs. Shoshana Garber Krivonos, Mrs. Ernest K. Lindley, Mrs. Charles Putnam, Mrs. Louise F. Voorhis, Mrs. Margaret Wallace, Miss Frances M. Williams and Mrs. Milo B. Williams.

Politics To The Rescue

Two factors appear to have been chiefly responsible for defeat of the McCarran resolution in the Senate yesterday. The Administration applied heavy pressure to its supporters in the Senate. And this pressure appears to have been effective largely because of the fact that President Roosevelt, should he seek a third term, would have been embarrassed by defeat of his reorganization order in the Senate.

It is true that the President's fourth reorganization order was debated on its merits. From this viewpoint, however, Senator McCarran's effort to upset the plan and save the Civil Aeronautics Authority from incorporation within the Department of Commerce should have won. No compelling argument to sustain the transfer or to justify abolition of the Air Safety Board was advanced. On the contrary, supporters of the President had to fall back upon the flimsy argument that this major structural change was essential to overcome friction in the Air Safety Board.

Senator McCarran and other opponents of the reorganization order built up a convincing case against it. From the viewpoint of safety alone, the present system has amply proved its value. Even if the function of regulating air transport lines logically belonged in the Department of Commerce, the shift would have been unwise at this time because of the recent failure of the old Bureau of Air Commerce to perform these duties satisfactorily.

Neither the President nor Congress is under obligation to follow the advice of the aviation industry or the Air Line Pilots Association in making changes of this sort. But more weight should certainly have been given to the pilots' complaint that a single agency cannot properly lay down the rules governing air transportation and then investigate accidents happening under those rules.

In a nonpolitical year the Senate might have given this argument the attention it deserves. Yesterday it was probably too much concerned over saving President Roosevelt's face to vote on the merits of the issue alone. The President had made defeat of the McCarran resolution a personal issue. Undoubtedly that is why the Republicans in the Senate voted solidly for it. But the Democratic majority refused to subject the leader who may be their standard-bearer once more to an embarrassing defeat.

For the time being, then, the issue must be dropped. But unless the good record of the independent CAA can be sustained under the new set-up, demands for a reversal of this order will certainly be revived in 1941.

Parachute Troops

It is a military axiom that a country cannot be conquered by sea power, although sea power often has been effectively employed to prepare the way for such a conquest by cutting off the enemy's supply lines, destroying his coastal defenses and making landing operations possible.

With the advent of the airplane, the nature of war has been modified in certain fundamental particulars. Yet, despite its enormous capacity for destruction and demoralization, air power suffers from the same handicap as sea power. A country may be laid waste from the air. Its conquest depends largely on the success of land operations.

To circumvent this handicap the stratagem of landing troops by parachute has been evolved. During the World War this method was used on a small scale to transport spies and saboteurs well behind enemy lines. Now the use of parachute troops has greatly expanded. From the Netherlands and Belgium there have come persistent reports that the Germans have unloaded aerial cargoes of troops dressed in Dutch and British uniforms, a circumstance which has led the French to announce that all disguised German parachute soldiers caught will immediately be executed.

The method employed to land these troops inhibits its use on a scale sufficient to create a large and fully equipped force in any one spot. Nonetheless, it is the only method—other than the actual seizure of air bases and the assembling of military forces sent to those bases by transport planes—by which frontier fortifications and, in the case of Holland, water hazards can be surmounted.

Once landed these parachute troops can do an enormous amount of damage. They can disrupt behind-the-lines communications, establish islands of resistance in the heart of the invaded country, compel the latter to keep large numbers of troops in the interior and, in general, spread demoralization in the ranks of the enemy.

The effectiveness of this method, as of all new devices in war, is far greater at the outset than it is likely to be when the element of surprise disappears. In Holland, however, the use of parachute troops appears to have been a very important factor in Germany's successful conquest.

Grim Ordeal

In describing the situation facing the Allies in the Low Countries as "extremely serious" an unnamed military spokesman in London was guilty of no exaggeration. The situation is, in fact, rapidly becoming desperate.

In the Netherlands the fifth day of Hitler's blitzkrieg brought about the capitulation of all but a very small area.

Belgium's position, although at the moment less desperate than that of her northern neighbor, is also critical. Pushing on from the undefended Dutch province of Limburg, which separates Germany from northeastern Belgium, the German forces have captured Eben Emael, one of the major fortifications of Liege and penetrated the citadel of Liege itself. History may be repeating itself. It is three months short of 25 years since a then obscure German officer, Erich von Ludendorff, took the Liege citadel practically without a struggle. More than a week elapsed before Liege fell, but with its fall the road to Belgium and northern France was opened wide.

Liege today continues to occupy an enormously important strategic position in the Belgian defense scheme. It is the anchor of the Belgian system of fortifications along the Albert Canal and the Meuse River.

But already the Germans have crossed the Meuse in a rapid flanking movement and pushed on toward Tirlemont. Should they succeed in sending large forces through the gap, the major Belgian defenses will be surrounded and Brussels and Antwerp will lie open to the enemy's thrust. The capture of Sedan, in France, by a German flying column is illustrative of the speed and the terrific force of the German drive.

It is now clear that the main German and Allied forces have become engaged. Previously the German drive in Belgium had consisted of sharp thrusts by relatively small mechanized forces aided by a vast employment of air power.

German superiority in the air is again proving a tremendous factor in the struggle, although it is not yet clear that its effect in the great battle of the Meuse will be as devastating as it was in Poland and Norway. So far German air operations have not prevented the French from moving up their forces into Belgium. And, if the French are to be believed, Nazi planes have met with resistance that was almost wholly absent in previous phases of the war. The French claim that at least 500 German planes have been shot down during the first five days of the fighting. But even if this is true the number is small in comparison with Germany's total air strength and her airplane producing capacity.

The situation for the Allies looks black. The German tide appears to be as irresistible as it appeared during the dark August days of 1914 when the armies of the Kaiser swept through Belgium and northern France, meeting, except at Liege, with ineffective opposition until they reached the Marne.

Whether the Germans will seek to exploit their present advantages for a great encircling drive into France, with the double object of seizing the Channel ports and encircling the Maginot Line, is not clear. Between the German forces and the achievement of such objectives stands the great French army.

It is now evident that the thrust into Belgium was primarily designed to protect the German flank while Holland is being used as a base for operations against Great Britain.

The fate of Europe hangs in the balance. Not without reason did Winston Churchill warn the House of Commons, in what was by all odds the most eloquent and moving address of the war, that "we have before us an ordeal of the most grievous kind. We have before us many, many months of struggle and suffering."

Soup-Proof

Relentless science continues to solve our problems at an astonishing rate. It is not enough that this mechanical age has given us the wings of birds, the diving capacity of fish, the comforts of air-conditioning, the luxury of runless hose and the convenience of electric razors. In another forward leap science has brought us the soup-proof necktie.

This latest marvel was proudly demonstrated at the convention of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers at Buffalo this week. Games Slayter, inventor of the process of turning glass into thread-like fibers that can be woven into fabrics, wore a cravat that is impervious to soup stains, cigarette burns and wrinkles alike. Apparently this glass necktie is perfect, except for the fact that the suspended ends may still be jerked from the front of the vest by college boys.

Of course, there are some challenges that science has not yet met. But we expect any day now to hear that some one has perfected a wiltless collar of aluminum, spun glass or some other newfangled material. And it is not impossible that men of the laboratories may come through with trousers which remain perpetually creased.

In these parlous times there is no longer any fear that science, with its manifold conveniences, will give rise to a race of softies. One dose of front-page news these days is sufficient to dispel the thought. Indeed, there is a suggestion of strength in the fact that some inventors continue to concern themselves with soup-proof neckties when human blood is flowing like water.

District Fiasco

The kiss of death which President Roosevelt has bestowed upon the District reorganization bill has many of the elements of a first-class political farce. For years local civic groups have been laboring under the delusion that the President is in favor of modernizing the city's chaotic patch-work of governmental agencies. But now he requests that what is possibly the worst feature of the present set-up be retained.

Failure of the Kennedy bill, designed to eliminate some of the handicaps under which the District Board of Commissioners now operates, will be a disappointment to many local groups. While few officials or citizens were satisfied with the bill as it finally emerged from the House District Committee, its enactment would have been at least one short step toward better government in Washington. Success in this minor effort would probably have encouraged local groups to press on for more comprehensive reforms.

It is not, however, the President's thrust at this particular bill which strikes the local reorganization movement with such devastating force. Rather it is the reason given in his letter to Speaker Bankhead for opposing the bill. He takes a stand against any change in the District government that would relieve it from control by the Federal Budget Bureau or the General Accounting Office.

Probably the most constructive feature of the Kennedy bill was that section giving the District a budget system of its own. Under this arrangement the Commissioners would have submitted their own budget and other proposed legislation direct to Congress without interference or supervision from the Budget Bureau. Of course, the District should have authority to spend its own revenue. But in the absence of such power, the least that can be asked is the right to submit spending programs and necessary bills direct to Congress.

Under the present system the Budget Bureau may and frequently does veto the recommendations of the local governing body. It is impossible, in these circumstances, to hold the local regime responsible for the conduct of affairs in the Capital City. The District is simply another Federal bureau manipulated for the benefit of the National Government as distinguished from that of local residents.

President Roosevelt has informed Speaker Bankhead that he is "unaware of any evidence that would justify" exemption of the District from provisions of the Budget and Accounting Act. This can mean only that he is not familiar with the local government and the handicaps under which it operates. And it seems to imply that the President does not believe in any semblance of home rule for this voteless community. For so long as the District remains under the thumb of the Budget Bureau no responsible local government can operate here.

If the President did not intend to close the door to the establishment of any effective local government in the District, he should hasten to make his position clear. As matters stand, he appears to have turned the District reorganization movement into a complete fiasco.

This Administration has certainly given debtors a break. A dollar is scarcely worth what it costs to collect it.

"The best way to hold a job is to cultivate a pleasing personality," declares a psychologist. And yet there are thousands of employers who cling to the quaint notion that doing a little work now and then is the important thing.

Seagoing Cat Survived

From the Memphis Commercial Appeal

Traditions that a cat has nine lives gain more of the color of credence as one reviews the recent history of Smut, a seagoing cat of the British Isles. Smut was mascot of the British destroyer Gurkha, which went down with its guns blazing after four hours of combat with German bombers a few days ago. Smut perched on the back of an officer from the Gurkha as he swam for 20 minutes before he was picked up by the cruiser Aurora. By no means abashed, Smut at once adapted herself to the Aurora and was just as promptly adopted as the official mascot of that vessel. It is interesting, if anomalous, that men can be thus thoughtful and considerate of the life of one small cat as they deal out death and destruction to their own fellows.

"Patriotic Movement"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Lloyd George has declared very forcibly in the House of Commons "Britain's promissory notes are now rubbish in the market." All of which is very true. That outspoken Britisher might have gone much further, for that condition has existed for a long time.

English treaties and promises have been faithless for many years—as in their welshing of her acknowledged debts to the United States, or in its promises of military succor for Poland or Abyssinia.

Poland, bucked up by assurances from the mighty British Empire, refused to even discuss the ceding back of the German city of Danzig with a corridor across the Corridor, with the result of her practical extinction and the present war. Britain has proved an unreliable partner and an ungrateful ally.

To Abyssinia she gave only the support of a poor bluff in defense, by sending the immense British fleet into the Mediterranean and afterwards on the sly, through Sir Samuel Hoare, proposed to Italy that they divide up Abyssinia between them. The false promises of Britain made through Lawrence of Arabia (who hung his head in shame and disappeared in consequence) are other illuminating specimens.

We should be fools, indeed, to extend directly or indirectly further credits to such an unreliable debtor—at least, if at all, until (since she cannot now pay in money) she shows some honest effort of at least partpayment by ceding strategic nearby islands, which in any foreign ownership menace our peace and bring us into risks of war.

Senator Lundeen and Senator Reynolds and others are patriotically urging in Washington the necessity of the United States ownership of Bermuda, the Bahamas, Jamaica and other nearby outpost islands, necessary for our true protection and defense. The necessity of this has been clearly emphasized by recent events, and all Americans should give this patriotic movement their support. GEORGE S. PARKER.

Peace Candidate

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A courageous, conscientious, noninterventionist candidate, running on a candid peace platform of one of the major parties, can readily be elected President of the United States. Can the American people trust either major party to give them such candidate and such platform? The outlook at present is ominous and depressing.

The Democratic war plank will undoubtedly be one of oleaginous subterfuge—a militant interventionist policy capsuled with peace palaver. The Republican war plank will be a colossal paradox, a scholarly synthesis of isolationism and interventionism. The Democratic Party seeks to please a few and dupe the rest; the Republican Party, as usual, seeks to please everybody, and succeeds in pleasing nobody.

The present crop of candidates in both parties have been hoodwinked by the Gallup poll into believing that the Roosevelt foreign policy is quite popular. We have no trustworthy peace candidate in either party; they are all singed with the sin of intervention.

If one of the major parties has the backbone to nominate a dark horse statesman dedicated to keeping America out of war, that party will emerge victoriously in November.

In case neither party has such backbone, those citizens who are diligently devoted to keeping America out of war have only one alternative: Unite into a Peace Party, nominate a stalwart and unwavering noninterventionist for President. Even if he does not win, he could poll enough votes to prevent either major party from winning and throw the election into the House of Representatives.

"To Save Humanity From Chaos"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is now more noticeable than ever before that there is a growing desire for a human bond through a common goal to provide the unifying power necessary to save humanity from perishing in this disintegrating world. Some propose music as a means to this end—some, other forms of art. Some look to science. Religious circles try to promote denominational tolerance. Labor movements advocate economic justice. All are sincere in their efforts, but all so divided.

Though the ancient Jews had a glimpse of a common bond in the belief in one God, yet this truth has been expounded by the Jews in too limited a form to be acceptable to all mankind, especially in this day.

I was made more aware of this than ever while viewing the moving picture of "The Cantor of Vilna." While the chanting and the mystic atmosphere in this play had a tendency to lift the heart to the bliss of a hope for that unity in God which is the only means for the salvation of the whole world, nevertheless it showed the danger of a sectarian, and thus a too limited, application of this truth.

The purpose of religion, as it has been handed down from the very beginning, is to lift man to a higher, a spiritual behavior. It does this by refining man's nature through giving tranquility within his inner being.

We find this not only in the teachings of the Jewish religion, but in those of the rest of the great religions of the world as well. The revelator of every one of these religions was appointed by God for only one purpose, that is to unfold the highest emotion in man for the promotion of civilization.

Every human being has latent potentialities, but these have now become dormant and obscured by misdirection through various opinions and suggestions given by human authorities.

Man must learn to find reality, with his own, inner eyes. Also he must become aware that he is a part of human society—not an isolated individual. Then he will discover that religion in truth is the greatest power for attaining this human bond through a common goal.

By religion, however, I do not mean sectarianism. I mean the inner essence of religion which has been handed down from time immemorial through divine prophets—each bringing a fuller revelation than his predecessor—in accordance with the growth of the spiritual capacity in humanity.

Man must learn that God, the infinite reality, can only transmit His presence to us mortals by a divine prophet who reflects, from time to time, what our finite minds alone can comprehend of Him: namely, His qualities and attributes.

This truth of unity in God through His messengers, the prophets, is a sovereign law of the universe. It has been proven to be the only saviour in the past, and it is the only hope for the future to save humanity from chaos.

A Mother Speaks

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A letter written by one who calls himself Father of Sons and which appeared in your columns April 26 made me wonder if the letter was meant for propaganda or merely as the thoughts of a man who is entirely misinformed as to the real causes of the war in Europe today.

Mr. Father, you attack what you call the never-ending protests against our involvement in the European war. I also am the mother of four sons, all of military age, who would spring to their country's call without hesitation or fear in event of an attack from without, or within. However, I am Christian enough, and American enough, to emphatically say no to any and all propaganda endeavoring to draw us into that maelstrom of hate in Europe, and I would rather see all four of my boys dead at my feet than that either one of them should fight to uphold injustices and hate in war-torn Europe.

The war in Europe is not being fought to set men free, but rather to enslave men to an economic system from which the Have Not nations want to escape, and which the so-called Have nations want to impose on them by force. O. J. W.

Labor Union

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: After reading in your paper the article about former Senator Reed attacking the NLRB, I had to "put my 2 cents worth in" regarding downing labor unions and the board. This board was established to solve disputes between employer and employe, and though it has made some bad moves, every time it rules against the "Big Boy," up goes the squawk that it is not doing the right thing.

It isn't the NLRB ruling that is wrong, but the men who own the big concerns who would like to pay their employes $10 a week salary and who discourage membership in labor unions.

I'm a union man, and it certainly goes against my grain to hear people who know little or nothing about unions call them rackets. I'll admit some have overstepped the bounds of decency (and hasn't politics done the same!) but if it were not for the great A. F. of L. today, workers in the United States would be getting unbelievably low wages, and unfair practices would be abundant.

To the ordinary man in the street—don't down the labor union. It is helping you directly or indirectly, whether you belong or not!

On Americanism

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Orchids for 1940 and a medal of honor showing 100 per cent Americanism should go to Martin Dies, J. Edgar Hoover and Westbrook Pegler for their outstanding work on behalf of the good citizenship of America.

They are standing out in the front line making themselves a target for the attack of the Communistic element of this country because they stand for the best in American life, for truth, honor and justice.

They can well glory in the numerous enemies they have made in the last year, and their hands should be upheld at all times by the best citizens of this country (those who love America most).

I am simply expressing the complimentary remarks I have heard on all sides on behalf of their work and I express it here to give public expression to their deeds well done on behalf of a better U. S. A.

Pay Day

It was with grave misgivings that we decided to admit Pay Day to the Workers Club. In the first place, he was not a worker. Pay Day was a gambler. To be sure, he had a farm a few miles out from town, but he had never been known to do an hour's work there. He had 16 children, spaced exactly a year and a half apart, except for a few extra months between No. 10 and No. 11, to mark the death of his first wife and the acquisition of his second. If a wife and 16 children couldn't work a man's farm for him, declared Pay Day, he might just as well stay single.

Every pay day he came to town (whence his name) and entered the poker game, which lasted for two or three days and nights at the beginning of every month. Pay Day played a conservative game. He would lose a little, win a little bit more, lose a little, and then win a little bit more, till the end of the session invariably found him not with any huge earnings but with enough to last him comfortably through the month.

In addition to being very definitely not a worker, Pay Day could neither play a musical instrument nor sing. Since the primary purpose of the Workers Club was to unite the workers of our little Ozark village in an evening of song and music twice a week, it was difficult to see just how we could fit Pay Day into our organization.

Pay Day was both humble and persistent about it, however. Besides, he was one of Mrs. Northport's best cash customers.

"We've simply got to let him in," she declared, "even if we have to change our name to the Workers and Gamblers Club, just on account of him."

Pay Day finally clinched the matter by offerings to buy beers for the club for the whole evening if we would admit him. I remembered that he had an inexhaustible fund of incredible but entertaining stories, so we initiated him as our official raconteur. The night of his initiation was truly a glorious one, with beer flowing like water and with a rendition of "The Dying Cowboy" that left us dissolved in tears.

A couple of weeks after he was admitted, Pay Day came in one Thursday evening with his face wreathed in smiles. "The beer's on me, boys," he cried. "I got my die-vorce today."

Divorces are very rare here in the Ozark Mountains.

"You mean you're divorced?" we asked incredulously, as Mrs. Northport set our beers before us.

"Yes, sir. I put up with the old woman just as long as I could, but it finally got to where I couldn't stand it no longer. So I just up and got me a die-vorce."

"On what grounds did you get your divorce?" I asked.

"On the grounds of twisting my grapefruit," Pay Day declared.

We were all familiar with the tale of Pay Day's grapefruit. He had gone to California a couple of years ago, and when he came back he brought a young grapefruit tree. The tree became the very center of Pay Day's life. He installed it in a huge tub and set it out in the front yard, protected by a screen of chicken-wire against the attack of varmints, for the neighbors to admire. During the winter the grapefruit tree occupied the position of honor in the parlor, where it could get every possible ray of sunlight, even though the best carpet might be faded and the curtains ruined. Mrs. Pay Day, according to her husband, was loud and bitter in her protests against the violation of the sacred room, but Pay Day was adamant.

Then the miracle happened. The grapefruit tree bloomed, and soon there were two tiny grapefruit among the branches. Pay Day was beside himself with joy.

One afternoon Pay Day returned home exhausted by three days and two nights of poker, but richer by $73.50. He was admiring his grapefruit tree and caressing the grapefruit, by now as large as oranges, when his wife came in and addressed bitter words of reproach to him. One word led to another.

"And then," recounted the indignant Pay Day, "the old woman twisted off both them grapefruit and hit me in the face with them. So I sued her for die-vorce, and as soon as the jedge heerd my story, he set me free, I'm a free man!" and Pay Day glanced proudly about the room. "And now let's have a song to celebrate it, and another round of beer!"

As we launched into "It makes no difference now how much you love me," Mrs. Northport sat down beside Pay Day and eyed him speculatively. Her heart was still sore from Morgan's desertion of her, but "There's life in the old girl yet," she declared.

Mrs. Northport put her hand over Pay Day's and squeezed it.

"I'm a free man," Pay Day reiterated.

Their eyes met, and Pay Day's widened. He seized Mrs. Northport's other hand and pressed it vigorously.

"Pay Day," murmured Mrs. Northport, "you know I wouldn't never twist your grapefruit, would I?"

'Barbaric' Weapons

By Ernest K. Lindley

Our New Defense

IN CANVASSING our national defense needs, we must keep in mind constantly that our military and economic situation is entirely different from Great Britain's.

The submarine, for example, often has been condemned in this country as a barbarous weapon. Why one method of killing people is more or less barbaric than another has always escaped me. To the British the submarine is barbaric because it menaces the merchant ships without which most of the population of the British Isles would starve. The British navy uses submarines, of course, but Great Britain would be much more secure if the submarine had never been invented.

In German hands the submarine provided the occasion for our entry into the World War in 1917, but that was because we insisted not only on the right of our ships to go unmolested to Great Britain and France, but on the right of our citizens to travel in complete immunity on the ships of belligerent nations. We have now abandoned, by act of Congress, both of these rights which we spent some $40,000,000,000 and a considerable number of American lives to "preserve" in 1917-1918.

But in the defense of the Western Hemisphere, the submarine is, for us, a great asset. It is a formidable menace to any attempt to invade the Americas.

We shudder at the destructiveness of air power. But for the defense of the Western Hemisphere air power is, on the whole, a gain. It is another weapon for keeping invaders at a distance. And, with our technical capacity and industrial resources we are potentially the world's greatest air power.

The airplane shortens the distance between Europe or Africa and the Western Hemisphere, but it also shortens the distance between the United States and Latin America. The lessons of the Norwegian campaign are overwhelmingly to our advantage in the defense of the Western Hemisphere. For an invader must come from a great distance, over water. Now, he must encounter not only our surface craft and our submarines, but our shore-based aircraft.

Great Britain has become a continental country because it can be attacked by aircraft based on the continent of Europe. But it cannot survive without control of the seas, because it must have food and vital raw materials from abroad.

The United States, on the other hand, has within its own boundaries or within easy reach in Latin America most of the essential raw materials and productive facilities, not only for survival but for a very high standard of living. A few strategic and critical items must come from across the ocean—but nearly all of them from the Far East, not from Europe. Economically, we are independent of Europe, except by habit. The loss of European sources of supply and markets would disturb our economy but would not threaten our existence.

THE UNITED STATES, moreover, is not within effective range of aircraft based on Europe or Asia. As a stunt, airplanes might fly the oceans and inflict damage, but not to a decisive extent. We are safe so long as we can prevent a potential aggressor from obtaining air or naval bases too close to the Western Hemisphere. We can prevent such an occurrence with an adequate navy and air force, and a small, well-equipped professional army.

Sea power based on Great Britain may lose to air power based on Germany, Norway, and Holland. But if British air power were equal to Germany's, sea power based on Great Britain might be secure.

If the British navy, based on Great Britain, is no longer secure against air and submarine attacks launched from the continent of Europe, how could the American navy, based on Great Britain, be secure? Perhaps with the help of an adequate air force. But we are already making available to the British all of our air power that they want to buy. And they have vast resources with which to buy.

Sea power based within from 250 to 500 miles of overwhelming air power may be insecure. But it does not follow that sea power based from 1,500 to 3,000 miles from the nearest hostile air bases would be insecure. Especially not when the sea power is supported by great air power based both on aircraft carriers and on land.

The more effective German air power proves to be, the clearer it will become that we should build up our own air force and use our fleet, on the Atlantic side, for defensive purposes. A secure defense on the Atlantic side, in the event of the downfall of Great Britain, probably would mean the occupation of Greenland, Newfoundland, Bermuda, the Bahamas and the British, French and Dutch West Indies.

On the Pacific side there are many more "ifs." The British, Dutch and French possessions in Oceania comprise a vast empire. To assume protection of it would be a large order. Yet we would hardly be willing to see these enormous resources fall under the domination of Japan. Whatever we decide our objectives should be, our reliance can be chiefly on naval and air power, supported by a small, highly trained professional army.

If Great Britain goes down we will have to spend much more money for military and naval purposes. But, even over a long period of years, considerably less, probably, than if we sent a vast conscript army across the ocean, as we did in 1917-18. The moral of our previous experience and of the present war is that we should take the maximum advantage of naval power, on the surface and below it, and of air power, but should eschew all military efforts on continents across the oceans, where not only conscript armies but shore-based airplanes hold the advantage.

Italian Hostility

I GET TIRED of the proposition advanced by a good many half-Americanized immigrants from Italy, and by some American-born progeny of immigrants, that it is absolutely jake, or, anyway, a matter of no importance, that the Italian government, through its press, constantly reviles and abuses American people, but that it is wrong to take any notice of this nasty, persistent hostility because the Italian people are so nice.

I dispose of that objection by saying, nice or not, to hell with the Italian people in any conflict between the American people as such and the Italians as such!

This conflict has been going on for a long time in a one-sided way. That is to say, the press operated by the rotten conspiracy which passes for a government in Italy has been slashing away at the Americans, their civilization, their form of government and everything which they cherish or are touchy about for years.

THOSE SENTIMENTS are hostile, but the American Government and the press, on the whole, have ignored the situation because, in a fine, technical way, it can be held that the official communications between the two governments are all that count and because, frankly, the Americans never have cared very much whether the Italians liked them or not.

But, practically, Italy is unfriendly to the United States, and, moreover, is not only a member of the big team which has undertaken to exterminate the American kind of civilization but the home of the nationalistic brand of bolshevism, known also as Fascism and Nazism.

It seems to be forgotten that it was Mussolini, a political bum, double-crosser and back-stabber, who started all this trouble by pulling away from his old Communist friends after they had staked him to board, room and a course of shots for the cure of the malady, which is eupemistically known as the dog-bite or Neapolitan measles, and creating a terror of his own in Italy on the general lines of the Russian atrocity.

HE SLITS the throats of his old friends, rallied all the crooks in Italy to his side, tortured and robbed all the Italians who possessed the faintest trace of decency and character and murdered many of them, and, by his success, inspired that other monster, then regarded as a harmless nut in a greasy raincoat, to go and do likewise on a greater and more ghastly scale.

The people of the United States owe no consideration at all to the people of Italy, however nice the Italians may be, and there are a number of half-Americanized brigands operating under the free press privilege of this patient republic whose editorial policies should be studied and given wide publicity by the patriotic American-language press, so that the American people may know what goes on.

The favorite method of the anti-American publisher is to tell Americans of Italian blood that an attack on the Italian people is an attack on them, but they never remind the same public that an attack on the American people in the Italian press also is an attack on them.

AS A MATTER of fact, an attack or a statement of uncomplimentary truth about the Italian people is not an attack on anyone who is in his heart an American, and anyone who possesses citizenship and feels himself to be affected by aspersions on the Italians or Italy is not yet Americanized.

The Italian press of Italy constantly refers to the United States as a nation of gangsters, and is never rebuked for that by the publishers and orators of the hyphenated class, but any mention of Jim Colisimo, Al Capone and Frank Nitti as the dirtiest and most vicious gangsters in the history of the U. S. A. is promptly resented as an insult to the Italian people who are so very nice.

The present war against the kind of civilization under which Americans live, and for the defense of which they may be called on to die, may be traced straight back to the nation whose dirty work is never to be mentioned, much less resented, because the people are so nice.

Roosevelt Was Right

Turning Point In History

Paris.

I WRITE THIS article as a battle rages in Belgium, on the border between Belgium and France and all along the French-German front, the greatest battle between men and materials and conflicting ideas that has yet been fought in human history. It is a battle involving millions of men and the accumulated wealth of great nations. Whatever its final results, it will be a turning point in the history of the world.

Meanwhile, in America, we are getting ready to hold two party conventions, in which we will nominate candidates for the Presidency. From now until next November there will be, in the usual order of things, debates, party divisions and a spectacle presented to the rest of the world of internal disunity.

That fact has played a part in the selection by the Nazis of this spring and summer as the time to drive for a decision in the war. There is not the slightest question about this. The Nazis timed to strike when the United States was immobilized—politically immobilized.

THE GRAVITY of this hour cannot possibly be overrated. It must be said bluntly that it is by no means certain that Britain and France will win this war; it is by no means certain that the blows delivered, as they are being delivered, by forces greatly superior in numbers, airplanes and ruthlessness, having the advantage of strategical positions gained by the occupation without warning of five neutral countries—Denmark, Norway, Luxembourg, Holland and Belgium—will not be successful, and successful in quick order.

Five years ago the democracies were in an overwhelmingly superior position vis-a-vis Germany. They lost that position not in a moment, but from week to week and from year to year. Nobody deprived them of that position. They gave it away, because of complacency, overconfidence and unwillingness to face the facts. And now it has brought on the disaster of the war.

IN A CRISIS like this one free men do not save themselves by feeling that they are committed, as by some fate, to a traditional pattern of behavior. They save themselves by asking lucidly, "What is the very wisest thing that we could do?" and then doing it with courage and decision.

It is not wise to employ this summer and fall in a heated political campaign between two parties. It is not wise to make any change in the Presidency or in the Department of State. The common sense of the American man in the street tells him this. The foreign policy of the United States will be during the next four years decisive for the whole American continent.

Although there have been many differences between the President and the Republicans on matters of domestic policy—these differences, except for the die hards, being primarily differences regarding method—there are no essential differences in regard to foreign policy. Differences are being deliberately trumped up in order to furnish campaign material.

The President's handling of the foreign affairs of the United States has been masterly. It has been the only masterly handling of affairs by any democratic statesman of a large power.

Alone among all the leaders of the three great free nations, the President of the United States has from the first faced and grasped the whole bitter reality.

Alone among the heads of democratic states, the President has been correctly informed, first by a Secretary of State who has great political sagacity and homespun common sense; secondly, by a diplomatic service superior in intelligence and liveliness to the British and the French; third, by a press which has done voluminous and energetic reporting, and fourth, and perhaps most importantly, by his own imagination—by the institution of his extreme sensibility.

THE PRESIDENT has been right. He foresaw what has happened, when people were branding him a calamity howler. He has been thinking ahead of events while the rest of the democratic world has been thinking one lap behind them.

In the democratic world he is a figure of immense proportions. The fall of Roosevelt in America would be worse for the cause of democracy and freedom than the Nazi occupation of Switzerland. I say that with weighed words, after traveling over a great deal of Europe.

It is not only that Mr. Roosevelt has for the democratic world a magic that that world sorely needs, but a change in administration now would inevitably break the continuity of a policy, or, if it did not, would create for weeks and months the fear that it might—and fear in this moment would have the same effect as reality.

Furthermore, every recriminatory debate on that policy would be picked up and used for purposes no Americans desire. There are times when it is good for the citizens of nations to disagree. There are other times when it is necessary to close the ranks, to discipline antagonisms, voluntarily to create that unity which tyranny can force. There are eras in which time moves deliberately, and eras when the metronome ticks off destiny with the rapidity of machine gunfire.

We are in such an era.

THE REPUBLICAN Party has a great history behind it. In the two greatest crises of American history, in the critical years between the end of the Revolutionary War and the adoption of the Constitution, and in the ghastly years of the Civil War, the makers of American destiny were Republicans. Hamilton, who more than any other man secured the adoption of the Constitution, may justly be called the first Republican, although the party of that name did not yet exist, and its proudest name is Lincoln's.

The Republican Party is properly called traditionalist, but its greatest moments were when it broke the traditions.

The Constitution founded the Republic. Lincoln—no traditionalist—saved it.

The greatest thing, it seems to me, that the Republican Party could do now for the Nation it has served so often and so magnificently would be to announce, and as quickly as possible, that if the President will accept a third term it will offer no candidate in opposition to him, but will offer, instead, only a Vice Presidential candidate.

And if it wants to break the tradition once again, in the interest of the Nation, it might look elsewhere than in the traditional places for a Vice Presidential candidate, and nominate, for Vice President, Wendell Willkie, one of our ablest citizens, a man who thoroughly represents the most enlightened and modern wing of Republican opinion, who is 100 per cent with Secretary Hull on foreign policy and who, were a change at this time desirable at all, is certainly Presidential timber.

The people would then have a chance to vote for Roosevelt, modified by Willkie or some other Republican; or Roosevelt, supported by whomever the Democrats might nominate.

The election of Roosevelt plus a Republican ticket would presume a reorganization of the Cabinet to include Republicans—in other words, a Government of national concentration. And I personally believe that ticket would win.

It would reassure those who fear the President's impetuosity—which has not been manifest since the outbreak of the war. And it would mean that America continues to be politically mobile and in action, during every minute.

It is also completely Constitutional. The party system was invented long after the Constitution was in operation, and the conventions are purely a politicians' instrument, having nothing whatsoever to do with the fundamental structure of our democracy.

It would be large-minded of the Republican Party to do this, but the Republicans may well remember that they governed America best and longest when they were most large-minded.

AT ANY RATE—and from Paris, where one sees events moving with the swiftness of a motorized battalion—it is impossible to think of one's self as a Republican or a Democrat, or a Socialist or a New Dealer. One thinks of one's self only as a citizen of the land of the free and the home of the brave.

Books And Things

By Lewis Gannett

"Yankees"

NORTH CAROLINA-BORN and bred, editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, author of "A Southerner Discovers the South," Jonathan Daniels went North in 1939. He covered New England, from the Merrit highway to 'Quoddy's high tides and to the potato fields in Maine's far north, taking in Cape Cod, the White and Green Mountains, six State capitals, a lot of clubs and farmhouses and a few park benches on the way. "A Southerner Discovers New England" (Macmillan, $3), is a book of charm and insight, if not as good a book as was "A Southerner Discovers the South." This time Mr. Daniels, being a Southern gentleman, pulled his punches. Knowing how a Southerner reacts when a New Englander chuckles or speaks sharply to the South (doing which is one of New England's great traditions), Mr. Daniels gentled his verdict on Vermont. I wish he hadn't. For he saw a lot.

He admired Yankee efficiency at the Hartford plant of the United Aircraft Corporation (chairman of the board, F. B. Rentschler, born in Ohio; president, Donald Brown, born in Wisconsin), and the sound old New England taste shown in the products of the Gorham Silver Co. (whose president, Edmund Mayo, is—or was born—a Virginian). A leading Hartford manufacturer, born in Mr. Daniel's own Old North State, took him to lunch with the town's big men; a couple of bank presidents, some insurance presidents, manufacturers and editors—eight of the 14 present had come into New England as mature men.

Mr. Daniels is too polite to say that New England is run by "Yankees" from Ireland, Russia, Italy, Ohio and Virginia, and that the rest of the country is run by Yankees who were bright enough to move on . . . He does quote a wise Fall River lawyer who, looking up the old mills that Yankee capitalists had built and abandoned, remarked: "Sometimes I wonder if these new Jews aren't more like the old Yankees than the sons of the old Yankees are." Surveying the magnificent bricks of Yale and Harvard and Exeter, he reflected that the men who made New England famous did not have that kind of education.

He nailed a few myths. Pie for breakfast, he says, is a myth now if it was ever anything else. (Not on the north New England farms, Mr. Daniels.) New England laconism, he says, is mere legend. "The New Englander—even the Vermonter—likes to talk." (Yes, but he's a bit choosy about his audience; the Yankees must have liked the way Mr. Daniels listened.) He was led to believe that no Harvard men were supercilious. (Of course, there are all sorts in Cambridge, as everywhere else.) And his experience convinced him that "the legend of inhospitality in New England is one of the first American slanders." (I didn't know it was even a legend.) . . . That, incidentally, led him to recall why Old Bob Toombs opposed the building of a hotel in his town of Washington, Ga. "We don't need a hotel," he said. "If a visitor's a gentleman I'll entertain him; if he isn't we don't want him in town."

End Of Neutrality

By Barnet Nover

As The Struggle Deepens

WINSTON CHURCHILL was bitterly criticized, not least in neutral countries, for a forthright address he delivered over the radio on January 20 of this year.

At that time the Scandinavian kingdoms and the Low Countries were still clinging virtuously and desperately to their neutral status.

At that time the stalemate on the Western Front had not yet been broken and gave no signs of being broken and some living at a comfortably safe distance from the fighting area spoke ironically of "this phony war."

At that time many Americans were still taking the complacent view that what was happening or would happen in Europe made no difference to us.

Mr. Churchill's speech, addressed primarily to Europe's neutrals, was, therefore, regarded as neither wise counsel nor good manners. Now, with the hindsight of four months, it stands out as a singularly prescient warning.

"LOOK AT the group of small but ancient and historic states which lie in the North," said the then first lord of the admiralty and now prime minister of Great Britain, "or look again at that other group of anxious people in the Balkans, or in the Danube Basin, behind whom stands the resolute Turk. Every one of them is wondering tonight which will be the next victim on whom the criminal adventurers of Berlin will cast their rending stroke . . .

"Each one hopes that if he feeds the crocodile enough, the crocodile will eat him last. All of them hope that the storm will pass before their turn comes to be devoured.

"But I fear greatly that the storm will not pass. It will rage and it will roar ever more loudly, ever more widely. It will spread to the South, it will spread to the North. There is no chance of a speedy end except through united action, and if at any time Britain and France, wearying of the struggle, were to make a shameful peace, nothing would remain for the smaller states of Europe . . . but to be divided between the opposition, though similar, barbarisms of Nazidom and bolshevism."

THE NEUTRALS of Europe did not take kindly to those words. The speech struck them as an invitation to join in a war which did not concern them and it alarmed them because they feared it might put ideas into Hitler's head. They were determined to stay neutral and they carried out that determination with scrupulous punctilio as befitted nations which believed in the observance of law and the meticulous performance of international pledges.

Only Finland, among Europe's neutrals had been engulfed in war. But Finland's bitter experience was regarded by the other neutrals as merely a deviation from the norm. As long as there appeared to be the slightest chance of staying out of the conflict the neutrals of northern Europe were determined to stay out.

Why should we, said the Norwegians and Danes, the Belgians and the Dutch and the other neutrals, permit our country to become a cockpit of war? The point seemed well taken—at the time. Their answer was overwhelmingly in the negative.

THE CONCEPT of neutrality to which these nations clung and to which the United States has clung, was a corollary to the belief that war has its laws no less than peace, that a belligerent has rights which a nonbelligerent must not flout and duties toward neutrals which it could not afford to ignore.

War, in other words, was regarded as only a bigger and bloodier boxing match fought according to Marquis of Queensbury rules known by the name of international law. The combatants were pledged not to hit their opponents below the belt and, of course, not to strike out at the spectators. The spectators, for their part, were pledged not to throw pop bottles or poison the drinking water of either combatant.

The century following the Napoleonic era saw a great many wars in Europe and elsewhere. But they were small wars and in small wars the belligerents did not find it either wise or necessary to infringe on the rights of neutrals.

The World War saw a change in this regard. But the old concept of neutrality was so deeply ingrained that nothing which Germany did antagonized the world more than her violation of Belgian neutrality. Thus, even during the World War, it was possible for nations, even for nations on the edge of the fighting zone, to remain neutral.

IT HAS BEEN SAID that war offices are always preparing not for the next war but for the last war. The same can be said of governmental policies. The neutrals of Europe and the world have been trying to apply a nineteenth century concept to a world in which Hitler lives and moves and has his being.

They have assumed that because they were scrupulous in the observance of their neutrality they would be spared. What has happened is that this attitude and the actions arising from it have only made them easier victims of the Nazi blitzkrieg when it was finally launched against them.

They hoped that the wind would be tempered to the shorn lamb. They know better now. And we know better now. For we, too, have been living in a fool's paradise created out of the beliefs and illusions of the past and the wishful thinking of the present.

There are no neutrals in this struggle. There are only belligerents and nonbelligerents and no nonbelligerent, particularly if small and helpless, can be sure that the lightning will not soon strike. To assume otherwise is to be guilty of criminal folly.

The comparative safety which we enjoy behind the barrier of the Atlantic is only comparative. It is a sound instinct which tells us that in a world where barbarism is rampant we are imperiled. In a world where barbarism would be triumphant the peril to us, despite our size and wealth and former impregnability, would enormously increase.

We cannot, even if we wanted to, help the Allies by military means. The days of decision are drawing very close. Not to help them by every other means and as rapidly as possible, would be suicidal.

"Neutrality," as a statement issued by the Argentinian foreign minister has well put it, "is a fiction, a dead concept." We cannot be neutral in the face of the present world catastrophe and all its ghastly implications for all peoples who still cherish civilization and freedom and decency.

Pouch Held Papers On Losey's Death, Not His Ashes

New York, May 14 (AP).—A diplomatic pouch which presumably contained the ashes of Capt. Robert M. Losey, United States military attache killed in the German invasion of Norway, was disclosed today to have included only affidavits relating to his death.

The State Department, which received the pouch in Washington today after its arrival on the liner Manhattan yesterday, said the ashes would be on the liner George Washington, which is scheduled to leave Genoa May 18 and arrive here May 27.

Mrs. Ole Hagen, wife of the United States naval attache in Stockholm, said on arrival here yesterday that the pouch she brought on the Manhattan had been entrusted to her by her husband and that she was informed by American attaches in Berlin that it contained Losey's ashes.

Mrs. Hagen apparently left New York for either Washington or Brownsville, Tex., and could not be reached to determine how the misunderstanding arose.

The Once Over

Balcony Scene

(An impression of Lawrence Oliver and Vivien Leigh in "Romeo and Juliet.")

Scene: Capulet's orchard, heavy with magnolia trees in full bloom. In the background are the ruins of an English castle. Several thoroughbred colts are frisking about. On the horizon is the red glare from a city in flames. Darkies ar heard singing "My Old Kentucky Home."

Romeo—He jests at scars that never felt a wound.
But, soft! What light through yonder window breaks?
It is the east and Cathey is the sun.
Juliet—My name thou should'st know when thou callest nights—
You're in Verona now, not Wuthering Heights.

• • • •

Romeo—O, speak again! Full well I know thy name,
Yet do I find my tongue a little mixed;
I am a fellow of so many parts—
Although, they say, my accent stays the same.
Juliet—O, Romeo, Romeo, wherefore art thou, Romeo?
Deny thy pappy and refuse thy name,
Or, honey lamb, then be but sworn and I'll
No longer an O'Hara be.
Romeo—(Aside)—This "honey lamb" stuff's rather strange, what ho!

• • • •

Juliet—'Tis but thy name that is my enemy;
Thou art thyself, though not a Montague;
What's in a name? What mammy calls a rose
By any other name would smell as sweet.
So Romeo would, were he not Romeo call'd,
Retain that dear perfection which he owns
Without that title. Romeo, doff thy name
And then as Ashley, or perhaps as Rhett,
Take all myself!
Romeo—I jolly well will take thee at thy word;
Call me but love, and I'll be new baptized
As Heathcliffe, yes, or by my troth, as Max!
Juliet—Or, gentle Heathcliffe—Max Rhett-Romeo,
If thou dost love, pronounce it faithfully;
Or if thou think'st I am too quickly won
Ask Gable! Boy, it took the whole darned Civil War!
Romeo—O blessed, blessed night, I am afeared,
Being in night, all this is but a script—
A thing by Metro-Goldwyn or Gaumont—
A fable for a Radio City run—
Hark, some one is coming!
Juliet—'Tis Sherman! Here they come, the rebel trash!
Romeo—Oh, fly with me to Manderley, eh what?—
Rebecca doesn't live there any more.

Women's Press Club Hears Danish Envoy

By Jessie Ash Arndt.
The Post Club Editor.

Denmark, reviving from the first stunning blow of Nazi invasion, is looking forward to but one thing—its freedom, Hendrik de Kauffmann, Minister of Denmark, told members of the Women's National Press Club yesterday. Sharing the program with him at the club's luncheon meeting in the Willard Hotel, Richard G. Casey, Minister of Australia, declared his people were in the war "to the last man and the last penny to save what remnants of freedom and decency there are in the world."

"I would remind you, I am not an Englishman but an Australian and my wife is a Australian," he said, indicating Mrs. Casey, who, with Mme. de Kauffmann, was also a guest of honor at the luncheon. "I am speaking not only for the Government but for the people of Australia—we are throwing all we've got into this struggle."

The Australian Minister pointed out that his country was "a free and independent people under the British crown" and also the most remote in the world from the scene of conflict, but despite this, had declared itself in a state of war just 90 minutes after Great Britain.

"We adhere to a way of life that is Britain's," he said. "We stand for decency and straightforwardness, man to man and country to country. We stand four-square against lying and deceit, against thugs and gangsters.

"This is not a clash between certain nations but a clash, head-on, between different ways of life. If Great Britain and France had not thrown themselves across the path, Christian civilization would have been blacked out and a light extinguished—our way of life and yours—that could not be rekindled in our time."

The Danish Minister, speaking quietly and with evident emotion, reviewed the background of his country, the oldest independent kindgdom in the world and one of the smallest countries in Europe. He spoke of its progress and social reforms, its effort "to achieve the greatest happiness for the average man—an effort which had been in a large measure successful until April 9"—as a man speaks in tribute to a deceased friend. He described its rolling lands and small farms with their white painted houses, the good general education of the people and their high living standards despite lack of natural resources.

Then he recounted the German invasion before dawn on April 9, when the government was given an hour to sign the ultimatum while bombing planes droned a threat of destruction overhead. He told of the arrival of five ships from Germany the day before, bringing hundreds of soldiers concealed under the coal. As virtual prisoners, in their own land, the Danes submitted, he said, but added that they would not be likely to get used to German rub but looked to the day when they could rebuild what was now temporarily lost.

Mrs. H. F. Grady Urges Women To Help Retain Democracy

Wife of Assistant Secretary of State Addresses the Annual May Breakfast Of District Federation of Women's Clubs

The great task before American women today is to do their part in the preservation of democracy, Mrs. Henry F. Grady, wife of the Assistant Secretary of State, told members of the District Federation of Women's Clubs yesterday at their annual May breakfast, at Hotel 2400. "No red herring drawn across our political and social thinking should be allowed to divert us from this primary objective," she said.

Declaring that the Goden Rule was the basis of the modern American attitude, she urged the women to accept the task of helping to make democracy a reality through its practical achievements. Then it will survive attacks both from the right and the left, she said.

Mrs. Saidie Orr Dunbar, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, who was guest of honor at the breakfast, urged on the women the necessity for standing together and being ready to enter new fields if necessary, in order to help with the rehabilitation of the war-torn nations of Europe.

"To justify our existence, we must now think not in terms of self but of the world," she declared.

She spoke of the coming council meeting of the General Federation in Milwaukee next week and of the South American tour which will follow it. About 25 clubwomen will make the trip, sailing from New York May 31—"not as tourists but as friends and students, desirous of meeting Latin-American women and discussing common problems."

Mrs. Ernest Humphrey Daniel, president of the District Federation, presided and introduced the honor guests. The invocation was by the Rev. Fred Sherman Buschmyer. Music for the occasion included violin solos by Mrs. Mabel Woodworth Jensen, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, accompanied by Miss Willa Semple, a group of songs by Helen Robinchaux, accompanied by Miss Myrtle Alcorn, and trumpet solos by Margaret Miller, which opened the program.

The Columbia Heights Art Club was announced as the winner of the Penny Art Fund award, a painting by Ann Goodhart Holland of the Women's City Club. Honorable mention went to the Aid Association for the Blind which was awarded a picture by Elsie George Erwin.

P.-T. A. for Sex Study in Home

Sex education in the homes was indorsed yesterday at a meeting of the board of the D. C. Congress of Parents and Teachers. The board expressed the view that it would be premature for the junior and senior high schools to introduce it as an accredited course until it had been introduced in the curriculum of Wilson Teachers' College.

Mrs. Evelyn Bright Buckley, vice president of the congress in charge of the Department of Health, pointed out it would be foolish to indorse such a course when no foundation had been laid in the schools to carry it out. Although sex education, as such, is not included in either junior or senior high schools, students are given sex education in connection with the study of elementary science, biology, hygiene and other subjects, Mrs. Buckley asserted.

The board voted $25 for the National Symphony Orchestra and a sum from the Hannah Berliner Sanders Memorial Library Fund to finance a talking book for the use of the sight-saving classes in the elementary schools.

Two Board Members of Havana's Largest Theater—a woman's Project—Are Here

HAVANA'S largest theater, an auditorium seating 2,700, is entirely a woman's project and two members of the board of 18 directors are now in Washington. They are Senora Laura Raynere Alonso, president of the Pro Arte Musical, and Senora de Eduardo Chibas, a member of its board, here as delegates to the education section of the Eighth Scientific Congress.

They were guests of Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley Tuesday afternoon at tea time and told me about their unique organization. It is open to all women of the city on the basis of subscriptions to the concerts in the auditorium. They pay $3 a month for orchestra seats with a $10 initiation fee, or $2 monthly for balcony seats with a $5 initiation. In addition to the concerts—two or more each month—to which the dues entitle the members, there is a corps de ballet, under a Russian ballet master, open without cost to their daughters, and a guitar class likewise available to the girls. The ballet, which presents several programs a year, has now 170 members and the guitar club has 100 enrolled.

World famous artists, who last season included Kirsten Flagstad, Nelson Eddy and Grace Moore, pack the theater at their concerts.

The project is a volunteer civic cultural effort inaugurated and successfully maintained entirely by women—and with money in the bank.

Senora de Chibas, at the close of the Scientific Congress, will go to New York to meet her husband who is arriving on his way to Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, in Troy, N. Y., where an honorary degree is to be conferred on him. He is the new president of the Rensselaer Alumni, the first foreigner so honored.

BENEFIT TODAY—The Goucher College Alumnae will give a benefit card party this afternoon and evening under the chairmanship of Miss Barbara Ottinger, at the home of Mrs. G. Raymond Wilhelm, 2124 Sudbury place.

FEDERATION MEETS. Mrs. Sadie Orr Dunbar, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, is on her way to Milwaukee for the spring council meeting of the federation, opening May 20, which will be attended by more than 1,000 club leaders from all parts of the country.

A feature of the conclave will be the presentation of candidates who are to be voted on at the triennial convention in Atlantic City in 1941, among them Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, of Baltimore, who is unopposed to succeed Mrs. Dunbar as president.

Monday Mrs. Dunbar went to New York to make the keynote address at the convention of the Better Business Bureau at the Hotel Pennsylvania. Cooperation with this group is part of the consumer program of the federation. Another talk in this department of the federation's interest will be that Mrs. Dunbar will make on Friday before a meeting of the American Retailers' Federation in Chicago. She leaves for Chicago tomorrow, accompanied by her secretary, Mrs. Thalia S. Woods, and will go from there to Milwaukee.

Miss Vella A. Winner, editor of The Clubwoman WFC, also is scheduled to speak in Chicago, addressing a roundtable of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs en route to Milwaukee. Others who will go from headquarters here are Miss Eleanor Meyer, secretary to Miss Winner; Mrs. Mildred Allers, of Mrs. Dunbar's office; Miss Carrie Galvin, assistant treasurer, and the lone man of the headquarters staff, Raymond J. Kaldenback.

Mr. Kaldenback, who is in charge of printing for the federation, will have the moral support of his wife while he assists with work of the council at Milwaukee as the one man member of the official delegation. He and Mrs. Kaldenback are making the trip to Milwaukee by motor, accompanied by their twin sons.

Others who will go from here to attend the convention are Mrs. Ernest Humphrey Daniel, president of the District Federation; Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, national chairman of Indian Welfare; Mrs. Charles A. Langley, a delegate from the District Federation, and Mrs. Frank M. Hoadley, of Chevy Chase, delegate from the Chevy Chase Woman's Club.

ADDRESS RALLY. Mrs. Heber Votaw and Mrs. Lucia Ramsey Maxwell, of Takoma Park, last week addressed a patriotic peace rally held at East Orange, N. J., in Taylor Park. The program was sponsored by Mrs. John Taylor, donor of the park and founder of the National Campaign for Peace and Patriotism. This organization seems to develop sentiment for both of these in the youth of the country.

Mrs. Maxwell read "The Constitution Speaks," of which she is the author, and her song, "America Is Singing," was on the program.

Engineers Auxiliary Hears National President

Mrs. Reed W. Hyde, of Summit, N. J., national president, yesterday addressed the closing luncheon meeting of the Washington Auxiliary of the American Institute of Mining Engineers at the Army and Navy Country Club.

Introduced by Mrs. Robert H. Ridgway, the local chairman, she told of the auxiliaries she has recently visited throughout the country and of the interest among younger women in joining.

Best Age for Girl to Marry Is 20-22, Says Educator; Advises Young Husband

Dr. Lawrence Thinks Wedding Should Follow Graduation

By Genevieve Reynolds

A COLLEGE diploma one day—a marriage certificate the next. That is no old fogey idea to be dismissed lightly by the modern career-bent miss. Shortly after graduation—between the ages of 20 and 22—is the ideal time for a girl to take a husband, according to alert, dynamic Constance Warren, president of Sarah Lawrence College and author of the recent book, "A New Design for Women's Education." Dr. Warren was recently in Washington to attend a convention of the American Education Council.

"Although it is advisable to marry young," said Dr. Warren, "a girl should eschew the older man who is well established, for there is likely to be too much difference in age and ideals. It is best to choose someone nearly equal in age so that the couple can work jointly building up a life of mutual interests and aims."

Even working after marriage for a short time is better than postponing matrimony too long, Dr. Warren maintains. She does not think that the man shirks responsibility when the wife works, provided he is trained to share both it and authority. Though she feels that very few men yet are educated to the point of sharing authority, she thinks that is the basis for a happy marriage.

Men Need Training

"Men as well as women should be trained for marriage," Dr. Warren declared. "They should be taught to share authority with their woes. Marriage should not be an 85-15 bargain with either the wife or husband placed on a pedestal and only one bearing the heavier load."

All wives both young and old should have some vital outside interest, such as politics, community or social work, dramatics or photography. "The woman who is interested only in her husband or children tends to develop too much emotionalism and cannot obtain or maintain a balanced outlook. If anything goes wrong with her domestic setup, she has nothing to fall back on emotionally; or granting that everything goes smoothly in the household, the woman who has no outside interests gets too intense about the personalities closest to her life. And friction often follows too intense an interest in one personality."

Handicraft's Advised

In the opinion of Dr. Warren, some form of using the hands—be it embroidery, painting, weaving or sewing—is an excellent emotional outlet for women. It does not matter what form this takes so long as it satisfies the individual.

Many women make the mistake of falling into grooves of fashionable pursuits, such as bridge, backgammon or golf, she said. Often these women would be far happier baking a cake, rigging up a television set in the cellar or puttering around in a garden, yet they do not have the courage to dare to be different from their friends.

CONSTANCE WARREN

Study Life Firsthand

At Sarah Lawrence College, in Bronxville, N. Y., the students are taught to think for themselves and to face life courageously as it exists today. Dr. Warren's aim, as well as that of the college, is to teach the students not to accept other persons' opinion as gospel, but to form conclusions of their own; not to accept authority as such, but to accept responsibility for individual viewpoint and become aware of conditions as they exist.

Training Necessary For Marital Duties Thinks College Head

In order to see life as it really is and to meet issues clearly and objectively, students there are sent out to study conditions first hand. Some work in stores and hospital clinics, some study low-cost housing projects and others go in for experience in whatever field they are chiefly interested.

Established in 1929, Sarah Lawrench College stresses progressive education. It is revolutionary in that it does not have a set of required subjects for a degree, Dr. Warren said. Much stress is placed on psychology, the arts and community work. Students with faculty guidance study whatever subjects they desire and delete those that hold no interest for them.

"Anthropology, law, journalism, home economics, interior decoration or literature, it matters not the subject a girl chooses as her speciality, so long as it teaches her to think for herself and to face life realistically," Dr. Warren said. "Any intelligent girl can learn to cook and to manage a house, but it is essential that she first learn the awareness of conditions today. It doesn't matter whether she learns that in geography or French, or a biology class—just so she can face them."

The Gentler Sex

Perennial White Hat

This summer you are NOT going to get a white hat. Every other summer you have weakened and bought a cheap little number to be worn once, then sent to the Joad family back home. And, after all, white hats are difficult . . . and impractical and—well, ordinary. That is, unless you happen to pay enough. And it certainly doesn't pay to pay enough! Not on your budget!

Stepping along in your somber, genteel black straw, you notice that every store window is full of fresh white, virginal summer hats. Big, dashing white straws forming angelic halos around the mannekins' faces. Dapper little sailors, immaculate rolled turbans—all gay, youthful, lilting.

Well, of course . . . maybe . . . if you just had a cheap little white hat of some kind to wear with those perfectly good white shoes you bought three summers ago . . . No, the sensible thing is to have those shoes dyed black. What do you want to wear white shoes for, anyway? None of the smart New Yorkers do. Still . . . of course, you're not a smart New Yorker . . . and never will be. And then white shoes are so comfortable . . . and so cool looking . . . and so—so . . . well, lovely and WHITE.

Afte rall, there's something about white in summer—oh, well, you'll just step into this store and see if they have some kind of a little hat that's simple . . . and becoming . . . and inexpensive . . . and very, very white.

The mirror is flattering; the saleswoman persuasive. And the first hat you try on isn't so very bad . . . It's a little harsh, it's true, but it's light and perky and summery.

How wintry your old black straw looks now! . . . You try another white hat. It's a little better. But wait! The clerk has something, she says, that is just YOUR hat!

She brings a neat white crepe turban, softly rolled. Now, of course, white straw is rather severe, but this is different . . . or it will be after she has worked it around to just the right tilt. There! See how lovely that is! And how youthful!

The next day you find a hat box arriving. Eagerly you don your new purchase, advance to the mirror. But wait! Something is wrong! The hat looks different! Just a little too . . . too white . . . or something. And the shape's really not so good . . . and your face looks a little funny . . . sort of washed out.

Oh, well, when you get on your white shoes, and your white gloves and a summer dress, and some more rouge, it'll look a lot better. Anyway, everybody else is wearing white hats—and here you go along like some old woman in your black straw. And, anyway, you can get your white shoes worn out.

You walk proudly out in the street in your new regalia. Now at last you are one of your fellows—or rather sisters—a ripple in the stream of white-hatted femininity that surges past. Here comes a housewife with a shopping bag wearing a turban almost like yours—why, it's exactly like it! . . . And here's another—a platinum-haired girl in sandals with red toenails! And still another, an elderly woman with a long gray glamour bob. All with your turban!

You meet yourself a dozen times before you get downtown, where you hurry to a department store rest room to repair your make-up. With a white hat you do need color.

Strolling through the millinery section of the store, you notice that the white hats are all on a table near the back. In front are the natural straws . . . and an assemblage of new black and yellow felts. Why—why, the white hat season must be over! . . . Of course! And here you, as usual, get in on the tag end! Why, in another week or so they'll be showing the black satins and velvets for fall!

You catch sight of yourself in a mirror. After all, this white hat doesn't do much for you, anyway. And it didn't cost very much . . . and . . . and . . . well, probably one of the Joad girls at home would simply love it.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Ignored by Man She Loves, Girl Yields to Melancholy; Avoids Her Friends; Worried Aunt Wants to Help Her

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: This is not my problem, but the problem of my niece. We have always been very close and I am greatly worried about her. She is 19 years old and quite attractive. She has many friends and is a favorite with both sexes. Until a few months ago she was a happy-go-lucky person, always with a smile on her face and a song in her heart. Today she neither smiles nor sings, and here is the reason:

A few months ago she met and fell deeply in love with a young man who seemed at first, quite fond of her, and dated her on several occasions. Abruptly he stopped telephoning and seeing her. She was completely unnerved and unhappy. Then, recently, she met him by accident and he seemed very pleased to see her. They spent the evening togther and he was very attentive.

When she came home she was transfigured with happiness. She was so sure, from the way he acted and the things he said, that their friendship was renewed and she would see him again. In fact, she confided her hopes in me, and told me how happy she was that evening, for the first time in months.

Well, several weeks have passed since then, and she has neither seen nor heard from him. She is heartbroken. I know you will say that she must forget him. But that's what we have been telling her, to no avail. All her friends have noticed the decided change in her. Boys telephone her and she refuses to see them, when she used to go with them frequently.

I might mention that this boy she loves is financially dependent. Do you think lack of money is keeping him away from her? She has often told me she would rather go for a walk with him than to the finest place in the city with someone else. Is there anything that can be done about this situation? I fear the results if she continues the despondent way she is now going. There is nothing her mother and I would not do to relieve the situation. But what can we do? We want your advice. WORRIED AUNT.

Spoiled Darling Needs Brisk Talking To

DEAR WORRIED AUNT: Your niece's down-in-the-mouth attitude does her no credit. The hallmark of the civilized personality—child, youth or adult—is the ability to endure and overcome heartache with unreadable reticence. In sympathizing so lushly with her romantic disappointment, you are encouraging her "can't-take-it" histrionics. In running around in circles, wringing your hands and calling family conferences to debate ways and means of procuring for her the golden apple of her heart's desire, you are endorsing her pampered theory that unless she gets everything she wants, her life isn't worth living.

Nobody's life ever has been a bed of roses, with happiness served up on a silver salver, day in and day out. "Into each life," as Longfellow wrote, "some rain must fall. Some days must be dark and dreary." That is the lesson your niece must learn. Blessed with an enviably long stretch of sunshiny weather, she was in danger of going soft under her gratuitous good fortune. Indeed, she is already something of a spoiled darling; something of a poor sport or she wouldn't visit her wretchedness on either her family or her devoted friends.

She may think she is down on her luck now, because the knight of her dreams isn't kneeling at her door; but her desolation can, and shortly will, be considerably worse if she doesn't snap out of her doldrums and improve her opportunities to remain in social circulation.

Whether her enigmatic heartbreaker's neglect is due to a financial shortage or downright indifference, she isn't helping her cause any by going into seclusion to nurse her affronted sensibilities. If she has a chance of bringing him to heel, it is by maintaining the same social gait that was hers when she met him. And if she hasn't a chance of ensnaring him, it behooves her all the more to keep going, chin up, until she encounters an acceptable substitute.

There is little, if anything, you can do to help your niece "get her man." Even the most ardent suitor shies off from the girl whose family gives evidence of being in cahoots with her to corral him. I've seen more than one budding romance ruined by parental over enthusiasm to promoe a match. And there is little you can do to assuage her heartbreak, if she misses out on her burning aspiration to make him her own.

About all you can do is stand by as confidante and give her—if you've got it—some philosophican inner strength and serenity with which to meet her trial-by-Cupid. Or, since she's behaving like a baby, a brisk scolding for her tearful attitude might do her more good than a continuous display of tender solicitude. As you perhaps know, a maternal spanking often restores emotional equilibrium to a spoiled child who has grown hysterical over a fancied wrong and refuses to be consoled with honeyed words.

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes

New York, May 14.

WE are now cuddling in our seats and sobbing softly over the most romantic "Romeo and Juliet" this town or any other has ever seen, for Lawrence Olivier and Vivien O'Hara Leigh are putting on Brother Shakespeare's immortal drama of medieval pupy love every night, and thousands come to moan and groan.

ALICE HUGHES

What makes this production so tear-compelling, of course, is the fact that Larry and Vivvy are just mad in love themselves, and will get married the minute their divorces ripen. Moreover, both are young and pretty enough to make these mooncalves stand up, and when they begin dying all over the place, the toughest girl in town breaks down and blubbers, while her escort blows his nose fit to rattle the balcony setting.

And what a treat for the autograph mice! With Scarlett O'Hara and the star of "Rebecca" in the same theater, it may be necessary to call out the militia. Good actors, these two, and it is too bad Vivvy's 6-year-old daughter, Suzanne, isn't here from England to see mummy doing the 14-year-old lovebird of Verona, and meet her prospective steppapa.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Those matchless zanies of the hat world, John and Fred, have further opened the gates of progress to us girls. Now they have a fine buxom girl of 30, named Frances Baker, to act as doorwoman for their stylish hat shop—to open doors and call taxis. She wears a nifty gray uniform and one of the boys' rakish straw hats, and she says she likes her job fine, though she did mind the stares of the passersby at first. She's the first doorwoman in town . . . Her suit is gabardine trimmed with soutache braid, and a long skirt which has a rolled hip bustle effect. There's a big cockade of coque feathers on the hat. Just in case you want to hire such a girl; that's the first uniform.

The latest report on Marjorie Hillis, the spinster who wrote "Live Alone and Like It," and then married a Mr. Ralston, is that she is now living very happily and in considerable luxury. Instead of writing books at present, she's doing club work.

Milk Contains Needed Vitamins.

Vitamin A, which helps prevents colds, infection and night blindness, is abundant in milk. The vitamin B group, which helps promote growth, keeps the appetite and nerves normal and helps prevent pellagra, is plentifully supplied in milk. Smaller amounts of vitamins E and C are present.

Vitamin D, the bone and tooth-building vitamin which is the one vitamin lacking has now been incorporated in milk which bears the name vitamin D milk. Milk is enriched with vitamin D either by irradiation with the ultra-violet lamp, by addition of the vitamin D concentrate, or by feeding irradiated yeast to cattle.

In addition to the above vitamins, a recent bulletin of the agricultural experiment station at the University of Wisconsin shows that 1 quart of milk contains all of the calcium; one-half of the phosphorus and protein, and one-fifth of the iron and calories needed daily by an average adult.

Mme. Martins Marks Summery Day With Garden Party at Embassy

Washington Society Figures and Delegates To Scientific Congress Assemble Under Shade Trees, Linger Long

By Hope Ridings Miller.

SUMMER DEFINITELY made its bow into Capital society yesterday afternoon when Mme. Martins, wife of the Brazilian Ambassador, entertained at a garden party at the embassy at 3000 Massachusetts avenue.

Hope Ridings Miller

Cool white and pastel frocks, broad-brimmed straw hats, and even a parasol or two were noted in the distinguished gathering, which included a sizable section of topflight local society and a number of out-of-towners here to attend the eighth American Scientific Congress.

The hostess received at the doorway leading out to the terrace. Standing with her was the Ambassador and one or two members of the staff. Something to write home about was Mme. Martins' frock, which was fashioned with a pale pink mousseline de soie blouse, and a full black skirt of similar material, through which were seen large pink hearts appliqued on a taffeta slip. A wide-brimmed black hat, trimmed with pink satin roses beneath the brim further accented the attractive ensemble.

The Brazilian Embassy garden is one of Washington's beauty spots. Walks through the grassy expanse are fringed with row on row of pink tulips and pansies of every shade and description. Two long tables groaning beneath a lavish outlay of refreshments were set up under the spreading trees, beneath which guests collected, and lingered as long as possible.

Decorating one corner of the garden wall were two attractive sculptures, done by Mme. Martins. And centering the small fountain at the top of the terrace was a puckish figurine that also attested her talent as an artist.

WHO WAS THERE Well, practically everybody. The Diplomatic Corps, residential and official society, and dozens of strange faces, all of which probably were brought to town by the Scientific Congress, made up the gathering.

Mme. Gouthier, wife of the Brazilian Second Secretary, stood with Mme. Martins to receive for a few minutes, and later found her way to the garden to chat with friends in the cool shade of the trees. Paul Hasslocher, Brazilian Commercial Counselor, was welcoming acquaintances on all sides and helping to see that everybody had a good time.

Mrs. Warren Barbour, wearing an off-the-face hat that featured a becoming shade of pink was one of the prettiest on parade, was a special center of attention. Mrs. Kent Legare and Mrs. Ffoulke Dewey, whose big straw hats turned up at similar angles and looked as if they were made from the same pattern, were in a chatty group that included Mrs. Jasper DuBose, Miss Marian Trumbull; and one or two others.

MME. ESPIL, accompanied by her pretty debutante daughter, Miss Louise Stillwell, was there, mingling in the crowd and seeming to know everybody. Pictures from a summer fashion book were Mrs. Henry D. Flood and her daughter, Miss Eleanor Flood, who were among those arriving during the first half of the party.

Admiral and Mrs. Emory Land were there; also, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Bingham; Mrs. Stanley Reed arriving with Mrs. Sumner Welles; Mrs. Edward Finkenstaedt, in a handsome black and white ensemble; Mme. Irimescu, wife of the Rumanian Minister, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Green, who is here from New York for a brief visit.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Houghteling were among the guests; as were Mrs. Charles McNary, Mrs. Thomas Holcomb, Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock, Mrs. Demarest Lloyd, Mrs. McCeney Werlich, Mrs. George Allen and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman.

Still others there were Mme. Ertegun, wife of the Turkish Ambassador; the Portuguese Minister and Mme. Bianchi, accompanied by Miss Sibilla Skidelsky; Mrs. Robert Brennan, the Ambassador of Panama and Senora de Boyd; and Mrs. Sol Bloom and Miss Vera Bloom, who had just been to the White House garden party.

DR. L. S. ROWE had in tow a number of delegates to the Congress; and presently, along came Miss Mary Winslow, who seemed to know all the out-of-town group, as well as everybody else. Mrs. Thomas Burke and Mrs. Laurence Duggan were also busily engaged in seeing that the visitors met the other guests.

On the List As Bride-Elect

MISS PEGGY BENNETT VOGEL,

daughter of Gen. and Mrs. Clayton B. Vogel, formerly of Washington, is seen above in the garden of her parents' home in San Diego, Calif. Yesterday, however, she sailed on an Army transport for the Canal Zone where, on May 25, she will become the bride of Edward Wilson Du Rant, jr., U. S. M. C., son of Dr. E. W. Du Rant

CAPITAL WHIRL

By SALLY SWIFT

MRS. NOYES LEWIS, recently returned from Florida, has taken an apartment at 2540 Massachusetts avenue for the rest of the season. For the summer she will follow her usual custom and open her house at Winter Harbor, Me., where she will devote herself to her young son "Bim" during his summer holidays.

ONE OF THE NICEST of the many nice things about Washington is the custom of mingling different ages and generations at the same party No one need feel too young or too old at a Washington gathering. When popular Jack Segar celebrated his birthday with a cocktail party the other afternoon, his guests included Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Townsend and their lovely post-deb niece, Peggy Townsend; Arthur Bradley Campbell and his two vivacious debutante cousins, Isabelle and Marjorie Meuser, and the Countess of Gainsborough with her charming daughter, Lady Maureen Noel.

LADY GAINSBOROUGH and pretty Maureen are enchanted with their recent trip South, where they attended the opera in Atlanta and visited the famous flower gardens of South Carolina. Little Lady Maureen is so interested in everything American and so pleased with all of her new friends here that she quite warms the heart.

Others dropping by to wish Jack Segar a happy birthday were the three delightful vom Rath girls, Sylvia Szechenyi, Eleanor Meem, Billy Mitchell, Pendleton Hogan, Paul O'Neill, Clarence Hewes, Robert Whitman., Juddy Bolles and Jock Merriam.

UNLESS YOU TAKE the trouble to write to your friends in New York and make dates ahead, the Metropolis is apt to be a large and lonely place for a country mouse from Washington. I was turning that rather depressing thought over in my mind the other day while crossing Fifth avenue, when suddenly, right in the middle of the street beside the traffic cop I met up with Mrs. Benjamin Thaw.

IF WE HAD MET on a desert island our squeals of delight couldn't have showed more surprise. Hastily we retired to the walk to discuss the latest gossip. Connie Thaw was looking very chic in a black tailleur with a white frill at the neck. She had come down from her place in Connecticut to meet her sister, Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt, and didn't know just when she would next visit Washington.

PRESENTLY WE were joined, in the most casual manner, by Bradley Nash, who said he would be coming to Washington for some of the spring dances. After chatting for a while I continued my way to an appointment in a nearby shop. There the first person I saw was good-looking Mrs. Nelson Perin, one of Washington's best-dressed women, who was trying on new creations in hats. By the time I had met Mrs. Lloyd Moore, walking hatless along Park avenue, I decided that the place to see one's Washington friends is New York.

Mrs. John Joslin To Fete Visitor

Mrs. John W. Joslin will entertain at luncheon today at the Washington Golf and Country Club in honor of Mrs. Dudley Rains, of Buffalo, formerly of this city.

Mrs. Rains is the house guest of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Murray at their new home in Kenwood. Yesterday Mrs. Murray entertained at luncheon in honor of Mrs. Rains. Guests at luncheon today will include Mrs. Murray, Mrs. Francis X. Sommer, Mrs. Clyde Courtney Gurley and Mrs. William Albert Rhodes.

Luncheons Take Capital Social Spotlight

Senora de Munilla, Mrs. J. D. La Gorce And Others Entertain

Several luncheons accented yesterday's calendar. Mrs. John Oliver La Gorce and Mrs. Harry W. Blair gathered in congenial groups at their respective homes. Meanwhile, Mrs. Gilbert N. Hitchcock entertained in honor of two friends from Omaha, Nebr., Mrs. Margaret Hynes and Mrs. Luther Drake. Ranking guests were Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, Mrs. Robert H. Jackson and Mrs. Charles Edison. Perhaps the largest luncheon was given by Senora de Munilla, wife of the Military Attache of the Cuban Embassy.

In the nature of a farewell was the party which Senora de Munilla gave in her apartment at 2400 Sixteenth street. On Monday of next week Senora de Manilla will leave for Cuba, where she plans to spend several months. She will be joined in June by Maj. Munilla.

Arroz Con Pollo Delights Guests

Senora de Munilla received her guests informally, wearing a smart two-piece frock of heavy wheat-colored lace. A corsage of sweetheart roses completed the ensemble. A delicious luncheon, the piece de resistance of which was Arroz con Pollo, was prefaced by true Cuban drinks—Bacardi cocktails.

Luncheon was buffet style and after being served guests found their way to small tables of four which were arranged about the rooms and spilled over into the sun porch. Sheafs of bright red gladioli were used throughout the house. Mme. Horinouchi, wife of the Japanese Ambassador, wore a pale-blue crepe frock and matching hat. Wearing a gray and burgundy ensemble, Senora de Cabero, wife of the Chilean Ambassador, was there as was Senora de Castro, wife of the Minister of El Salvador, and Senora de Caceres, wife of the Minister of Honduras.

Mrs. William O. Douglas was in the party as were Mrs. Merchant Mahoney, wife of the Commercial Counselor of the Canadian Legation; Frau von Boetticher, wife of the German Military Attache; Frau Witthoeft-Emden, wife of the Naval Attache of the German Embassy; Mrs. James H. Hughes and her daughter, Mrs. John T. Martin, who is here visiting from Camden, Del.; Senora Julio Vega Batlle, Senora de Crespo, wife of the Secretary of the Ecuadorian Embassy; Senora de Echegaray, Agricultural Attache of the Spanish Embassy; Mrs. William S. Culbertson, Mrs. Onan A. Hydrick, Mrs. Emil Schram and Mrs. Bruce D. Smith.

Senora Machado Attends Party

Still others at the luncheon included Mrs. Franklin T. Schneider, Mrs. Wallace McClure, Mrs. Thomas Cajigas, Mrs. Arthur D. Wright, Mrs. Ramon Valdes, Mrs. Leo B. Norris, Mrs. Barnet Nover, Mrs. William Shearer, Mrs. Charles McEnerney, Mrs. George Bean, Mrs. Jeter Rice Horton, Mrs. Hardin Arledge, Mrs. Victor J. O'Kelliker, Mrs. F. McKenzie Davison, Mrs. Newton Brewer, Mrs. Ralley Weidner, Senora de Machado, wife of Lieut. Pearo Machado, Cuban delegate to the eighth Scientific Congress; Senorita Graciela Guerra and Senorita Minerva Bernardino.

Gauss, New Envoy To Australia, Is Guest of Caseys

Clarence B. Gauss, recently appointed first United States Minister to Australia, was among the guests at the dinner given last night by the Australian Minister to this country and Mrs. Richard G. Casey.

Mrs. Gauss is in Washington for final orders before sailing June 25 from the West Coast for his new post. Mrs. Gauss is at the moment in Los Angeles, where she and her husband made the acquaintance of the Caseys on their arrival in California.

The dinner took place at Whiteoaks, the residence of the Minister on Woodland Drive. Ranking guest was the Peruvian Ambassador, Manuel de Freyre y Santander.

About the Town with DUDLEY HARMON

THE SCIENTIFIC CONGRESS delegates, who must be dizzy from hand-shaking and listening to speeches, can relax this afternoon at the really bang-up party to be given in their honor by the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Adolf Berle.

The hostess has sent all the way to California for an entertainer, who will sing American folk songs accompanied on the syron, an old instrument rather like a lute. He is 26-year-old Richard Dyer Bennett, and he became interested in folk songs after hearing of the work of a great Swedish minister, the late Sven Scholander. He went abroad to study under Scholander, who was then 75. Mr. Bennett has a repertoire of 350 minstrel and folk songs in Italian, French, Spanish, Swedish, German and English.

IF THE WEATHER'S fair there'll also be dancing on the tennis court of "Woodley" to the music of Barnee's Orchestra. Mrs. Berle loves to give parties, has spent hours of effort on this one, and it should be the gayest of the season.

WITH OUR CURRENT, if perhaps belated, appreciation of things American, the square dancing group of young Washington married couples had its biggest turnout of the year at the final party of the season last night. This group has been in existence for several years, and the members are by now experts in eve.y.thing from the "Little Brown Jug" to the "Portland Fancy."

THE GROUP MET at the Richard Sangers' house for cocktails before adjourning to Normandy Farms for an evening of dining and dancing. Among the couples were Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Wilmerding, Mr. and Mrs. L. Corrin Strong, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Duggan, the Creighton Peets, and the John Bortons. Philip Young and John Drier called the figures.

THE GARDEN of the 1925 F Street Club was a pleasant place to cool off yesterday afternoon. Many gathered there for the party given by Commander and Mrs. L. J. Wiltse, who will be off the first of June for California, where Commander Wiltse has been ordered.

Mrs. Wiltse, who is Mrs. John Roosevelt's mother, will leave on Friday for her home in Nahant, Mass., and does not expect to return here. Yesterday at her party she wore a navy blue sheer dress with a matching hat.

Small tables had been set up in the garden, and seen here and there were:

Mrs. George A. Garrett having a reunion with Mrs. Jerauld Wright, who with Commander Wright, drove over from Annapolis for the party. . . . Mrs. John R. Williams sitting at a table with Mrs. Lee Warren, who was all in Navy blue . . . and Commander William Thomas having a chat with William MacCracken.

Mrs. Henry Latrobe Roosevelt and Mrs. Eldridge Jordan shared a table . . . . Others seen were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hinton, Maj. and Mrs. Horace Smith, who arrived with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carroll Morgan, Mme. Prochnick, accompanied by her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Jean de Sibour; Mrs. Pearsons Rust, Mrs. William T. Mann chatting with Doggy Waggaman, and dozens of others.

Mrs. Roosevelt Gives 2 Fetes

With her calendar crowded to the split second yesterday, Mrs. Roosevelt received two large group of ladies yesterday afternoon. After greeting wives and delegates to the current scientific congress, she and ladies of the Cabinet received wives of members of the House of Representatives at a garden party at 4:30 p. m.

Yesterday morning, prior to her press conference, she sat on the jury with a score of other prominent women to hear stories of delegates to the National Women's Conference on Unemployment. Following her press conference at 11 o'clock she lunched with the Federation of Government Workers at the Hay-Adams House, and last evening she attended the relief dinner of the Workers Alliance.

This morning Mrs. Roosevelt will give a talk before the assembly at the Madeira School. This afternoon at 3:30 she will receive a group of Quakers and at 4 p. m. she will entertain at the annual Veterans' garden party. An Italian women's club will call on the First Lady tomorrow morning, and she will lunch with a youth education group at the Roger Smith Hotel. In the afternoon, tomorrow, she will receive ladies of the Law Institute from 3 to 4 p. m., and tomorrow evening she will speak before a meeting at the Zion Baptist Church.

Mrs. Roosevelt will receive delegates from the Tall Cedars of Lebanon organization on Friday afternoon at 4 p. m., and the following day she will entertain the graduating class of the Arthurdale School at luncheon. She will hold her next press conference on Monday at 11 a. m., and later she and the Cabinet ladies will entertain the ladies of the Senate at a picnic luncheon.

Senator Hughes Gives Dinner-Dance For Wife's Sister

Senator and Mrs. James H. Hughes entertained at a dinner-dance last evening in the Shoreham Blue Room for Mrs. Hughes' sister, Mrs. Fannie N. Weidner, of Chicago.

In the company were Senator Hughes' daughter, Mrs. John T. Martin, of Camden, Del.; Senator and Mrs. Lister Hill, Senator John G. Townsend, jr., Senator and Mrs. Claude Pepper, Senator Theodore G. Bilbo, Senator Tom Connally, Senator and Mrs. Alexander Wiley, Senator and Mrs. Edwin C. Johnson, Senator and Mrs. James E. Murray, Representative and Mrs. Colgate W. Darden, jr., Representative and Mrs. William D. Byron, and Representative and Mrs. George S. Williams.

Also the Cuban Military Attache and Senora de Munilla, the Commandant of the Marine Corps and Mrs. Thomas Holcomb, Maj. and Mrs. McKenzie Davison, Miss Florence Mortimer, Miss Anna Belle Ward, of Lexington, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. Norman Underwood, Mrs. Nietah King, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wyatt, Mrs. Franklin T. Schneider and Myron Dysinger.

Cuba to Award Medals Tonight At Reception

Americans Listed Among Recipients At Embassy Fete

A serious note will be struck at tonight's gay reception at the embassy of Cuba when several distinguished Cubans and Americans will receive medals bestowed by the Cuban government.

The decorations, the Order of Carlos J. Finlay, will be presented by Dr. Juan M. Moya, Secretary of Sanitation of Cuba. Dr. Moya will arrive here by plane this afternoon with the Ambassador, Dr. Pedro Martinez de Fraga, who has been in Havana for several months, and Domingo Ramos, Cuban Secretary of Defense.

Among the recipients of the decorations will be John J. Moran and John R. Kissinger, two of the heroes who offered themselves for experimental purposes when the United States Yellow Fever Commission was engaged in proving the late Dr. Finlay's theory that the mosquito was responsible for the transmission of yellow fever. A posthumous reward will also be made to Miss Clara Maas, who died as the result of experiments in stamping out the disease

Others who will be decorated by Dr. Moya include Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon general of the United States Public Health Service; Ambassador Fraga, Dr. Luis Ortega of Havana, Dr. William Thornwald Davis and Dr. Tomas Cajigas of Washington and the Rev. Gutierrez Lanza.

Susan W. Comfort, Of Philadelphia, Visits in Capital

Miss Susan W. Comfort, daughter of the retiring president of Haverford College, Dr. William W. Comfort, is visiting Miss Pauline Frederick of 1721 Rhode Island avenue. Miss Comfort is corresponding secretary of the Women's University Club of Philadelphia and has done much work with the Friends Service Committee. She is also active in Philadelphia society.

Her father will be succeeded as president of Haverford early in September by Felix Morley, now editor of The Washington Post.

PRESENTING nylon STOCKINGS

In our first offering of nylon stockings today, we want to acquaint you with some of the facts about this new product.

The quantity is limited as the manufacturer of the yarn has facilities for the production of only a small percentage of what is needed for the nation.

Like all sheer stockings, nylon may snag or run. They require the same care as silk in handling and washing to give satisfactory wear.

House Group Blocks Action On Hatch Bill

Attempts to kill the Hatch bill and to report it out at once were both voted down by the House Judiciary Committee yesterday, as the measure was strengthened by striking out two weakening Senate amendments.

A motion of Representative Walter (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, to table the bill—the equivalent of locking it up for the session—was defeated by a vote of 15 to 8. Walter thereupon moved to bring the measure out to the House immediately, but this proposal was also turned down.

Two amendments adopted by the Senate, exempting educational and charitable institutions from operation of the law, and permitting State employes to take furloughs from their jobs in order to run for office, were knocked out of the bill. The measure forbids, in general, any State employe paid with Federal funds from taking part in political activity.

A ban on the sale of books by political parties was reportedly adopted by the committee yesterday. This proposal was apparently aimed at the Democratic Party's sale of "yearbooks" to raise campaign funds.

The committee approved, by what was described as a straight party vote, a Senate provision limiting campaign contributions to $5,000. It also indorsed a proposal, previously adopted by a Judiciary subcommittee, that would restrict the receipts or expenditures of any political organization to $3,000,000 in a calendar year.

The next regular meeting of the Judiciary Committee is tomorrow, when it is thought possible that the bill will be whipped into shape for the House.

Court Reverses Ruling Against Nudist Book

The United States Court of Appeals here yesterday repudiated "book burning" as a legal process and ordered the release of six copies of "Nudism in Modern Life" which the District Court ordered destroyed because several illustrations showed unclothed persons.

Maurice Parmelee, 2514 Forty-first street northwest, who wrote the book, hailed the opinion of Justice Justin Miller as a vindication of academic and scientific freedom.

When the case came before Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat of the District Court 18 months ago, counsel for Parmelee and the Government agreed that the text and most of the pictures were unobjectionable.

The work was a scientific inquiry, Parmelee said, adding that he neither condemned nudism nor advocated it, but merely analyzed the impulses of persons who turn to nudism as an escape from artificiality.

Chief Justice Wheat held that three or four illustraitons of naked men and women were enough to justify destruction of the books under the obscenity laws. Justice Miller and Chief Justice D. Lawrence Groner, of the Court of Appeals, reversed this decision.

Citing the decision legalizing James Joyce's "Ulysses," the opinion said such works were to be considered as a whole, and for their effect upon all whom a book is likely to reach, rather than the effect upon a particular class, such as the young or depraved.

Justice Fred Vinson, dissenting, said the decision of the trial court no the obscenity of the books ought to be binding upon the Court of Appeals.

Grady to Head U. S. Red Cross Campaign Unit

District Chapter Seeks $150,000 War Relief Fund

Henry F. Grady, Assistant Secretary of State, yesterday was named vice chairman in charge of Government departments in the $150,000 war relief fund drive by the District Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Solicitations in banks and financial institutions will be handled by George Vass, vice chairman and treasurer of Riggs National Bank. Vass will act as vice chairman in the local drive. The appointments were made by Bruce Baird, campaign chairman.

Meanwhile, turn of events yesterday in the European struggle brought vigorous pledges of support in the $10,000,000 Red Cross national war relief fund. Former Gov. Alfred M. Landon of Kansas made an appeal to the public to contribute funds "to meet the needs which are each day increasing with frightful rapidity."

Taylor to Brussels

Wayne Chatfield Taylor, head of the Red Cross mission in Europe, was ordered to Brussels immediately from Geneva to map out an American Red Cross relief program for Belgium. At the same time, Red Cross headquarters here cabled the British Red Cross to purchase $50,000 worth of the most urgently needed hospital and medical supplies for rush shipment to the Belgian and Netherlands Red Cross societies. Previously the American Red Cross had announced a cash contribution of $100,000 to the Belgian Red Cross, including 40 ambulances and a number of field ambulances.

Some 400,000 surgical dressings now in a New York warehouse will be shipped on the first available boat for use in Belgium and Holland. Ambulances and hospital trucks will be shipped for the Belgian and Netherlands Red Cross societies as soon as delivery can be obtained.

Belgians Are Grateful

Dr. B. Nolf, president of the Belgian Red Cross, yesterday informed American Ambassador Cudahy of Belgium's "deepest gratitude" for America's "generous and spontaneous gift" to his country. He referred to the first grant of $100,000.

Chairman Baird stressed that every cent received by the Red Cross in this campaign will be applied "wholly and exclusively to war relief work and no part will be applied toward regular activities and program of the Red Cross, nor to meet the expenses of this campaign." Gifts to date total $8,340.

Horses Vital To Lightning War, Says Cavalry Chief

Camp Beauregard, La., May 14 (AP).—The American Chief of Cavalry, warning against over-emphasis of mechanized military forces, said today that tanks and motorized forces were secondary in the early stages of Germany's lightning strokes.

Maj. Gen. John K. Herr, here to watch horse and tank units which make up his branch of service in the Third Army's war maneuvers, said in an interview:

"Horses can still go where tanks and cars can't penetrate. An ideal arrangement, and one I'm working toward, is a force balanced with all three."

Germans invading Poland, he said, used about 200,000 horses and pulled much of their artillery with animals.

"Here in this country," he said, "we have 10,000,000 horses and 4,000,000 mules. We should make better use of that material so close at hand."

McNutt Speaks At Utah Rally

Salt Lake City, May 13 (AP).—Promises of Republican candidates to preserve much of the "good in the New Deal" are politically impossible of fulfillment, Federal Security Administrator McNutt said tonight.

McNutt made his comment in an address prepared for delivery before a rally of Utah Democrats. He said that in their period of "normalcy" and "prosperity" Republican Administrations made "not one move toward humanizing Government . . . or to equalize among citizens what the uneven hand of privilege, birth and luck had brought about."

Sidwell Friends School Sues District on Taxes

The 130-year-old Sidwell Friends School, 3901 Wisconsin avenue northwest, sued athe District yesterday for $11,865.82 taxes which it claims were unlawfully collected.

The school and J. Austin Stone, trustee of the estate of the late Thomas W. Sidwell, complained that property left the school by Mr. Sidwell was taxed like private property, instead of being allowed the exemption accorded other schools.

Encroachments Charged in Sales of Vitamins

Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the American Medical Association Journal, charged yesterday that certain stores and beauty shops are endangering the public health by trying to "muscle in" on the sale of vitamin preparations.

He spoke at the Willard Hotel to more than 700 of the Nation's leading physicians and pharmacists, gathered here for the decennial convention of the U. S. Pharmacopoeia, a private organization which establishes the official standards for all medicinal products.

The scientists also heard W. G. Campbell, chief of the Food and Drug Administration, deny in strong terms that the Government has any intention of taking over the work of the convention or its revision committee.

Enforces Standards

The F. D. A., under the Food and Drug Act, enforces the standards established by the Pharmacopoeia upon the drug industry. Since 1906 it has had the authority to establish its own standards, should it be dissatisfied with those of the Pharmacopoeia, but it has never done so.

Dr. Fishbein declared that "the safety of the public health requires clearly a recognition of the fact that vitamins used as drug products must meet drug standards."

He termed the development of vitamin treatment "the most conspicuous" medical advance in recent years but urged that the reinforcement of foods with vitamins be limited to the amount normally present in the best quality of the food. Products containing a larger amount than this should be classified as drugs, he said, cautioning:

"Unless some such reasonable attitude is developed we may yet see food products which have been modified by the addition of drugs of great potential harm to the purchasing public."

Election Today

Dr. Fishbein criticized the Pharmacopoeia for functioning "only with difficulty as a democracy" and lagging behind scientific progress.

Progress of medical science has been so rapid in recent years, he added, that provision must be made for the speeding up of medical standards.

The convention today will elect a new president, board of trustees and chairman of the revision committee for the next ten years. Resolutions have been introduced, however, calling for more frequent meetings. Other resolutions would cut the size of the group to make it more wieldly.

Donovan Is Convicted In Liquor Store Holdup

James F. (Buzz) Donovan, 39, whose police record here stretches over nearly 20 years, was convicted in the District Court yesterday of robbing an H street northeast liquor store 10 weeks ago.

Donovan recently dropped a damage suit for $25,000 against police officers whom he charged with holding him without cause in connection with a robbery last summer.

Citizens Ask Beautified Logan Circle

Summit Park Unit Asks District To Repair Alley; Alien Groups Attacked

Improvement of public grounds in Logan circle and Summit Park was asked by two citizens' associations last night.

In Stanton Park citizens laid groundwork for further investigation of alien groups and organizations "working against the Government of the United States."

Logan-Thomas Circle

Mrs. Ella M. Thompson, 1120 Rhode Island avenue northwest, who has served the Logan-Thomas Circle Citizens' Association as president for the last 16 years, was elected for her seventeenth term last night.

Mrs. Thompson

Members at a meeting in Mrs. Thompson's home re-elected all officers. Dr. Charles K. Koones was again chosen vice president; Kenneth C. Robbins, secretary; and H. M. Fulton and Walter W. Stout, delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Mrs. Thompson, Dr. Koones and Mrs. W. E. Baker were appointed to a committe to seek action from District officials on the beautification of Logan Circle.

Unsightly paths have been beaten across the circle, and other acts of depredation have been committed, all of which make the grounds much less than the attractive parkway should be, members complained.

"Logan is the first circle visitors entering the city on Rhode Island avenue see," Secretary Robbins said, "and right now it certainly must give them a poor impression of the Capital."

Stanton Park

The Stanton Park Citizens Association last night named a committee to draw up a resolution condemning organizations "working against the American form of government," and to map plans for investigating such groups.

On the committee are Gertrude Young, Mrs. W. H. Smith, William J. Bartle and Vernon Cooper.

Harry N. Stull was named to the committees arranging the community's Fourth of July celebration, and the "I Am an American" Day.

Summit Park

The Summit Park Citizens Association last night adopted a resolution asking the District Engineer Department to repair an alley that runs between Austin and Thirty-sixth streets southeast.

Meeting in the Baptist Church hall, the association decided to celebrate National Poetry Week from May 21 to May 28. On Saturday, May 25, the members will meet to read their favorite poems to each other. A prize will be awarded for the best original poem.

Connecticut Avenue

Arrangements for a Potomac River cruise aboard the new "streamlined" steamer, City of Mount Vernon, were announced to members of the Connecticut Avenue Association at a meeting last night in the Mayflower Hotel.

The boat will leave Washington at 8:30 p. m. Monday, and before her return judges will have selected "Miss Connecticut Avenue" to compete in the city-wide contest for "Miss District of Columbia." Judges will be L. E. Rubel, Luther Schreiner and Richard Norris. Arrangements for the excursion, which also will feature dancing, are in charge of a committee headed by Emile Beauvais and Mrs. Ethel Fistere.

District Jury Indicts Mayne

David D. Mayne, alleged writer of spurious letters which linked Representative Dies, chairman of the Un-American Activities Committee, to the leader of the anti-Jewish Silver Shirts, yesterday was indicted twice for forgery and once for getting money by false pretenses.

Letters purporting to have been signed by William Dudley Pelley, Silver Shirt leader, were read into the Congressional Record by Representative Hook (Democrat), of Michigan. Hook said he got them from Gardner Jackson, legislative counsel of Labor's Nonpartisan League.

Pelley later testified that he did not write the letters, and Hook had them expunged from the record. Harold Weisberg, Jackson's aide, claimed he paid Mayne $60 for the letters when Mayne represented himself as an employe of Pelley.

The first grand jury to investigate failed to return indictments and a new inquiry was ordered.

Western and Central Are Second, Third At Stadium Event

Company B of Anacostia High School marched to victory in the annual competitive drill of Washington High School Cadets in Griffith Stadium yesterday. It won the first award in the history of the three-year-old cadet organization of the Southeast institution.

The schoolboy soldiers from Anacostia bested 29 other companies from District white senior high schools in the closest competition in the memory of Cadet Corps officials.

The Anacostia unit took first place with an average of 92.44 per cent, closely pressed by Company G of Western, and Company B of Central, with averages of 92.22 and 92.11, respectively.

Anacostia Exults

The victory particularly gratified Anacostia supporters, since there has been cadet training only since 1937 at the school, and cadets there number only two companies; far less than at any other District institution.

A private in the Anacostia company is John Fox Eldridge, grandson of Watson W. Eldridge, who in 1895 founded cadet training in high schools here.

A crowd of more than 12,000 turned out to see the $4,000 diamond-studded Allison Nailor medal presented to Cadet Capt. Ralph Hartline by Col. Frederic G. Kellond, inspection officer of the Third United States Army Corps Area. The second-place Western company was led by Cadet Capt. John Ingles, while the unit from Central which took third place was commanded by Cadet Capt. James G. Deane.

District school officials including Supt. Frank W. Ballou and Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle watched the entire brigade of 2,033 boys pass in review as the climax to the drill.

Use Simplified Drill

Using the new simplified Army drill regulations, the cadet companies marched and charged across the field under a blazing sun. Eleven of the cadets required treatment for mild cases of heat prostation at a first aid tent.

The cup awarded on the basis of the average of companies, went to the Fourth Regiment of Western High School.

Col. Wallace M. Craigie, professor of military science and long head of the District cadet organization, revealed that two more companies would be added next year to the Anacostia units to form a regiment.

Judging the competition were First Lieut. John D. Lawler, and Second Lieuts. Louis R. Moore and Thaddeus R. Dulin, all of the Twelfth United States Infantry, Arlington Cantonment.

The Anacostia company celebrated last night at a banquet at the school, hastily arranged after the drill results were announced.

2 Indicted For Murder

Two colored holdup suspects were indicted for first-degree murder yesterday for the death of Herman Sirkis, 42, in the robbery of a liquor store at 4824 Deane avenue northeast February 26.

The indictment was among 45 presented before Justice F. Dickinson Letts in the District Court. Accused were Lathan Daniel, 23, colored, and John D. Butler, 27, colored.

Police said the men signed statements in which they admitted the robbery in which Sirkis was killed.

Pickpockets in Church

Special Pleas For Symphony

Leaders of the National Symphony Orchestra's fund campaign yesterday addressed a special plea to Government workers and business and professional men for contributions to assure the $107,600 which must be raised if the orchestra is to continue next season.

With six days of the drive over, and with but two left, the Government committee has obtained only 34 per cent of its quota and the business-professional group only 35.41 per cent, marks considerably below those raised by seven other solicitation committees.

Edward J. Noble, Undersecretary of Commerce, who is head of the government committee, urged Federal employes here not to consider themselves immune from civic appeals because they might consider themselves non-residents.

"The National Symphony, both through its concerts in Constitution Hall and particularly through its summer concerts at the Watergate, contributes so greatly to the enjoyment of the Government worker here that he can ill afford to neglect its present need.

Response from businessmen of the city has been disappointing, according to John Rowland Hill, leader of the professional-business solicitors.

"Apparently there are many businessmen who do not realize the part which the orchestra plays in their activity and prosperity," he said. "The presence of a major symphony orchestra here is a great factor in a attracting both tourists and residents."

Post Printer, at 66, Enters 51st Year on Assembly Bank

When a rotund, silvery-haired little man steps into the composing room tonight, he'll be starting his fifty-first year with The Post.

But that's not all. For J. Louis Ferber will practically be reporting for the same job he's been doing ever since he went to work in the composing room on May 15, 1890. That job is running the assembling bank.

Reporters get the facts; rewrite men pound out the story; linotype operators put it in type; Ferber puts it together. Four, five or six different linotypers may produce different parts of the story, but Louis'll get it all together, with the proper headlines.

Louis handles between 400 and 500 galleys of type each night, two-inch sticks to a couple of columns, in a continuous flow from 30 machines to the assembling bank. Louis does the job by himself with a methodical sure-fingered speed.

The veteran printer, who has never run a linotype, started with The Post in the old building, at Tenth and D streets northwest, as an elevator boy. A few months later he became an apprentice in the composing room and stayed there ever since.

Today, at 66, he admits he'll retire—"someday when I can't work any more." But as it is, he says: "I take things easy and have no worries."

Last night he commented about the war news—the headlines of which he rapidly skims as he throws the stories together. "Getting much more war news now than in the last World War," he said. "The Post had only two news services overseas then; now we have five. That's a lot of news."

Bar Asks Ban On Practice By Laymen

'Experts' Appearing Before U. S. Agencies Ignorant of Law, Attorneys Complain

District Bar Association support of legislation prohibiting laymen from practicing law before quasi-judicial agencies of the Federal Government was urged by a committee of the organization at its meeting at the Mayflower Hotel last night.

The report, submitted by Richard L. Merrick, chairman of the committee on the suppression of unauthorized practice of law, attacked persons without legal training who secure clients by posing as "counselors" and "experts" in the handling of causes in various Government departments.

Laymen, the report declared, can become "members of the bar" for the handling of claims outside the Federal courts without having "seen the inside of a law book or law school."

Backs O'Toole Bill

Lay practice in the Government, the report charged, has resulted in the establishment of "bars" in the Treasury Department and in the Interstate Commerce, Securities Exchange and Communications commissions.

The report recommended support of a bill sponsored by Representative O'Toole (Democrat), of New York. It was referred to the association's legislation committee of which Kenneth N. Parkinson is chairman.

A report was adopted condemning the "aggravated use" of the telephone and telegraph by lawyers in assisting credit concerns in making collections. The report, made by George D. Horning, jr., chairman of a special committee to investigate sales and collections practices of credit houses and finance companies, also urged "caution" in the writing of collection letters by lawyers.

The practice of attorneys of permitting clients to rubber stamp their names on "dunning" letters or on papers filed in collection suits was branded in the report as "unethical and improper."

Municipal Judges

The association also voted to support legislation granting to judges of the municipal, police and juvenile courts retirement and pension privileges now available to judges of higher tribunals. The proposed bill, replacing a measure disapproved by the Budget Bureau, would enable judges to hold office during good behavior and to retire after 12 years' service since 1930 upon becoming 70 years old.

The report was made by Harry A. Grant, chairman of the committee of retirement and pensions.

The association was informed that Chief Justice Lawrence D. Groner of the Court of Appeals has called a two-day judicial conference, as required by Congress, which, among other subjects, will consider the problem of speeding disposition of District Court cases. The conference will open May 24.

Charles Fahy, general counsel of the Labor Relations Board, explained board operations.

Autos Hurt 2 Children

Two children were hurt in auto accidents yesterday.

Hit by an auto while playing in front of her home, Willamae Miller, 6, of 1424 Chapin street northwest, was taken to Children's Hospital with head cuts.

The driver of the auto, police said, was Charles Goldberg, 51, of 49 Adams street northwest.

George Panagos, 7, 920 Ingraham street northwest, ran into an auto at Ingraham street and Georgia avenue. Taken home, he was later transferred to Garfield Hospital to be treated for brush burns and head injuries.

Final rehearsal for the forthcoming style show to be staged by the District Society of the Sons of the American Revolution at their Fifty-first Congress, May 19-22, was held last night. Food Stamp Plan Urged For District

Rep. Eberharter, Welfare Director, Other Leaders Advocate Program

Adoption of the food stamp plan to provide surplus food products for the Capital's 23,000 relief or social-security clients was urged last night by a Representative, two labor union spokesmen, a clergyman, a lawyer for the local food industry, and the District's public welfare director.

Representative Herman P. Eberharter (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, declared the people of Washington should "have gone to the front" long ago to request the plan which is in effect in 70 other American cities, in a panel discussion at Friends Meeting House, Twenty-first street and Florida avenue northwest.

Welfare Director Robert Bondy said the food plan would provide a means for distributing a much greater range of agricultural and dairy products to relief clients than the present Federal distribution system.

All the District's 23,000 recipients of direct and indirect relief as well would be aided by the plan if put into effect, Bondy asserted.

Sidney Katz, secretary of the Maryland-District of Columbia Industrial Union Council (C. I. O.), declared the plan had the backing of his organization. It would, he said, be a weapon to combat reported malnutrition among relief workers.

Jewish Appeal Under Way

The 1940 United Jewish Appeal was launched last night at a meeting of more than 500 campaign workers at the Jewish Community Center.

In the next three weeks efforts will be made to obtain at least 7,500 contributions to provide immediate relief for destitute Jews of Eastern and Central Europe and to find homes for refugees in Palestine and other lands. The campaign will last three weeks, with all Jewish organizations participating. The local drive is part of a Nation-wide campaign.

Speakers last night dwelt on the critical situation of refugees in the face of the spreading war. Isidore Hershfield, honorary chairman, stressed the humanitarian aspects of the appeal, referring to the drive as "a holy mission."

Morris Simon, cochairman of the drive, who presided, introduced the campaign officers and called upon some of the drive leaders for brief remarks.

Rabbi Isador Breslau, cochairman, and Morris Cafritz, vice chairman, described the seriousness of the situation abroad.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

'Lillian Russell' to Make Its World Bow Tonight

Pittsburgh Is Scene of Gilt-Edged Splurge; Civic to End Season With Coward Skits; This, That and the Other About the Theater

BIG DOINGS in Pittsburgh yesterday and today. Tonight is the night Twentieth Century-Fox accords its ne plus ultra, hyper-superproduction of "Lillian Russell' its world premiere in the smoky city, where the radiantly beautiful blonde star lived for several years after having become the wife of Alexander Moore,- Pittsburgh newspaper publisher.

BELL

With their usual profligacy, Twentieth Century-Fox is playing host to critics, columnists and special writers from all points of the compass. The Washington contingent—all two of them—left the Capital Monday at 11:40 p. m., and are due back in town any time they are able to get here, after tonight. By this time, their legs are probably worn off to the knees trying to keep pace with the entertainment schedule planned for every hour of the two days.

Alice Faye plays the title role in "Lillian Russell," with Eddie Arnold, formerly of the old National Theater Players, again cast in the role of "Diamond Jim" Brady. Miss Russell's various husbands and close friends are impersonated by Don Ameche, as Edward Solomon; Warren William, as the famous J. L., and Henry Fonda, as Alexander Moore. Leo Carrillo appears as Tony Pastor, the daddy of vaudeville, and to make the thing ring true, Weber and Fields are in there as themselves and Eddie Foy, jr., in his life-like imitation of his celebrated pop. There is a supporting cast longer than you have been in town!

Wisht I coulda went.

While the late Lillian Russell made many appearances on Washington stages, the most memorable in the minds of as many as could get into the theater was when she was here in Weber and Fields' "Jubilee Production" of "Bunty Bulls and Strings," a burlesque of "Bunty Pulls the Strings," a then Scotch comedy hit on Broadway. For this reunion, after years of professional separation, Weber and Fields reassembled as many of their old Music Hall favorites as they could find and coax out of retirement—including Miss Russell, Fay Templeton, Frankie Bailey, the "girl with the million dollar legs;" Willie Collier, Ada Lewis and many more. The company played its one-matinee stand at the Belasco immediately after Miss Russell's marriage to Alexander Moore, 'way back during the Wilson administration. Mr. Moore occupied a stage box to admire his bride across the footlights and was subjected to an unmerciful needling by the Messrs. Weber and Fields. They ad libbed to him incessantly during the performance, but never called him anything but "Me, Too!" Mr. Moore was amusedly game and proved that he could take it—as what husband of Lillian Russell wouldn't?

The Washington Civic Theater will end its current season with three of the playlets from Noel Coward's "Tonight at 8:30," in Wardman Park Theater, May 21, 22 and 24 to 27, inclusive. The three one acters chosen for presentation are "Hands Across the Sea," "Fumed Oak" and "Ways and Means," deemed by many the best of the original nine. For the first time this season, Day Tuttle, director of the Civic, will participate in the performance as an actor.

True to his postcardage, Ol' Massa Ed Kuykendall, national president of the M. P. T. O. A., dropped into Washington from Hollywood during the weekend, bringing cordial messages to her many friends in the Capital from Mrs. Crane Wilbur. Mrs. Wilbur, in case you had forgotten, is the former Leneta Lane, for more than one season leading woman with the National Theater Players, when they were at the top of their glory.

A host of friends were shocked Monday night to learn of the death in Janice Hall, Daytona Beach, Fla., of Mrs. Michael J. Cullen, wife of the Western division manager for Loew's, Inc., and formerly city manager for that company in the Capital. Mrs. Cullen was the former Hazelle Jennings, a member of the "Showboat" company and other Ziegfeld productions. Mrs. Cullen, one of the beauties of the stage, was the sister of Mabelle Jennings Roberts, former local dramatic editor and critic. Mr. and Mrs. Cullen were vacationing in Florida when a relapse of a long-standing illness caused Mrs. Cullen's death at 7:05 Monday evening.

United Artists' 1940-41 schedule calls for a $30,000,000 expenditure and the release of 22 feature productions from Hollywood and London producers. James Roosevelt, son of the President, is among the 11 independents releasing through U. A.

In Hollywood

Hollywood, May 14

"Torid Zone," which stars Jimmy Cagney, Ann Sheridan and Pat O'Brien, was made in the banana belt, and like that famous song, "Yes, We Have No Banan a s," kidded everythin g. The story had as many holes in it as Swiss cheese, but gags and high pressure fun made you forget the war newsreel which preceded it. I wish they'd let Cagney play in a typical Hollywood party scene. I'd love, just once before I die, to see him swing from the chandelier while greeting his hostess. He not only could do it, but would make her like it. Picture has no axe to grind, no problems, isms—just a lot of good, clean fun, and I'm blessing Director Bill Keighley for it. . . .

HOPPER

I knew when Ginger Rogers and Ronald Colman started "Lucky Partners" they'd run into story trouble. It was an original done by Sacha Guitry, with a decided French flavor, which our Mr. Hays doesn't like. Idea was that Ronnie Colman bought Ginger Rogers a lottery ticket because Ginger wanted a honeymoon. Yes, she had her man.

When the lottery won, they decided on a honeymoon of their own. It was only after the honeymoon that they married. Amusing, but risque. They don't quite know how to get around that premarital gamble. Would you?

Mary Martin, as she took off her wedding ring day after she married Dick Halliday, said "Why, you boys won't even let a ring get warm on my finger before yanking it off for a picture."

Visitors at Catalina Island had quite a treat last week-end. Ann Sheridan and George Brent were there together. Nice to own your own boat. Nice of Warners to build such comfortable bungalows for their stars, 'cause that's where most of them dine.

Mrs. Nick Schenck's friends, and they are legion, are delighted that she's gained nine and one-half pounds in Florida, but sorry that it will take at least a year before she'll be in perfect health. Huband Nick, president of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, has given up all engagements except pressing business to be with her.

And he's as fine a brother as he is a husband. Years ago, he made a pact with Joe Schenck that they'd share and share alike. Well, Joe was wiped out in the panic of '29, and owed nearly two million. A few years later, Nick made a profit of nine million in a stock deal, and turned half of it over to his brother. I understand it's Nick who's gotten Joe out of his income tax trouble in Washington, D. C. . . .

Now that Eugene O'Neill wants Harry Carey for his cycle of plays, our movie moguls are moving heaven and earth to try and put him under contract.

SOME OF THE "SIRENS" IN "LILLIAN RUSSELL"
the Twentieth Century-Fox biographical musical, with Alice Faye in the title role and Edward Arnold again impersonating "Diamond Jim" Brady. Don Ameche, Henry Fonda, Warren William, Leo Carrillo, Weber and Fields, Eddie Foy, jr., and Helen Westley are a few of the many others cast in prominent parts.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, May 14.

MAYOR LaGUARDIA: Tell some of Bob Moses' men to inspect the floral designs at Rikers Island. A prominent leftist, convicted in connection with political activities, spent his term there. He was removed from his cell, and given a job as a gardener. The leftist, embittered at what he felt was an unjust conviction, surprised the guards by working diligently at his job—taking the utmost care in planting the seed and clipping the shrubbery. Then he was released . . . The seeds he planted are sprouting, and his floral design is a pretty one, at a close-up view. But anyone flying over Rikers Island in a plane can see what the design really is—a perfect Hammer & Sickle.

H. C. HOPSON: At least four more men will join you shortly, as those indicted in the Associated Gas & Electric cases . . . Ben Marden: Hannah Williams Dempsey, who was scheduled to perform at your Riviera, probably won't. She has attended none of the rehearsals for her comeback, because Jack is very endearing . . . Eleanor Roosevelt: Jimmy Roosevelt has an offer to join another studio and forego his plan to produce "The Bat." The salary mentioned is $75,000 a year . . .

HERBERT HOOVER: Alfred Lunt, who staged "There Shall Be No Night," refused a fee. The Theater Guild, co-producer of that show, contributed several thousand dollars worth of electrical and other equipment, without charge. Bob Sherwood, the author, donated his first four weeks' royalties to the Finnish Relief Fund and the Red Cross

HARVEY D. GIBSON: Lyle Talbot, the screen actor, visited the World's Fair Sunday. He rode through the fair grounds in a wheelchair—pushed by a young man who kept insisting: "I know you. I've seen your face somewhere." The pleased actor smiled. "Yes," I'm sure I've seen you on the screen," the chair pusher stated. "I'd know your name in a minute. Just give me the initials." "L. T." Talbot informed. "L. T.?" the other repeated. "Why, of course. How could I forget it? Lawrence Tibbett!"

MRS. HARRY RICHMAN: Your friend, the Ranee of Sarawak, is returning to England to rejoin her husband, the White Rajah, who contributed £100,000 to the Allied cause. The Rajah, who rules Sarawak, has a favorite decoration which he presents to those generals who serve him faithfully. It's called the long service medal. The Rajah just presented one to his wife because she's been married to him for 33 years

MARY PICKFORD: If you attend the Unted Artists convention this month, A. P. Giannini will tell you this sory—for he was present when it happened, at a meeting of the United Artists officials. One of them, who since has died, made a suggestion which Sam Goldwyn opposed. "You're a dirty crook," Goldwyn shouted . . . The accused man leaped at him across the table, but Giannini and the others separated the two. They advised Goldwyn to apologize to the man, and Sam finally agreed. He extended his hand, and said: "I shouldn't have called you a dirty crook—because I can't prove it."

Dog Days

Nearly every motion picture recently made has a dog in it somewhere. Perhaps it's the influence of "The Biscuit Eater" that has brought this about. Harry Sherman is one of the latest to cast a canine. Rex, a mutt of uncertain lineage, plays a vital role in "Hidden Gold," a Hopalong Cassidy production, starring William Boyd.

Gordon, Recovered, Back in Pictures

C. Henry Gordon returned to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer recently for the first time in two years—since he played in "Yellow Jack" with Robert Montgomery. Fully recovered from a serious illness that followed a sudden appendectomy, Gordon went before the cameras in the latest crime does not pay specialty, "Maternity Clinic Racket."

Louella O. Parsons

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, May 14 (INS).—You will probably see David Niven in a movie sooner than you expect. Samuel Goldwyn is planning to produce "Unders e a Boat," by the late Sidney Howard, in England as quick as Archie Mayo can cross the sea. Sam decided because of the frozen assets he has in England (it is impossible because of the war to take money out of Great Britain) that he will utilize the cash he has in the London banks to finance this British-made movie.

LOUELLA PARSONS

David is now with the Highland Light Infantry and it seems likely that he will now be able to get eight weeks leave of absence in which to make the picture, for it will probably be considered important from the business standpoint and studio space has been rented at Denham.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Andrea Leeds and Bob Howard will give C. S. (Seabiscuit) Howard the title of grandfather in late summer; 'tis rumored Darryl Zanuck offered Irving Berlin $150,000 for the film rights to his musical, "Louisiana Purchase;" the hottest romance in our town is Alyce Mills Davey and her ex-bridegroom, Bill Davey; the inside reason why the Spencer Tracys will visit Canada before they return to Hollywood is revealed. They want to buy a Canadian island and use it as a retreat.

Veloz and Yolanda are planning to come to Hollywood after the birth of their baby to join with the Arthur Murrays in opening a dance school; Garson Kanin and Betty Field are an everynight twosome; Kay Francis started something new when she wore her watch on her angle at Arrowhead Springs, saying it made a white spot on her wrist; Gene Tierney and Eddie Albert a dinner twosome at the House of Murphy; Joan Valerie, Edgar Bergen's favorite friend, spent her birthday in bed with a severe case of laryngitis; Freddie Bartholomew is nursing a sprained ankle suffered when he fell off a horse on location.

Victor Mature is showing Dorothy Kelly, a visiting debutante, the town; Dick Foran and Irene Delroy, former musical comedy actress, in ringside seats at Slapsie Maxies; Martha Raye's brother, Buddy, opens Wednesday at the Torch Club; Mary Pickford reaches here in time for the Doner's luncheon for the Jewish Home for the Aged at Ciro's Wednesday. She is honorary chairman and Elsa Maxwell is active chairman.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Leonard-Walker Combine Beats Tigers, 4-2

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Detroit, May 14.

The Preakness would have been worth $500 more to Pictor than any other horse in the race . . . because a Maryland law provides that the track must pay $500 additional to the breeder if a winner of a stake race within the State is Maryland-bred, which Pictor is . . . Sonny Workman, who rode the long shot Royal Man to eighth place in the Preakness after never being better than fifth, made the classic crack of the jockey interviews at the finish . . . the riders of the horses in the money had full explanations for what happened, but when Workman was asked for his views on the race he said, simply: "Who won?" . . . The finest tribute paid Col. Bradley at the finish of the race was when the tremendous crowd moved back respectfully to clear a path for the ailing owner of Bimelech as he made his exit . . . Bimelech's triumph lends weight to Pimlico's claim that better horses have won the Preakness than the Derby in recent years . . . no Derby winner ever went to the post at odds as high as the $6.70 to 1 posted against Gallahadion on Saturday.

POVICH

The Detroit Tigers broached a trade to the Nats the other day and were laughed down . . . the Tigers offered Outfielder Pete Fox for Cecil Travis . . . despite the fact that Fox can't even break into the Tigers' regular outfield and Travis is starring at third base for the Nats . . . When Joe McCarthy benched Frankie Crosetti for weak hitting the other day, it was the first time such a thing happened to Crosetti since he joined the Yankees . . . the benching, not the weak hitting . . . Crosetti had a .150 batting average for the first 20 games of the season . . . Gene Autry, Hollywood's singing cowboy was an infielder in an Oklahoma class B league before he discovered that he could capitalize on his voice . . . Tex Carleton, the no-hit pitcher the Dodgers rescued from the minor leagues, knows the ups and downs of baseball . . . in 1938, he was drawing a $13,000 salary with the Cubs . . . in 1939, he was with Milwaukee, getting $3,500.

Lightweight Champion Lew Jenkins is the fifth title holder developed by his manager, Hymie Caplin, but Jenkins will be the least profitable . . . Jenkins manages his own affairs and pays Caplin a straight salary instead of the customary managerial cut of 33 per cent . . . His Texas ranch, not his prize fight career, is Jenkins' chief concern . . . Before he becomes a main-eventer, he regarded his bouts as just another way of getting the money to buy fifty more cows . . . Jenkins will never fight Henry Armstrong in New York because a new ruling by the State Boxing Commission forbids bouts between champions of different weights . . . Armstrong is the welterweight champion, but if he meets Jenkins he'll have no noticeable weight advantage because the Texan considers 150 pounds his best fighting weight . . . Lou Ambers confesses that he is weary of fighting and will never again try to make the 135-pound lightweight limit . . . Joe Louis will train at the New York World Fair grounds for his next championship defense, at the request of Fair officials.

Without a Preakness, the Jamaica track last Saturday failed only by a few thousand to equal the mutuel handle of Pimlico . . . An option has been taken on Maryland property near Washington in the hope that dog-racing will be licensed in the Free State . . . A hope that is already doomed . . . Walter Johnson's congressional district in Maryland contains the vote of only one big league ball player, Charley Keller, of the Yankees, who has announced that he will cast it for Johnson in the November election . . . Lou Mendell, the Chicagoan who bought the football franchise of the Detroit Lions, didn't bother to learn if he had the support of the Detroit newspapers . . . And discovered only after his purchase of the team that it had no contract for the use of the Detroit ball park, the only place in Detroit which can hold a crowd of more than 12,000 . . . Sweetwater, Tex., is doing all right for itself with Sammy Baugh as the world's forward passing champion and Lew Jenkins as the world's lightweight champ.

Owner Tom Yawkey, of the Red Sox, now considers Cleveland as the team his club must beat out for the pennant, not the Yankees . . . Joe Gordon, of the Yankees, is holding forth at shortstop in pre-game practice, which gives rise to the suspicion that the Yanks will import Second Baseman Jerry Priddy from their Kansas City farm, move Gordon to short, and bench the light-hitting Frankie Crosetti permanently . . . Gordon played shortstop in college . . . When Hank Greenberg pulled up with a leg injury and was forced out of the Tigers' line-up, it merely saved Manager Del Baker the embarrasment of benching him . . . Greenberg wasn't hitting, and his outfielding was something less than was desired . . . it is the private opinion of the man called the greatest ball player who ever lived that Dominic DiMaggio, the Red Sox's $75,000 rookie, won't hit big league pitching.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, May 14.—Now that Bimelech has been beaten, the only unbeaten horse in the country is Green River. Bimelech is going to run again Saturday in the Withers, and this industry surprises a lot of horsemen. But Green River works every day. Not only that but he answers every bugle call, which makes eight answers per day at Belmont.

CONSIDINE

Green River is the pony used by Ken Force, handsome young ex-jockey who, respendent in his pink coat and black velvet hunting cap, leads the thoroughbreds to the post every race. Force is called an outrider, and his principal duty is to chase after and catch all thoroughbreds who run away, with or without their riders. In the mornings he assists at the workouts of the speedsters, breezing down the stretches leading a thoroughbred, or retrieving runaways, or thoroughbreds who have unseated their exercise boys.

Green River was given to him by Jock Whitney. Whitney imported him from Argentina as a polo pony. His real name is Pintado, and he is a big, spirited 8-year-old with a blonde mane and a blanket of white spots across his brown shoulders.

He was an orhery sort when Force got him, but the outrider has done wonders with him. He follows Force around the paddock like a big obedient puppy, will roll over at a command or do a dozen other tricks. He seems to be intensely proud of his new role in life, and Force swears that his mind is so much in his work that he (Force) never has to tell him to giddy-yap when a thoroughbred bolts down the track. Green River goes after him naturally.

For at least a quarter of a mile, Green River can keep up or ahead of any thoroughbred in the country. It is a stirring sight to see him and Force go after them. We saw them catch the maddened Flight Command one muddy day at Jamaica in 3/16th's of a mile, after Flight Command (with no jockey to encumber him) had gotten off with a 30-yard advantage. Green River and Force nabbed two other runaways at Jamaica, spearing them at top speed. They caught 14 in Florida this Winter—and 108 in the morning workouts at Florida. Never missed one, although they had to go a mile once to get a runaway 2-year-old filly in the proper position to stop her.

Force never gets up ahead of runaways. If he did that, they'd duck their heads and scoot off on a tangent and maybe kill themselves. He stays just a little behind, leans far up in his stirrups and gets the ying reins in a good grip. Green River does the rest, slowing down peacefully and quietly.

Tomorrow Force's "stable" will be enlarged to two ponies. Whitney is so pleased at the way he handled this irasible polo pony that he is giving him the famed Chinchilla, the 11-year-old Argentine pony which cost him $14,500. Force plans to alternate, using Green River one day and Chinchilla the next.

Opening day at Belmount came and went without a peep out of the counterfeiters. We hung around, hoping to see a counterfeit ticket, but the art seems to be on the wane. The boys had fair success at Jamaica, where they managed to manufacture and cash about $1,000 worth of phony tickets, but the year has been bad for them. The guy who last winter used the Hialeah gents room as the place where he doctored lossing tickets into winning ones got 18 months in the sneezer. The photo-engraver who set up shop in the corner of the Santa Anita grandstand, and turned out some beauts before they caught him, got three months.

The "tote" tickets at Belmont are next to impossible to copy in a hurry. Belmont's enormous number of ticket windows all have a light over them, which the man behind the grill can light surreptitiously whenever the bettor is trying to bet counterfeit money Pinkertons keep an eye out for these lights.

Oats: Belmont has two private betting rooms with $100 and $50 windows, and also windows for cashing checks . . . at this latter window big bettors may deposit as much as $10,000 in advance and draw against it . . . jig-saw puzzle specialists in the mutilated ticket department can patch together winning tickets torn ino dozens of pieces by irate bettors who thought ther horses lost, then discovered, after tearing their tickets, that they won . . . thousands of dollars went unclaimed at Jamaica, but the record for slow collection on a winning ticket was set at Pimlico in 1938 when a sailor dropped by Matt Daiger's office and cashed in a winning ticket on a 1924 race. He had been around the world seven times in the interim, and the boat never stopped at Pimlico.

Lewis Temporarily Laid Out in Collision With Campbell

Post Staff Writer

Detroit, May 14.—Dutch Leonard and Gerald Walker put on a two-man gang act for the Nats today, Leonard held the Tigers and Walker flailed away at 'em. The upshot was a 4-2 victory for Washington in the unhappy presence of 5,032 cash customers and 6,000 school-kid guests.

Leonard had some difficulty getting a grip on the Tigers at the outset. They knocked him loose from four hits and two runs in the first inning. But then he shut them out for the rest of the game while Walker jumped 'em. Gerald knocked in three of the four Washington runs.

He delivered the important blow of the game in the sixth inning at a time when the Nats were trailing, 2 to 1, and the prospects were very unhappy indeed. In this emergency, with Johnny Welaj on base, Walker rammed a home run into the left field bleachers to rearrange the figures in Washington's favor.

Walker Bats in Another

Just in case a one-run margin wouldn't suffice Leonard Walker belted in another run in the seventh inning. He singled to left with two out and that's how the score came to be not 3-2, but 4-2.

For the Nats it was, to coin an expression, sweet revenge. Because today the pitcher they liked was young Harold Newhouser, the rookie southpaw who had scored his fifth major league victory at the expense of the Nats two weeks ago. They pummeled Newhouser and Al Benton for 11 hits, with Walker, Zeke Bonura and Johnny Welaj each collecting a pair.

It all worked out very nicely for Bucky Harris' revamped line-up in its first test. Johnny Welaj, getting a chance to play, figured in three of the Nats' runs, and Cecil Travis, restored to the shortstop job, was positively sensational in his fielding. Lewis had only one chance at his new third base job. But the fielding hero of the day was, of all people, Zeke Bonura. Big Zeke backed

Champion Meets Frank Covelli, Chicago Challenger, in 15-Round Fight At Griffith Stadium, Opening Outdoor Season

By Al Hailey

The 1940 outdoor boxing season at Griffith Stadium will get off to a flying start tonight at 8:30 when Washington will see its third world's championship fight in local boxing history—a 15-round battle for the featherweight title between Petey Scalzo, the champion from New York, and Frank Covelli, challenger from Chicago.

Both boys concluded their training yesterday at Turner's Arena, with Scalze working three rounds and Covelli going through a light session with the jocular statement that he had "all the training needed to win the title from Scalzo."

Scalzo was installed as an 8-to-5 favorite over the challenger yesterday, although Covelli backers were not hard to find.

Promoter Joe Turner, thinking foundly back to Washington's first championship match he staged in 1936, predicted a crowd of between 5,000 and 10,000 for tonight's title fight.

Strangely enough, all three of Washington's championship battles have been in the featherweight division. Petey Sarron won the crown from Freddy Miller May 11, 1936, at Griffith Stadium before a throng that paid $36,000 to witness the business. Last fall at the ball park Joey Archibald successfully defended his crown against Harry Jeffra in a battle that ended on a discordant note, with the result that the National Boxing Association declared the featherweight title vacant.

Washington's long-suffering boxing public will get a chance to see what the fight game calls "class" tonight, however, when Scalzo, the

Maryland U. Plans New Grid Stadium

Service Commission Told of Project; Eppley Is Silent

The swift growth of the University of Maryland, from 522 students in 1920-21 to 3,524 for the current academic year, has precipitated plans for a new football stadium and enlarged athletic facilities at College Park, it was learned yesterday.

Frank Hazzard, secretary to Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of Maryland University, intestifying before the Public Service Commission in Baltimore, said arrangements were being made for a stadium to seat 26,000 persons, the Associated Press reported. Hazzard was appearing to report on the transportation facilities serving the university.

Hazzard revealed that Ritchie Coliseum will be enlarged and a new swimming pool built. The enlargement will be the addition of a new recreation building in which the pool will be laid. Construction of the stadium and recreation building, which is expected to stimulate intramural sports at the university, are to begin immediately upon approval of the plans.

Geary Eppley, director of athletics at Maryland, could furnish but few details when reached by The Post last night, saying "plans are not complete."

Eppley, divulging that plans for improved athletic facilities had been discussed for many months, said that the new stadium would be constructed on a site behind Ritchie Coliseum.

Several bids are being considered for construction of the stadium which would accommodate 16,000 more fans than the present Byrd Stadium, according to Eppley, but it has not yet been decided whether it will be built along the lines of a bowl as are most of the best modern plants.

Dodgers Beat Reds, 6-5, and Regain Lead

Crowd of 21,535 Sees Brooklyn Take 13-Inning Struggle; Mancuso Breaks Up Game With Long Fly, Scoring Moore

Brooklyn, May 14.—After three days in second place, the amazing Brooklyn Dodgers regained the National League lead today with a 13-inning 6-to-5 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

The winning run was scored off Joe Beggs when Gene Moore walked, Leo Durocher singled him to third and Pinchhitter Gus Mancuso lofted a fly to centerfield.

The spectacle was a thriller for 21,535 fans and made 27 innings the Reds have played in two games with a net result of one loss. The champions and the St. Louis Cardinals played 14 innings to an 8-8 tie yesterday.

Today's test started out as a duel between the Reds' Bucky Walters, undefeated with five victories, and Tex Carleton, who had pitched a no-hitter the last time he faced Cincinnati.

Walters Early Victim

The Dodgers went to work on Walters in the first inning with two runs on Dixie Walker's single. A pass to Babe Phelps and Dolph Camilli's triple to right center.

But the Reds tied up the score in the fourth—getting a run on three singles and another when Pete Coscarart threw wild trying to break up an attempted double steal.

This deadlock lasted for two innings until the Dodgers loaded the bases in the seventh on two singles and a walk and then counted twice when Walters gave another pass and Pinchhitter Herman Franks sent a fly to left.

The Reds pecked out a run in the eighth on Ernie Lombardi's double and Mike McCormick's single, tied up the tally in the ninth on a pinch single by Bill Hershberger, a sacrifice, an error and an infield out, and went out in front in the first of the tenth on Mike McCormick's homer into the leftfield stands.

Brooklyn met the challenge by scoring a run in their half of the

Colonial Five Slates Games At Riverside

By Jack Munhall

The first step in a rumored athletic tie-up between George Washington and Georgetown whereby they would jointly stage basketball double-headers at Riverside Stadium next year was taken yesterday when G. W. announced its 1940 home court games will be played at the wenty-sixth and D street plant.

Negotiations had been under way for several months between Director of Athletics Max Farrington and Coach Bill Reinhart, of George Washington, and S. G. Loeffler, owner of Riverside. The agreement was reached after Loeffler promised to equip the arena with a new hardwood floor, glass blackboards, of the type used at Madison Square Garden, and the proper lighting facilities for basketball.

George Washington, whose basketball teams have ranked with the best in the East for the last five years, has scheduled 12 games for Riverside next season, including top-notch intersectional engagements with Minnesota, Ohio State, Kansas State and Oklahoma A and M.

Wes Ferrell Gets Brooklyn Release; Macon Is Shipped

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 14.—The Brooklyn Dodgers today gave Wes Ferrell, veteran pitcher, his unconditional release and sent Max Macon, southpaw hurler, to their Montreal farm in the International League on option.

Manager Leo Durocher will need to release another player before midnight Thursday in order to get within the 25-man player limit. Since Jimmy Ripple was not in uniform today, suspicion was aroused that he was the other one to be cast adrift.

In another deal, the Dodgers sold Outfielder Goodie Rosen to Syracuse of the International League. He had been out on option with Columbus of the American Association.

Cincinnati Runner Stopped at Plate by 'Blimp' Phelps

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

When Lenny Frey, of the Reds, tried to break a 2-2 tie score in the seventh inning of game at Brooklyn yesterday, he found the mountainous form of Blimp Phelps, Dodgers' catcher, confronting him, ball in hand. Frey was out, the peg being relayed to the plate by Leo Durocher. The Dodgers went on to win the game in 13 innings, 6-5

Princeton Nine Snaps G. U.'s 5-Game Winning Streak, 3-2

Hoyas Miss Chances in 4th and 8th

Dieckelman Stars In Defeat, Holds Foe to Seven Hits, Makes Two Triples

By the Associated Press

Princeton, N. J., May 14.—Princeton University snapped a five-game winning streak of Georgetown's baseball outfit, 3-2, today in a game that was a duel of two rival players for top honors.

Tiger Shortstop Bill MacCoy had a busy day afield, but his main activity was at the plate, where he got four hits in four chances, including two triples, and stole home for the first Princeton run. He drove in the second score and again crossed the plate himself on a squeeze play in the sixth.

Georgetown Hurler Dick Dieckelman was the other star performer, getting two triples and a single in four trips and driving in the visitors' tallies in the third and ninth. He held Princeton to seven hits as his teammates reached Fred Rowe and Dan Carmichael for nine.

The Georgetown pitcher's second triple nearly sent the game into extra innings. He was 90 feet from home with no one out, but Carmichael tightened up and retired Georgetown on two infield outs and a long fly to leftfield.

The Hoyas blew a big chance in the fourth inning when they loaded the bases with two out and McFaddin fanned.

It was only the second loss in 11 starts for Georgetown this season.

HoyaFreshman Nine Defeats G.W. Frosh, 7-2

Dan Murphy's three-hit pitching plus a three-run homer in the seventh inning by Ken Engles' yesterday brought the Georgetown freshman baseball team a 7-2 decision over George Washington Frosh at the Hilltop.

A trio of triple plays, all of which involved First Baseman Koniszetaki, helped the Colonial yearlings hold down the score as Georgetown wrung the most out of its seven safeties off Silverman.

Murphy fanned eight batters, walked only one, while Silverman struck out four and passed three.

J. Smith, with three singles in five trips, was outstanding for Georgetown.

'Boner' Gives Cameo a Tie With Russell

Pinch-Runner Forgets To Run and Game Ends In a 7-7 Deadlock

When Pinch Runner Jacobs forgot to run on Pitcher "Si" Seidel's single in the seventh inning, Russell Motor nine was forced to be satisfied with a 7-7 deadlock in its Washington Post Industrial League game with Cameo Furniture yesterday on the Ellipse.

With one out in the seventh and last inning, Jacobs was put in to run for Jenkins, who had hit safely and gone to second on Cameo Pitcher Printz's error. He evidently had some doubts about Seidel's hit, and held second as Russell's chance for a victory after three losses evaporated.

Seidel did everything in his power to win, however. His home run in the fifth inning with a mate aboard tied the count for his team at 7-7. He took over on the mound with his team behind, 7-5, and shackled the hot Cameo club with a single safety in three innings.

Sparkplugs of Cameo's attack were Albert and Harris, outfielders, who accounted for four of the team's 10 hits. Albert had the only triple of the game and Harris the only double.

Entries Close for U. S. Open Golf Title Play

New York, May 14 (AP).—Entries closed tonight for the 1940 United States Open golf championship, to be played at the Canterbury Golf Club, Warrensville, Ohio, June 6-8, and indications were that the total number would be the sixth largest in the history of the tournament.

Although approximately 1,160 entries have been received, the exact number will not be determined until officials decide whether all entries are acceptable. The record of 1,402 was set in 1937. Last year there were 1,193 entries.

Jake Powell Is Out For 2 or 3 More Weeks

New York, May 14 (U.P.).—Jake Powell, New York Yankee outfielder, will remain out of play for two or three more weeks, it was announced today after he had a physical examination.

He suffered a concussion during an exhibition game when he ran into a fence while trying for a fly ball.

Foxx's Homer Beats Chisox in 10th, 7-6

Boston's Victory in First Western Game Increases Its Lead to 2½ Games; Tabor Also Hits Homer, Scoring Two Mates

By the Associated Press

Chicago, May 14.—A tenth-inning homer by Jimmy Foxx, his second of the game and eighth of the season, gave Boston a 7-to-6 victory over the Chicago White Sox today in the first game of their Western invasion.

The victory increased Boston's first-place lead to 2½ games over Cleveland, which lost to Philadelphia.

The Red Sox scored twice in the second inning, one of the runs coming on Foxx's first home run of the game. In the fourth Jim Tabor's two-run round-tripper gave the visitors a 4-0 lead.

The White Sox got into the game in the fourth when Eric McNair doubled with the bases loaded to account for three runs. After Boston added another tally in the fifth Chicago solved Lefty Grove with a two-run attack in the sixth, tying the score.

A run in the seventh put Chicago ahead but Boston tied it in the eighth on Foxx's walk, Joe Cronin's single and a fly to McNair in short rightfield.

Tigers Option Hutchinson; Down to Limit

$75,000 Pitcher Sent to Buffalo; Thomas Released

Detroit, May 14.—The Detroit Tigers today got down to the 25-man limit that goes into effect in the major leagues at midnight Wednesday by sending Fred Hutchinson and Luther Thomas to the minor leagues subject to recall on 24 hours' notice. Hutchinson, for whom the Tigers paid approximately $70,000 before the start of the 1939 season, was sent to Buffalo, of the International League. Hailed as a sensation in the Pacific Coast League, Hutchinson was sent to Toledo, of the American Association, early last season, returning late in the year. This season enemy batters have hit his offerings hard.

Thomas, Philadelphia Athletics' castoff, won seven games for Detroit in a relief role last year. He made several unsuccessful relief appearances this season. He goes to Beaumont, of the Texas League.

Both pitchers are right-handers.

Reds Protest Brooklyn Loss On Technicality

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, May 14.—Manager Bill McKechnie of the Cincinnati Reds announced tonight he had protested today's game with the Dodgers, which Brooklyn won, 6 to 5, in 13 innings.

The protest revolved around a play in the seventh inning when Umpire Bill Klem apparently was struck by a batted ball. Leo Durocher had opened the inning with a single and advanced to second on a sacrifice. Then Charley Gilbert hit a grounder that seemed to bounce off Klem's leg. Second Baseman Lonnie Frey fielded the ball, but Gilbert beat the throw to first and Durocher moved to third. Both runners ultimately scored.

McKechnie contended Durocher should have been held to second base under the rule that a base runner cannot advance when a batted ball strikes an umpire unless to make room for the batter at first base.

McKechnie said Klem denied he was struck by the ball.

G.U. Prep Relieves St. Albans of Prep Net Championship

Georgetown Prep succeded St. Albans as prep school tennis champion of the District and vicinity yesterday when it defeated Landon, 3½ to 1½, to complete its four-game schedule without a loss. A second varsity match between the teams, played at the same time at the Garrett Park courts, resulted in a similar score in favor of the Little Hoyas.

Alford won the only encounter of the league encounter for Landon, turning back Gannon, 6—3, 7—5. Georgetown Prep took three matches, the final doubles match involving B. Barrett and Gannon against Brawner and Alford being called a tie when each team held once set as darkness fell.

COMPLETE RESULTS:

Prep League Match: Singles—Titus (G. P.) defeated Perkins, 7—5, 6—2; Kuntz (G. P.) defeated Amussen, 6—1, 6—3; Alford (L.) defeated Gannon, 6—3, 7—5.

Doubles—Titus and Kuntz (G. P.) defeated Perkins and Amussen, 6—2, 6—2; Gannon and B. Barrett (G. P.) tied with Brawner and Alford, 6—3, 7—9.

Second Varsity Match: Singles—S. Barrett (G. P.) tied with Brawner, 3—6, 7—5; Baker (L.) defeated B. Barrett, 6—1, 6—3; Cremen (G. P.) defeated Jackson, 6—2, 7—5, 8—6.

Al Simmons' Hit for A's Beats Indians

Pinch Single in 9th Brings 9-to-7 Victory To Philadelphians

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, May 14.—Al Simmons' ninth-inning pinch single with the bases full gave Philadelphia two runs and a 9-7 victory in its series opener with the Cleveland Indians today, the Athletics shelling Bob Feller from the mound and pounding two other hurlers for a total of 15 hits.

Feller retired in the fourth after having given up seven runs, five of them in the second when Wally Moses homered with two men on bases. Joe Dobson was charged with the Cleveland defeat, nevertheless, his teammates coming from behind to tie the score.

Mulcahy Hurls Shutout Ball, Phils Win, 4-0

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, May 14.—Right-hander Hugh Mulcahy shut out the St. Louis Cardinals with nine hits and drove in 3 runs today in the Phillies' 4-to-0 triumph over their one-place superiors in the National League standings.

Before 1,500 at Shibe Park for the first game of a series, the Phils' moundsman hung up his third win of the season. He's been beaten once.

A pass to Merrill May and singles by Bill Atwood and Mulcahy gave the victors their first run in the second inning. In the third, Arnovich walked, May doubled, Heinie Mueller walked and singles by Atwood and Mulcahy added 3 more runs.

Gonzaga Golfers Defeat Rockville

Rockville High School golfers were virtually eliminated from the running in the Prep School League yesterday when they were defeated by Gonzaga, 5-4, at Woodmont.

Dave Ross, No. 1 player for Rockville, shot a sizzling 75 to pace scorers. Rockville lost what proved to be the deciding point of the match on a default.

Ross (R.) defeated Deuchart, 3 and 1; Cullen (G.) won by default; best ball, Rockville, 2 and 1. McElfish (R.) defeated Fitzgerald, 4 and 3; Rita (G.) defeated Pease, 5 and 4; best ball, Gonzaga, 1 up. Quinn (G.) defeated Carl, 7 and 6; Cherrington (G.) defeated Dillon, 4 and 3; best ball, Gonzaga, 2 and 1.

Pirates Rally And Win, 7-2, Over Giants

Fletcher's Home Run Scores Four as Bucs Snap New York Streak

By the Associated Press

New York, May 14.—The Pittsburgh Pirates, who had won only two of their previous 15 games, staged a five-run sixth-inning rally today to snap a six-game string of victories for the New York Giants, 7 to 2.

Until the sixth Lefty Cliff Melton, always a Pirate bugaboo, had them eating out of his hand. He struck out five and allowed only one hit. But the first three Pirates at bat in the sixth singled to load the bases, Arky Vaughan waited out a walk, forcing across a run, and Elbie Fletcher homered for four more.

Pittsburgh got another off Walter Brown in the seventh on a single, a sacrifice, an infield out and a wild pitch and three hits off Roy Joiner in the eighth were good for another run.

Klinger, in getting his first victory since opening day, held the

Dunkelberger Late Entry for Chevy Chase Invitation Today

Strong Field Seeks Honors; 100 Entered

Peacock Favorite, Shoots Practice Round of 71; Rippy Also on His Game

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Topped by the late entry of Bobby Dunkelberger, the Southern amateur champion from Greensboro, N. C., in addition to a dozen other out-of-town amateurs already entered, the thirtieth annual Chevy Chase Invitation Tournament opens today with one of the best fields in history competing for the famed Taft and Sherman trophies.

Dunkelberger, also the Carolina State champion and ranked as one of the best simon-pures in the country two years ago when he won the North and South Amateur, French Amateur and National Pro-Amateur match play with Frank Moore as a partner, played the course for the first time yesterday and was satisfied with a six-over-par 75.

Post entries boosted the field near the 100 mark and three-fourths of the entries tested the 6,601-yard par 69 layout yesterday in practice rounds.

Peacock Favorite

Roger Peacock, now firmly in the entries tested the 6,607-yard par vorite due to his sensational scoring streak of late, despite the entrance of Dunkelberger, surprised no one by missing a short putt on the eighteenth for a 70, 1 over perfect figures.

The next best practice score reported was a 71 by Jim Gipe, Beaver Dam, while Claude Rippy, shooting for Harry Pitt's record of three straight championships, was well on his game with a 72. Rippy and District Amateur Champion Ralph Bogart were beaten by Buck Worsham and Eddie Bean, however, as Bogart was in the 80's.

Raymond Guest, the famed polo star, wired his withdrawal from New York due to an injured hand, but despite this the visiting players represent a real threat to Washington's previous domination of the tournament.

Greene Off Game

Hickman Greene, the 1935 champion from New Orleans, played and was a little off his game, but Frank Allan, finalist the last three years from Pittsburgh, Pa., reported a 75. The two Georgetown freshmen, Dick Hearty and John Donohue, of Sioux City, tested the course, as did Walter Pedersen, of New York, and Lionel J. Noah, jr., of Stamford, Conn., who was only 1 over par on the out nine.

Bogart and Earle Skinker, of Columbia, are the threats among the younger players, while others who must be given recognition include the rapidly improving Charley Malone, Volney Burnett, M. Parker Nolan, and former Champion Ralph Quinter, jr., in addition to the ones mentioned above.

The watered fairways and extreme back tees are not expected to give up a score of better than par for medal honors in th qualifying round today, while it is expected that it will take 76 or better to make the championship sixteen. The first two rounds of match play are scheduled tomorrow and the semifinals and finals on Friday.

The pre-tournament talk centers around Peacock as the Middle Atlantic champion is apparently on top of his game at present and no one in this section has even beaten him at his best. Rippy, and the best of the out-of-town players, Dunkelberger and Allan, are right behind him in favoritism in case of an upset.

Post entries and changes in starting times:

9:45, Buddy Dunkelberger (Greensboro) and Raleigh Reece (Biltmore Forest); 12:35, Julian Murphy (Capital) and R. W. Fleming (Chevy Chase); 9:35, William Fox (Argyle) and Fred Murray (Argyle); 11:55, Pete Scarla (Indian Spring) and Arthur Todd (Indian Spring); 2:00, M. P. Morse (Chevy Chase) and R. P. Dunn (Chevy Chase); 1:10, Commander C. A. Barton (Army and Navy) and Beverly Mason (Chevy Chase); 11:35, F. J. Schrider (Kenwood) and R. A. Phillipson (Woodmont).

W.-L. Scores 11 in Eighth, Routs Bethesda

Bethesda-Chevy Chase High diamond team came apart at every seam late in its game with Washington-Lee High yesterday, the Little Generals grinding out 11 runs in the eighth inning to walk away with a 17-5 decision on the Bethesda lot.

Beaten, 4-2, in an earlier engagement, W.-L. took a full measure of revenge as it combined five singles, two doubles, seven Bethesda errors, two walks and a hit batsmen for its big inning. Fourteen men went to bat, three of them scoring twice before the side was retired.

At the end of the inning, both coaches agreed it would be better for all concerned to call off hostilities.

Bethesda gave every indication in the first frame that the hot streak with which it downed Georgetown Prep, 24-6, Monday was still functioning. It tallied three times. Larry Eaton's home run with Johnny Shumate on base accounted for two runs and Shumate's single the other.

It wasn't until the fourth that W.-L. cracked the scoring column, but five runs resulted then. From there on Bethesda never got even again.

Scalzo, Covelli Ready for Action Tonight at Ball Park

Petey Scalzo (right), world's featherweight champion, meets Frankie Covelli in the ring for the first time—but it's unofficial. Scalzo and the challenger posed yesterday at Turner's Arena after final workouts for their 15-round date tonight at Griffith Stadium knockout artist, faces Covelli, who wears down his opponents with relentless body-punching.

The 22-year-old New York Italian in his last fight was floored twice by Ginger Foran, who was something like a 10-to-1 underdog, but came off the floor to knock out Foran in the seventh round.

That performance leads several observers to believe that unless Scalzo knocks out Covelli, which is a strong possibility, that the Chicagoan will win a decision on points because of alleged greater lasting power. Covelli is a veteran of 15-round fights, while Scalzo will be making his debut at such things tonight.

Scalzo, four years younger than Covelli, also has the advantage of height and reach. Both boys are expected to weigh about 125.

The N. B. A. is donating a gold belt denoting championship to the winner of tonight's battle, to be kept only when the fighter is champion, incidentally.

While Scalzo's record of 43 knockouts in 74 fights and only three losses outshines Covelli's past performances, the Chicagoan has a number of points to his credit. He defeated Petey Sarron when first starting out in the fight game, about eight years ago, and defeated Sixto Escobar just six weeks ago. He also has a knockout victory over Jimmy Perrin and is currently ranked No. 5 on the featherweight ladder.

If Scalzo wins tonight the N. B. A. and Maryland may call a truce and permit the Joey Archibald-Harry Jeffra "title fight" winner in Baltimore Monday night to meet Scalzo for the legitimate championship. Maryland and New York still recognize Archibald as featherweight champion.

The supporting eight-rounders for tonight's fight bring out Buddy Scott, local heavyweight, against Felix Del Paoli, of Philadelphia, and Carl Guggino, Washington lightweight, against Jackie Carter, of Miami. Four-rounders pit Ray Landis against Indian Gonzales, of Key West, Fla., in Landis' local debut as a professional fighter, and Rex Romus, Pete Reilly's heavyweight "find," against Joe Zwick, of New Haven.

Reilly, manager of Scalzo, and Issy Kline, Covelli's manager, arrived yesterday to look out for their boys' interests—37½ per cent of the gate for Scalzo and 12½ per cent for Covelli.

Runaway Scores Mark Women Team Matches

Manor Swamps Army and Navy, 10-2; Chevy Chase Routs Woodmont, 11½ to 2½; Kenwood Blanks Columbia, 12-0

Runaway matches were again the order of the day in the Women's District Golf Association first team matches at Washington Golf and Country Club as four losing teams won but 2½ points out of a possible 48.

Manor's leading team met its first strong opponent, Army and Navy, but the score was little different than the rest as the Norbeck golfers defeated the service club, 10 to 2.

The defending champion Chevy Chase octet lost a half-point in the final bracket, winning 11½ to ½ over Woodmont, while Kenwood blanked Columbia 12 to 0, and Congressional shutout Argyle by the same score.

Chevy Chase swamped Army and Navy, 8½ to ½ in the second team play at Kenwood to take a commanding lead, while the third teams were idle and will conclude their season Friday at Woodmont with Congressional and Manor meeting for the title. Other second team scores included Manor and Congressional playing to 4½ to 4½ tie and Columbia and Washington also playing to a deadlock.

Mrs. M. T. Torlinski and Mrs. L. H. Hedrick, of Army and Navy, earned a 1½ point draw with Manor's second team of Mrs. L. G. Pray and Mrs. J. F. Dowdall for the most points Manor has lost in a single match this season. Mrs. Torlinski won the last hole for the halve after the match was close all the way.

Manor, 10; Army and Navy, 2

Mrs. Walter R. Stokes and Marion Brown (Manor) scored 2½ points to ½ for Mrs. M. K. Barroll and Mrs. J. M. Lentz (Army and Navy). Mrs. L. G. Pray and Mrs. J. F. Dowdall (Manor) scored 1½ points to 1½ for Mrs. M. T. Torlinski and Mrs. L. H. Hedrick (Army and Navy). Mrs. H. J. Simons and Mrs. J. R. Daily (Manor) scored 3 points to 0 for Mrs. W. M. Spiders Beat V. M. I., Claim State Crown

Richmond Wins, 6-0, Behind 4-Hit Work Of Pitcher Butcher

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., May 14.—The Richmond Spiders claimed the Southern Conference baseball championship after defeating the V. M. I., 6 to 0, here today behind the four-hit pitching of Ned Butcher.

In ending their Southern Conference schedule undefeated the Spiders accomplished what none of the other loop schools were able to do. North Carolina, a strong contender for championship honors, fell from the undefeated class yesterday at the hands of Wake Forest, 6 to 3.

The victory was his sixth of the season and the fourth shutout for Ned Butcher, who pitched masterfully, scattering four hits over as many innings and fanning 13 Cadets. His rival, Rutherford Spessard, also was stingy with hits, but the Spiders coupled six safeties with the seven walks he issued to sew up the ball game in a hurry. Butcher gave no free tickets to first.

Plans Complete For Armstrong, Jenkins Bout

No Title at Stake in 12-Rounder July 17; $300,000 Gate Seen

By the United Press

New York, May 14.—The "dream fight" of current pugilism was arranged today when contracts were approved for a 12-round brawl between Lew Jenkins, Texas thunder bolt, and Henry Armstrong, the California brown buzz-saw, at the Polo Grounds July 17.

Although young Jenkins is the sensational new lightweight champion and veteran Armstrong is welterweight king, no title will be involved because the scheduled distance is three rounds less than the championship 15.

"We can forget about titles in this bout," he said. "The fight's the thing. It should be the greatest fight of its kind since the Leonard-Tendler thrillers in the early 1920's. And it should draw more than $300,000."

The contracts, approved at today's meeting of the New York Commision, specify that neither opponent can weight more than 140 pounds. Hymie Caplin, Jenkins' manager, and Eddie Mead, Armstrong's pilot, had wrangled over this weight limit since Jenkins wrested the 135-pound crown from Lew Ambers at Madison Square Garden with a third-round knockout Friday night. Jenkins scaled only 132 pounds for that engagement, and hence Manager Caplin insisted that Armstrong, the 147-pound ruler, agree to pare down to 138. But Mead demanded 140 pounds for Armstrong and got it. He claimed it would weaken Hammering Henry to come down to 138.

'Ole Pete,' Down on His Luck, Is Hired by a Former Rookie

Player Who Couldn't Stick in Majors When Alexander Was a Wonder, Gives Him Job

By the Associated Press

Detroit, March 14.—Grover Cleveland Alexander has been given a much-needed job by a man who was his teammate on the Phillies 30 years ago when Alex was a rookie wonder and the other fellow was just a plain rookie who couldn't stick.

That benefactor is Clarence E. Lehr, president of the Detroit Racing Association. In 1911 he was trying to make good as utility infielder with the Philadelphia National League Club. He didn't.

Alexander

Lehr's roommate was Alexander, another 1911 rookie. He won 28 games and all but pitched the club to the National League pennant.

Lehr said he had heard Alexander was advertising for a job. He offered him a position as gatekeeper at the Detroit race track. Alexander accepted.

"He seemed tickled to get it," said Lehr.

"I haven't seen Alex since I quit the Phillies in the fall of 1911," Lehr said.

Lehr recalled that the Phillies of that year was a powerful club. Charley Dooin was manager and regular catcher. The infield was composed of Fred Luderus, Otto Knabe, Mickey Doolan and Hans Lobert at first, second short and third, respectively, and in the outfield were Sherwood Magee, Dode Paskert and John Titus.

"Besides Alex we had such pitchers as George Chalmers, Earl Moore and Bob Ewing," he said.

Erada Wins Charles Town Feature in Spite of Hard Luck

Closes Fast To Score by Two Lengths

Son of Masked Gen'l, Block and Knocked, Proves Mettle; Pays $3.80; 3,500 Fans

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., May 14.—"Here comes Bimelech" shouted a stable boy as a horse bounded up on the outside and went on to win by two lengths. W. S. Sprague's Erada never will be able to drink out of Bimelech's bucket but he did run a remarkable race in today's feature. The 6-year-old son of Masked Marvel II, overcame heaps of trouble and was right there to take care of the favorite players at the end of the test of a mile and an eighth.

Erada, with Jockey Willie Dufford aboard, finished ahead of H. B. Langdon's Aufoin and D. Haslup's Playdema, plus four others. However, Erada had to be pounds and many lengths the best to turn the trick. He was knocked, blocked and took a beating but proved his mettle.

He was one of the several red hot favorites to win on the Tuesday program here and paid a mere $3.80. His time for the long route was 1:54, a second and three-fifths over the track record held by Easter Holiday. The day was ideal for the sport and the track was in excellent condition. Some 3,500, perhaps the majority from Washington, were in the stands.

Jockey Dufford couldn't do anything right with Erada in the early stages. The gelding was shuffled back to last going to the first turn. Chilly Ebbie, Limerick and Nimble Pins were doing the bulk of the front running at the time.

On the backstretch, Dufford attempted to send Erada through on the inside, but the hole he picked closed up when he was half in it. Dufford was forced to pull back to last again. He then sent the game gelding to the outside and he was carried slightly wide. Dufford kept pushing, however, and Erada had the stuff it took.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LITTLE HARPIST, $10.00, $5.80, $4.20; BELLTHORN, $15.20, $8.00; MARGIE WRACK, $4.20.

LITTLE HARPIST, slow to get under way, came to outside for racing room approaching stretch and wore down BELLTHORN to win going away. BELLTHORN was rushed to top in opening furlong, was hard ridden and held on gamely. MARGIE WRACK was forced to run between horses throughout and tired in final 20 yards. SMALL CHANGE could not keep up early, saved ground entering stretch and tired suddenly.

THIRD RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:32. Off 3:32½. Winner, H. R. Dulaney's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LEVENT, $4.80, $3.40, $3.00; NANCI'S BEST, $5.60, $3.80; LADY DOCTOR, $5.40.

LEVENA raced wide at turns throughout, wore down LADY DOCTOR to take command and drew out under drive. NANCI'S BEST was close up from start and closed gamely on inside. LADY DOCTOR set a good early pace, but weakened gradually after being displaced. DIN came through on inside rail to better position and was eased up when in close quarters approaching finish. KIN MAG went evenly. SCHLEY GINNA had early speed and faltered. The others were outrun.

Daily Double, LITTLE HARPIST and LEVENA, Paid $29.40

FOURTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:03. Off 4:04½. Winner, E. G. Davis' ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—YANKEE LAD, $6.40, $4.20 $3.00; CREDENCE, $9.00, $4.00; REMOLEE, $3.20.

YANKEE LAD, steadied along while saving ground in early stages, was taken up when in close quarters approaching stretch and closed with a bold rush to be up in concluding stride. CREDENCE was forwardly placed from start, was hard ridden to take command in stretch and was tiring rapidly approaching end. REMOLEE was well placed from start and came willingly at end. ACE OF TRUMPS made up ground from a slow beginning.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place same. Went to post 4:33½. Off 4:34. Winner, W. S. Sprague's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ERADA, $3.80, $2.80, $2.40; AU FOIN, $4.40, $2.80; PLAYDEMA $2.80.

ERADA, much the best, was steadied along well back for half, was shut off while attempting to get through on inside, came around horses with bold rush and won easily. AU FOIN, within striking distance from start, opened a good lead turning for home, but was no match for winner. PLAYDEMA, taken up leaving gate, raced wide and weakened in final test. HEART PLAY could not keep up. CHILLY EBBIE, NIMBLE PINS and LIMERICK were used up in forward running under hustling tactics.

SIXTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:02. Off 5:02½. Winner, Mrs. J. B. Bond's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—POMARY, $4.20 $3.30, $2.60; GROUCHER'S BOY, $6.20, $4.20; DEODO, $5.00.

POMARY, shaken up to circle horses and take command going to first turn, was steadied along to stretch and swerved in final drive. GROUCHER'S BOY, first away and closest to POMARY'S pace, was blocked when attempting to move up on inside of winner and closed gamely. DEODO was hard ridden while forward factor and weakened at end. SUNNY ROSE came willingly in final furlong. ABBOT'S LARK had no excuses. NUGGET was outrun. RUNOUT had speed for 3 furlongs and faded.

SEVENTH RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:30. Off 5:30½. Winner, E. Nelson's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLIND BROOK, $12.80, $8.60, $6.80; HURDY GURDY, $11.20, $6.60; KISSIN KID, $8.60.

BLIND BROOK within striking distance from start, came through on inside rail entering stretch and under extreme pressure, was up in concluding strides. HURDY GURDY took command in opening furlong, withstood challenges from STEALING HOME and JUSTA JIMMIE and barely failed to last. KISSIN KID was forced to race in close quarters along rail, came to outside for racing room and weakened right at close. SEDATE went to knees directly after break and rallied mildly in closing stages.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:56½. Off 5:57. Winner, H. B. Langdon's b. g. (4), by Groucher—Double On. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:48.

SOME GROUCHER saved much ground while forwardly placed in early stages, came around EARLY BROOM when placed to drive to get to front and held on gamely under light punishment. BRIGHT CHANCE was well placed from start, moved up menacingly when placed to drive, but hung in final 20 yards. DARBY DU was hard ridden and had no excuses. EARLY BROOM set pace under restraint, but faltered when shaken up.

Bill Bennings

At The Post

Selections at Charles Town.

Dear Al: The crowd gasped when Danzig, a 2-year-old making her first start, jumped the inside fence and tossed Willie Obert, America's oldest active jockey, into a heap. Obert lay still. The ambulance was sent for him and he was rushed to the track hospital. When he arrived, Obert sat up, shook his head and exclaimed: "Thanks for the buggy ride, doc! How about it? Don't you always give a drink with these ambulance trips?" Obert was unhurt, he said; but I have a sneaky suspicion that the old bones will be a bit sore this morning. Well, the Bennings stable had its first winner when Clymene got home in surprising fashion. And is my face red! As I have said before, they will always be trying. If you like them, bet them. Clymene was last on the also eligible list and, honestly, I did not believe she would get into action. Then again, Trainer Cook was only lukewarm on her. You can ask Art Brown and Arch McDonald about that. In addition, she was announced as scratched early in the morning and the stable boys gave her all the feed she would eat before it was discovered she would be in the race. It took a perfect ride from Jockey Buddy Root to get her home and she was plenty tired in the stretch. Today the stable sends Chief Evergreen to the post. He has been doing a lot of eating and if he runs half as well as he chews, he should be right in there. C. M. Feltner is going to take six horses to Delaware Park next week, among them Red Idol and Walter Light, winners here on opening day. This Dehli Dan, the son of a jumper, Dan IV, looks like a real good 2-year-old. Confucius lost $2 yesterday and the B. R. is now $14. For today, he say bet my deuce on Irish Moon.

BILL.

First Race—Capstick was well backed while racing in better company at Pimlico and may be the right one in this rather open affair. Royal Veil likes the course and is dangerous. Paper Girl went well here last year and could be a threat.

Second Race—Trostar has been away from the races a long time and has had a very bad leg. If the underpinning lasts, this could be the right one. Golden Key goes good over this oval and deserves attention. Counora gets in light and is due to be prominent.

Third Race—Bubbleworth performed in good fashion on the milers and belongs in a field of this kind. I see no reason for mistakes. Chief Evergreen will carry the Bennings colors but I don't believe he can handle the top one. Depinard for the minor money.

Fourth Race—Stromming was a good one hereabouts last year. Has trained well and I'm going to string along. Blox is in good hands and promises to be close up. Unlawful to take care of the others.

Fifth Race—Blablah breaks off the rail and has early speed enough to get to the front. Palumbo will do the booting and this one should take the top money. Evening Light was unfamiliar with the track here opening day. I look for improvement. Likly Lad has speed and will be close if taken off the reserve list.

Sixth Race—The new starting gate helped Frank Brooke last year and he may forget his bad post acting. Appears slightly best. Prince Turley has the speed but pulled up lame last out. Accidental had poor form at Bowie but could be close with these.

Seventh Race—Roman Boy is just about the champ over the short sprint course. Appears capable of carrying the 130 pounds. Dark Ace gets in this with a feather and should be prominent. Marin should go well with the light assignment.

Eighth Race—The Swagman appears best suited of those gathered for this event. Likes the route and the track. Durwrack will have something to say about the purse distribution and will be hard to beat if track conditions should change. Backintime could be the third one.

Sub Race—if this event is used, I'll take Justacanter, Gray Gleam and Freds Warning.

Horses to Watch At Charles Town

VANISHING HOPE—This one packs plenty of early speed and could win here.

RICHMOND PRIDE—A half in 0:49 1-5 says this one is ready for the best.

BRIGHT LIGHT—Turned in a powerful workout here yesterday morning.

Appraisers Discuss FAA Low Cost Plan

Builder and Broker Speak at Session Of Two Chapters

By Thomas M. Cahill.

New low cost house financing of the Federal Housing Administration was considered last night from viewpoints of that agency, mortgage loan broker and builder, by Washington and Baltimore Chapters, Society of Residential Appraisers, at Ambassador Hotel. Leaders in the forum were F. George Clendaniel, chief valuator, local FHA office; Oliver M. Walker, mortgage loan broken, and Samuel S. Spruce, builder.

Discussing houses selling from $2,500 to $3,500, Mr. Clendaniel explained two plans of insuring mortgages on these. One called title 1, class 3, provides a maximum insured loan of $2,500 at 4½ per cent, amortized over a period of 15 years. Under it, purchasers can pay 5 per cent of the selling price as a cash down payment and execute insured mortgages for the balance, if not more than $2,500. With this type, credit investigation of purchasers is left to lending institutions.

Ground Leases Help

By using this plan, the maximum sale price is arbitrarily set at approximately $2,650, or the $2,500 mortgage plus $150, cash down-payment, but, he reminded, a very important factor which allows the builder to increase his total sales price and still use this $2,500 mortgage, is the use of ground rents. Use of ground leases is permitted by law and is now being used by several developers in the Washington area."

Mr. Clendaniel gave an example of financing a $3,000 house, in which the purchaser pays 5 per cent cash down payment, $150; then gives a ground lease (usually representing approximately actual value of the land), for $350, at 6 per cent a year rental, and assumes an FHA insured mortgage for $2,500. This is a 15-year loan, and total payments including ground rent, interest and curtailment of insured mortgage, taxes and insurance would be about $27 a month.

Another plan is the regular "title 11, section 203," calling for 10 per cent cash down payment and a 25-year loan. This reduces total monthly but calls for larger down payments. The same $3,000 house could be sold for $300 down, a $2,700 mortgage and no ground rent. Total monthly payments on this basis would only be about $22, he said.

Walker Gives Views

Mr. Walker, president of Walker & Dunlop, Inc., mortgage loan correspondents, declared he favored the small house as an experiment from a social standpoint, in that it brought better living accommodations within reach of families in low income brackets, citing success of his company in handling FHA loans under title II.

"Everybody criticized title II loans as unworkable when first introduced," he said, "but today they are considered the safest form of investment. FHA made those mortgages liquid, and will do the same under title I. I see no reason why this plan should not work, and am not inclined to the view of the same skeptics who viewed the original FHA mortgage plan with alarm."

Mr. Walker believed there is a moral responsibility on the part of mortgage bankers to do their part in contributing to better living standards by encouraging movements in this direction. They also have a responsibility to their clients in protecting their interests, he added.

In the opinion of Mr. Spruce, low cost housing is here to stay, research of national lumber organizations having demonstrated that it is not only possible but practicable to construct homes of quality at very modest price. Wilfred H. Blanz, secretary of American Building Association and president of the local chapter, presided. Thornton W. Owen, chapter secretary-treasurer, was in charge of arrangements.

Allied War Reverses Send List Tumbling, Leaders Closing Down 2 to 19 Points; Record Number of Issues Traded in Day

New York, May 14.—Values in security markets and major commodity markets gave ground today step by step with the retreat of the Allied military forces before the onslaught of the German army.

There was no panic, but hysteria ruled in financial circles. Investors, even though convinced within themselves that the breaking of the Dutch defenses did not mean the culmination of the war, sought to turn their holdings of stocks, bonds and staples into cash. There is only one way for a market to go when such a situation presents itself.

The results: The largest number of individual stock issues ever traded in on the New York Stock Exchange appeared on the ticker. It was 1,049, surpassing the previous record made on October 19, 1937, of 1,046 issues.

Speculative leaders on the big board faded away 1 to 11 points with a few of the higher priced issues dropping even more, such as du Pont, off 19¼ points. Each item of news of further German progress brought a new wave of liquidation.

Volume Runs High

In both stocks and bonds the volume of business executed on the stock exchange exceeded anything back to September of last year, when the markets boiled on the invasion of Poland. Stock turnover was 3,680,410 shares and the bond volume was $12,421,000.

New lows for the year were made by all composite averages, stocks, bonds and curb stocks. The big board's stock index was off 2.74 points, the largest daily break since October 18, 1937.

United States Government bonds joined the parade into lower territory, dropping more than a point in some instances. Foreign obligations added declines of 1 to 5 points to the serious breaks of the previous day.

The selling was from all over the country, and was based on the possibility that Germany has won the war. This appears to be a case of jumping at conclusions, it was felt by the quieter minds.

If the reverses sustained by the Allies in Holland mean that a made-in-Germany peace is nearby, then truly present prices are still too high. If the war goes on and there is to be a day when the Allies will be able to turn back the invasion, then the present stock market is studded with bargains.

In the stock market the decline was accentuated by the touching off of stop loss orders and by the calls for additional margin. There were only feeble attempts to rally.

Blue Chips Lead Slide

Some of the street's most venerable issues led in the day's decline. United States Steel, for instance, plummeted to a new low of 51 and closed only ⅜ above this level for a loss of 6¼ points. Bethlehem dropped 8 and Republic Steel 3⅜.

Aviations were caught in the whirlwind of liquidation. The board's most active stock was Curtiss-Wright, which had a volume of 113,900 shares and closed at 8, off 1¾ points. Lockheed broke 4⅞, Douglas 5½, United Aircraft 3, Glenn L. Martin 4½, and North American Aviation 5¾.

A favorable sign came well after the close when the firm of Morgan Stanley & Co. decided to go ahead with its offering of $75,000,000 United States Steel Corporation debentures.

Continued pressure on Treasury bonds in heavy dealings was a feature of bond transactions today in a day of increased volume and generally lower prices throughout the list. Declines in Treasury bonds amounted to a full point or more in numerous issues, establishing new lows for 1940.

Along with the weakness in United States issues, foreign bonds again sold down abruptly over much of the list to reach new lows for the year. European and British Empire issues were most affected on the down side. Some Japanese obligations exhibited a stronger tone.

Scrap Prices Raised $1 a Ton

Pittsburgh, May 14 (AP).—The price of No. 1 heavy melting steel scrap was given two boosts of 50 cents a ton each today, raising the quotations to a range of $18.50 to $19 a ton. The $1 advance places the price $2 above the quotations of only a week ago.

Similarly, No. 1 railroad scrap was given two 50-cent jumps today, establishing the rang eat $19.50 to $20 a ton.

Exchange Markets

New York, May 14 (AP).—The pound sterling rose around 2 cents today in a nervous foreign exchange market.

Prices fluctuated widely as traders tried to gear their orders to conflicting war claims.

More uneasiness was generated by talk Britain plans to add still more empire-produced goods to those which may be paid for only with sterling purchased at the official rate set by the Bank of England. The official price is currently around 80 cents above the local ("free") rate.

Some banking quarters said such moves, if carried through to the end, might mean temporary extinction of a free market for the pound.

The Canadian dollar rose with sterling to 82.18¾ United States cents, a gain of ⅛ cent. The French franc added .01 of a cent. The Swiss franc held unchanged.

Grains Topple Legal Limit In War Gloom

Wheat Plummets 10 Cent Limit; Corn And Rye Decline

By the Associated Press

Chicago, May 14.—Dollar wheat was wiped off the Nation's grain boards today as all contracts plummeted the full 10-cent permissible limit and closed at the lows. Other grains fell with wheat.

German successes in Europe, which led some traders to entertain thoughts of an early peace and which added to nervousness that has been mounting since the westward drive started Friday, were the direct cause of liquidation such as has not been seen in years.

The break on the Board of Trade was the sharpest in seven years—since July 20, 1933, when the market collapsed 15 to 18 cents. There were no limits on fluctuations then.

July contracts tumbled to and closed at 95⅝, compared with a season high of $1.11¼ April 22. May closed at 35¾. Corn finished 4¾@5½ down, May 61¾, July 61¾@62½; oats 3@3⅞ down; soy beans 8 down; rye 10 down; lard 80@87 cents a hundredweight lower.

England Sends $75,000,000 Gold For War Buying

By the Associated Press

British Empire gold shipments to pay for war supplies boosted gold imports last week to $78,483,938.

The Commerce Department said that the import total, which was $32,000,000 higher than the preceding week, included more than $75,000,000 of British Empire metal.

These shipments included $14,638,616 from the United Kingdom, $51,833,466 from Canada, $8,239,193 from South Africa, and $661,918 from India.

Sweden and the Netherlands, which have been shipping substantial sums of gold in recent months, sent none last week, possibly as the result of German occupation of most of Norway in the path of Sweden's route, and invasion of Holland.

Preliminary Auction To Clear Books of Commercial National

Assets of the closed Commercial National Bank, having a face value of $500,000, were sold at public auction yesterday for a total of $437,000, Frederick J. Young, receiver, announced last night.

He said the auction was a "preliminary sale" to clear the books. Notes, judgments, etc., included the bulk of sold assets, he added. A similar sale is scheduled at the closed Federal American National Bank & Trust Co., tomorrow, Young said. Assets at this institution are valued at $1,084,000. The sale will start at 10 a. m.

Cotton Breaks Up to $3.50 a Bale On Heavy Selling

New York, May 14 (AP).—Cotton futures prices suffered one of the widest breaks of recent years today on a flood of selling orders from many foreign and domestic sources. Extreme losses ran to about $3.50 a bale, but some late covering and trade support lifted the market about $b a bale above the lows.

Professional operators, New Orleans and Wall Street houses were active in the late selling drive.

Interest payable May 1 and November 1

Coupon Debentures in denomination of $1,000, registerable as to principal.

Redeemable at any time at the option of the Corporation as a whole, or any one or more series as a whole, on any interest date on 30 days' notice, or on any other date on 60 days' notice, at the principal amount and accrued interest, plus 8/100% of the principal amount for each six months or fraction thereof from the date fixed for redemption to the interest payment date next preceding the date of maturity.

The following is merely a brief outline, prepared by the Corporation, of certain information contained in the Offering Prospectus and is subject to the more detailed statements in the Offering Prospectus and the Registration Statement, which include important information not outlined or indicated herein. The Offering Prospectus, which must be furnished to each purchaser, should be read prior to any purchase of these Debentures.

THE CORPORATION The Corporation, incorporated in New Jersey in 1901, is a holding company owning a controlling stock interest in various subsidiaries which principally conduct integrated operations for the production and sale in competitive markets of a wide variety of finished and semi-finished steel products. Collectively the subsidiaries constitute the largest domestic producer of steel. Operations include the production of most of the coal, substantially all of the iron ore, limestone and coke, and part of certain other raw materials used by the subsidiaries. Steel products (other than rails) and cement are generally quoted for delivery at place of destination. The Federal Trade Commission has severely criticized the delivered price method of selling steel products, recommending that it be supplanted by sales f. o. b. manufacturer's mill, and has attacked the delivered price method of sale of cement in a pending legal proceeding.

The Corporation and certain subsidiaries own all of the capital stock of 15 common carrier railroads which operate approximately 1,266 miles of road. These railroads are important by reason of the transportation facilities made available to the subsidiaries and the dividends received from the large investments therein.

The properties of the subsidiaries consist principally of iron and steel manufacturing properties, coke plants, rail and water transportation properties, and owned and leased iron ore and coal properties. The plants and facilities vary in age and operating efficiency. Substantial expenditures may be required during the next few years to replace or rebuild various plants and facilities.

EARNINGS The following condensed income statement has been summarized from the Offering Prospectus and should be read in conjunction with the Condensed Consolidated Income Statement and Condensed Statement of Consolidated Earned Surplus for the years 1930-1939 and the other financial statements and related notes appearing therein, particularly as to the adjustments at December 31, 1935 aggregating $270,000,000 for increased reserves for depreciation and obsolescence which were charged to a special earned surplus account segregated prior to 1930. No allocation can be made of the portion of such $270,000,000 which applies to the years 1930-1935 and which would reduce net income for these years. All of the financial statements referred to in the foregoing have been reviewed by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., independent public accountants.

*Loss

During the quarter ended March 31, 1940 the consolidated net income was $17,113,995 after providing $15,293,594 for depreciation and depletion.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE The net proceeds from the sale of these Debentures (estimated at $73,812,500 after deducting expenses) are to be used, in conjunction with approximately $24,559,617 of the cash funds of the Corporation, to redeem or retire on or before July 15, 1940, at 103% of the principal amount thereof, plus interest accrued to July 15, 1940, $95,140,000 principal amount of the Corporation's Ten Year 3¼% Debentures, due June 1, 1948. The aggregate amount required for such purpose will be $98,372,117. The remainder of the Ten Year 3¼% Debentures outstanding in the principal amount of $2,441,500 will have been called for redemption on or prior to June 1, 1940, funds therefor being on deposit in the Sinking Fund.

DEBENTURES The Debentures are unsecured and are to be issued under an Indenture dated as of May 1, 1940, between the Corporation and The First National Bank of the City of New York, as Trustee. No additional Debentures may be issued under the Indenture. Other indebtedness may be incurred by the Corporation or any subsidiary. With certain exceptions the Indenture provisions may be modified with the consent of holders of not less than 66⅔% of outstanding Debentures.

UNDERWRITING Subject to certain terms and conditions, the Underwriters, including the undersigned and the others named in the Offering Prospectus, have severally agreed to purchase the Debentures from the Corporation at 98¾%, or a total of $74,062,500, and accrued interest. Such Debentures are to be offered to the public at 100%, or a total of $75,000,000, and accrued interest. The underwriting discounts are 1¼%, or a total of $937,500. Payment for and delivery of the Debentures are to be made on May 21, 1940, but may be postponed to not later than May 31, 1940.

The Underwriters have agreed to purchase these Debentures when, as and if issued, and subject to the approval of Messrs. White & Case and of Messrs. Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed, counsel for the Underwriters, and to certain further conditions. It is expected that delivery of Debentures in temporary form, exchangeable for definitive Debentures when prepared, will be made at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. Incorporated on or about May 21, 1940, against payment therefor in New York funds.

TO FACILITATE THE OFFERING, IT IS INTENDED TO STABILIZE THE PRICES OF THESE DEBENTURES. THIS STATEMENT IS NOT AN ASSURANCE THAT THE PRICES OF THE ABOVE SECURITIES WILL BE STABILIZED OR THAT THE STABILIZING, IF COMMENCED, MAY NOT BE DISCONTINUED AT ANY TIME.

Further information, particularly financial statements, is contained in the Registration Statement on file with the Securities and Exchange Commission, and in the Offering Prospectus which must be furnished to each purchaser and is obtainable from the undersigned or from any other Underwriter of this issue.

Standard Oil Earnings Rise Despite War

Teagle and Farish Describe Problems Arising in Conflict

By the Associated Press

New York, May 14.—The Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, world-wide marketer of petroleum products, reported today an increase in profits for 1939 in face of war-time business hazards.

Excluding an estimated $4,000,000 in profits for subsidiaries in Great Britain, France, Germany, Algeria and Finland, consolidated income of the huge oil producer and distributor rose to $89,128,736, equal to $3.26 a common share, compared with $76,053,170, or $2.86 a share, in 1938.

"While your company's plans continue to be formulated on the basis of a long look ahead, they are now subject to almost daily revision," said the report, signed by W. C. Teagle, chairman, and W. S. Farish, president.

"Such a complete dislocation of international relations never before existed, and many of the uncertainties of war must vitally influence this business."

The report commented that "strict Government regulation became the order of the day" with the outbreak of the war.

The loss of four Standard Oil tankers operated by foreign affiliates by submarines or mines was acknowledged. At the end of 1939 the company's tanker fleet, flying American and foreign flags, totaled 205 ships of 2,186,530 deadweight tons.

Richfield Oil

Richfield Oil Corporation and subsidiary reported March quarter net profit of $947,550, equal to 24 cents on common stock compared with $519,043, or 13 cents, in the corresponding 1939 quarter.

Chile Copper

Preliminary report of Chile Copper Co. and subsidiaries showed March quarter net profit of $5,181,797 before depletion, equal to $1.17 a share, against $2,103,725, or 45 cents, in the like period last year.

Andes Copper Mining Co. and Portrerillos Railway Co. earned net profit for the March quarter of $1,825,836 before depletion, equal to 51 cents a share, against $537,568, or 15 cents, a year ago.

The companies are controlled by Anaconda Copper Mining Co.

Atlantic Coast Lines

Atlantic Coast Line Railroad reported net income in the March quarter of $765, 213, equal to 92 cents a common share, compared with $1,046,060, or $1.27 last year.

International Paper

International Paper & Power Co. and subsidiaries reported March quarter net profit of $2,960,573 after all charges, including provision for accrued dividends on subsidiary preferred stocks not currently being paid. This was equal after quarterly dividend requirements on 5 per cent preferred stock (on which undeclared cumulative dividends amounted to $12.50 a share on March 31) to 99 cents a share on common and compared with net profit of $12,428, or 1 cent on 5 per cent preferred, in the March quarter last year.

Charles Graddick Leaves U. S. For Place With United Air

CHARLES GRADDICK

Charles P. Graddick, superintendent of air mail for the United States Postoffice Department since 1934, has resigned as of June 1, to join the United Air Lines organization as director of mail and express.

Russell LeBrock, who has handled the air mail problems of United for more than a decade will continue in his work, being associated with Graddick as superintendent of mail. Graddick will head a new department being created by United for the extensive promotion of cargo transportation by air.

Graddick brings to United much experience gained through many years service in the inspection, coordination and administrative work of the Postoffice Department. Prior to becoming superintendent of air mail he was on efficiency survey duty, directing space, equipment and personnel allocation to various postoffices. He has long been a student of the cargo possibilities of scheduled air transport and has stated that he looks forward with keen pleasure to the opportunity to work out some of his ideas with United Air Lines.

Graddick is known to many in Army circles. He was with the Pershing expedition to Mexico in 1916, was with the Thirty-first (Dixie) Division in France in 1918, and completed his military service as a major. He was Georgia State commander of the American Legion 1929-1930, and on the Legion's national executive committee in 1930.

Graddick will be stationed at United's general headquarters, United Air Lines Building, Chicago.

Blair High Nine Tops Rockville By 9-3 Score

Avenges One of Two Setbacks of Season; Johnny Norris Star

Avenging one of its two setbacks of the season, Montgomery Blair High yesterday stopped a Rockville rally in the ninth and took a 7-4 victory at Four Corners. The first clash of the Montgomery County rivals ended in a 9-3 victory for Rockville.

Johnny Norris, who pitches, catches or plays the outfield, went to the mound yesterday and held the invaders to five safeties. Third Baseman Anders got two of them, both triples. In addition, Norris contributed a double to the winning cause, struck out 13 and issued only two bases on balls. Stang, of Rockville, fanned 11 but was touched for 12 hits.

Two runs in the second inning sent Blair off to a good start, and after Rockville turned in one run in the third, the eventual winners locked things up with a three-run spree in the fifth. Rockville attempted a rally in the ninth, but it was cut short at one run.

Colonials Engage Riverside Court

ton and Georgetown teaming to present twin bills against major opponents next year is strong, according to all reports. The Hoyas, like the Colonials, are ambitions to go big-time on the court. Neither school has been able to do this while playing their home games at McKinley Tech High School, where the seating capacity of only 3,200 prohibited offering the large guarantees demanded by top-flight opposition.

Riverside Stadium, with accomodations for almost 5,500, will solve that problem. Though George Washington issues about 7,000 student athletic books, never more than 2,500 have been used for admission to any Colonial sports event, according to Publicity Director John Busick. So should this precedent follow there would always be available at Riverside at least 3,000 seats for outside spectators.

Two games with Georgetown and one with Maryland will provide local flavor for G. W.'s Riverside schedule. Also to appear here are a pair of the Colonial's old-time powerful rivals, St. John's, of Brooklyn, and West Virginia. Minnesota, Ohio State, Kansas State and Oklahoma A. & M. are all scheduled here during the Christmas period.

The proximity of Riverside Stadium to the George Washington campus and its unlimited parking facilities, as compared with those at Tech, will give these games considerable impetus, Farrington believes. The selection of Riverside and the posibilities for satisfactory promotion there fulfill a long-time hope of Coach Reinhart, who for five years has regretted the college had no suitable place for home basketball games.

In addition to its ambitious home card the Colonial five will play ten games away, including Army, Navy, Villanova and Washington & Lee which help comprise the best-balanced basketball schedule ever attempted by the G-street school.

December 14, Washington and Lee, away; 18, Oklahoma A. & M., here; 20, Clemson, here; 28, Kansas State, here; 30, Minnesota, here.

January 4, Ohio State, here; 8, Georgetown, here; 11, Richmond, away; 13, South Carolina, away; 14, Clemson, away; 18, Furman, away; 22, Army, away; 23, Villanova, away.

Sports Postscripts

Detroit, May 14.—Zeke Bonura will confine his sightseeing to the United States of America, at least for the duration of the European war . . . Bonura wandered across the Detroit River into Windsor, Canada, to spend the off day and on a Windsor street made the mistake of stopping to read a Canadian army recruiting poster . . . While he was thus engaged, a Canadian officer tapped him on the shoulder and inquired "Why aren't you fighting for your country. You're a big husky fellow, the kind we need" . . . A thoroughly scared Bonura stammered out that his country wasn't at war, and caught the next bus back to the U. S. . . . Bobby Burke, the pitcher who had an 11-year tryout with Washington and once picked a no-hit game, has been stranded in Detroit for nearly a week . . . Burke was a student at the McGowan-Ormsby Umpiring School in Florida and was assigned a job in the Provincial League, a Class B circuit in Canada . . . but the Canadian immigration officials refused him admission on the grounds that he was a laborer . . . Freddy Hutchinson, the $70,000 rookie pitcher, was turned back to the minors today for the second time and if he fails once more as a big league hurler, he'll be converted into an outfielder out of respect to his hitting . . . Bud Thomas, who won seven straight games for the Tigers last year in relief roles, also was released to the minors today . . . Johnny Welaj has adopted a new batting stance which puts him as far back in the batters' box as the rules permit . . . It was with some trepidation that Bucky Harris restored Buddy Lewis to the third base job today on account of Lewis' weakness as a fielder, but it worked out nicely because Lewis had only one chance in the field . . . Jake Early came up with a mysterious sore arm, which is the reason he is not in the Nats' line-up against right-handed pitching . . . The Detroit bleacher fans' good-natured boos toward Gerald Walker, their favorite ball player, turned to cheers when he made a brilliant one-hand catch of McCosky's drive in the third inning . . . Buck Newsom will pitch for the Tigers tomorrow against Sid Hudson.—POVICH.

Dutch Leonard Beats Tigers For Nats, 4-2

Walker Hits a Homer To Clinch Game in Sixth; Stars at Bat

up Leonard with a fancy pair of one-hand stabs of ground balls hit far to his right.

Leonard was superb after his difficult first inning. Over the remainder of the game, he permitted only seven hits. From the first to the sixth he pitched two-hit ball, and when the Tigers threatened with two out in the sixth, Walker cut down Campbell at third base when he tried to advance from first on York's single to left.

It was in the eighth that Leonard bore down with his knuckle ball. Bartell opened with a single and Leonard found himself faced by an array of four left-handed batters who represented the peak of the Tigers' batting power. His first act was to retire Barney McCosky on a pop-up to Travis. Gehringer beited a single to right that moved Bartell to third, and then Leonard was magnificent. He forced Averill to pop to Travis and Campbell to pop to Ferrell.

George Case inspired the first Washington run when he hit the first pitch of the game for a single to center and scampered to second when McCosky muffed the ball. Lewis scored him with a single to right center.

That 1-0 lead didn't stand up long. Bartell singled to left and after McCosky forced him at second, Gehringer and Averill delivered singles that moved a run home. Walker, however, threw Averill out at second when he tried to stretch his blow to a double. Campbell singled Gehringer home, but Leonard fanned York to end the threat.

The Nats were getting nowhere rapidly until the sixth. Then Welaj led off with a vicious single through Higgins' glove. That's where Walker stepped into the picture with his home-run clout that put the Nats in the lead.

In the seventh, Lewis walked with two out and Welaj dumped a single into left center that moved him to third. That set the stage for Walker again and he moved Lewis home with a solid single into left. But with Leonard shutting out the Tigers, that run was as superfluous as the sixth Scotch and soda.

White Sox Return Pitcher to Shreveport

Chicago, May 14 (AP).—The Chicago White Sox returned Vallie Eaves, young right-handed pitcher today to Shreveport of the Texas League.

Eaves who was given starting assignments at the start of the American League season, failed to fulfill promise displayed during spring training. He was released outright.

The Sox also sent two other youthful right-handers, Harry Boyles and Herman Hansmann, on option to Waterloo, Iowa, their three Eye League farm club.

Little Generals' Ace Garners 23 Points; Wins Four Events

Trackmen of Roosevelt High were treated to a large dose of Wally Legg's back draft yesterday as the fleet Washington-Lee High youngster led his team to a 95-28 victory in a dual meet at the Little General Stadium.

Featured by his victory in the 100-yard dash, in which he turned in the best time of his career—9.9—Wally was responsible for 23 of the winners' points. He also won both hurdle events and the broad jump, and placed second to his husky teammate, Hoover, in the shot put.

Roosevelt, preparing for its participation in the interhigh meet, managed to take only one first place. That was in the pole vault, which Kelsey won with a leap of 11 feet 10 inches. The Little Generals retaliated by taking both second and third.

W.-L. swept the 440, discus and high jump, Clark, Carr and Gudger finishing in that order in the first in 51.8 seconds. Montgomery, Newsome and Hoover took care of the discus and Shumway and Edelman, the only two men in the high jump, finished first and second, respectively.

COMPLETE RESULTS:

220-YARD DASH—Won by Urbanski (W.-L.); second, Norton (R.); third, Speakman (W.-L.). Time, 24.9 seconds.

440-YARD DASH—Won by Clark (W.-L.); second, Carr (W.-L.); third, Gudger (W.-L.). Time, 51.8 seconds.

880-YARD RUN—Won by Carr (W.-L.); second, Counell (R.); third, White (W.-L.). Time, 2:02.2.

MILE RUN—Won by D. Lee (W.-L.); second, Harris (W.-L.); third, Burns (R.). Time, 4:54.

HIGH HURDLES—Won by Legg (W.-L.); second, Choat (W.-L.); third, Breier (R.). Time, 16 seconds.

LOW HURDLES—Won by Legg (W.-L.); second, Breier (R.). Time, 26.2 seconds.

SHOTPUT—Won by Hoover (W.-L.); second, Legg (W.-L.); third, Kolker (R.). Distance, 44 feet 8 inches.

DISCUS—Won by Montgomery (W.-L.); second, Newsome (W.-L.); third, Hoover (W.-L.). Distance, 119 feet.

JAVELIN—Won by Broderick (W.-L.); second, R. Lee (W.-L.); third, Breier (R.). Distance, 150 feet.

HIGH JUMP—Won by Shumway (W.-L.); second, Edelman (W.-L.). Height, 5 feet 8 inches.

BROAD JUMP—Won by Legg (W.-L.); second, Breier (R.); third, Edelman (W.-L.). Distance, 20 feet 11 inches.

POLE VAULT—Won by Kelsey (R.); second, McIntire (W.-L.); third, Harris (W.-L.). Height, 11 feet 10 inches.

880-YARD RELAY—Won by Washington-Lee (Wilson, Speakman, Urbanski, Clark). Time, 1:35.

Sexton Winner Of Dizzy Meet At Riverside

Mr. Frank Sexton, who is neither a Syrian prince, a Japanese coolie nor even in need of a shave, pinned Reb (Villain) Russell's quivering carcase to the canvas last night to win the "international" wrestling tournament at Riverside in eight minutes.

Espionage agents representing 14 countries and Little America were reported posted at strategic intervals throughout the congregation and were seen last night canoeing their contraband down the Potomac to catch the next freighter for Rotterdam.

Sexton, a newcomer to local rassle addicts, was a tremendous hit in his debut here, defeating Cliff Olson in the first round and duplicating this herculean feat in the semi-final tug by pounding on Tor Johnson, a mean 340-pound bully.

Warren Bockwinkle, the people's choice, was forced to retire from the arena after injuring his arm while winning by disqualification from Bob Weatherley, sans teeth and hood. Previously Bockwinkle had won a hard-fought first-round match with some guy named "bye."

In first-round matches Tommy Rae threw Henry Kulkovitch in nine minutes 38 seconds; Reb Russell threw Angelo Savoldi in 13 minutes 55 seconds; Tor Johnson won from Ralph Garibaldi in five minutes 15 seconds; Matros Kirilenko won by decision from Mike Mazurki after 20 minutes; Bob Weatherley, alias Golden Terror, heaved Abe Yourist in eight minutes 40 seconds.

In quarter-final matches Johnson pinned Kirilenko in six minutes 15 seconds and Russell beat Tommy Rae in 14:30.

Ray George Signs With Pro Eagles

Philadelphia, May 14 (AP).—Bert Bell, president of the Philadelphia Eagles, of the National Professional Football League, announced tonight signing of Ray George, generally rated as the best right tackle in the Western division of the league last year.

George, with the Detroit Lions last season, starred at the University of Southern California. Bell said the Eagles obtained George from Detroit as part of the trade for Dave Smukler, recently announced.

Man of the Month

By Arch McDonald

Station WJSV Baseball Broadcaster

The Man of the Month contest is sponsored jointly by The Washington Post and Station WJSV. Following each of the Nats' games, Arch McDonald will award points to Washington players as he deems performances merit. The Man of the Month will be presented with a $50 merchandise order by The Post.

The heroes were numerous among the Nats yesterday in their 4-2 triumph at Detroit, but the fellows who served with the most distinction were Dutch Leonard and Gerald Walker. To that pair go the bulk of points in The Man of the Month award.

To Leonard, ten points, because he shut out the Tigers in the last eight innings and thus protected his slender lead.

To Walker, ten points, because his home run with a man on base drove in the tying and winning runs, because he hit a single that produced another run, and because he twice threw out runners from left field.

To Johnny Welaj, four points, because he made two hits that figured in two runs, and walked twice.

To Zeke Bonura, four points, because he made two hits and three sensational fielding plays.

To Cecil Travis, three points, despite the fact he went hitless, because he handled a half-dozen difficult chances without an error.

To Rick Ferrell, two points, because he made a double and caught a brilliant game. The totals:

Gerald Walker	37	Rick Ferrell	3
Cecil Travis	26	Jimmy Pofahl	6
Jimmy Bloodworth	26	Buddy Lewis	4
George Case	20	Al Evans	4
"Dutch" Leonard	20	Johnny Welaj	4
Zeke Bonura	20	Jake Early	3
Syd Hudson	12	Charley Gelbert	3

Foreign Markets

London, May 14 (AP).—Security prices declined sharply today, influenced by latest war news and Monday's slump in Wall Street. The mark-downs were described as "precautionary" since actual selling remained small. British government bonds lost an eighth of ½ point. Foreign bonds were almost uniformly lower. Coppers and other base metals held comparatively steady but Kaffirs readily gave ground. Oils, rubbers and industrials shifted down in a body.

Paris, the Bourse put up a good front today to reports of German was successes, but moderate losses predominated at the close. Some steel shares dropped as much as 10 per cent. Rentes closed 55 to 90 centimes lower. Mediterranean issues displayed a weak undertone.

Liverpool: Cotton prices dropped 12 to 14 points today. Closing of the Alexandria cotton market affected sentiment adversely and outside demand dried up.

We don't care what your past work or earnings have been. We are not worried about your education, your religion or your nationality.
We are interested in how ambitious you are and how willing you are to work and study, to qualify for the kind of weekly and monthly earnings being made by men already connected with this organization.
You may be employed now, but starving for lack of opportunity. You may be out of work and in need of employment. However, if you have been idle for more than a few months, we doubt if you are the kind of man who could hold down the place we have to offer.
It will cost you nothing to investigate this ad and, until we talk with you, we cannot tell whether you could qualify in our line which is outstanding in its field.
Come in for an interview, Thursday, at 1 p. m. sharp, at 205 Denrike Building, 1010 Vermont Ave. N.W.

Comes 10:30 each weekday morning and WJSV unfolds a serial called "Big Sister," which is as good as the next morning serial, and a little bit better on one score. It has an old friend named ZaSu Pitts playing a major role. The one-time movie star, who can still go to work in Hollywood any time the idea seems worth the trouble, plays the part of Aunt Mamie and she manages to get everything into the ether that she got into celluloid.

Incidentally, a thought must be in your mind that maybe I can clear up. Why would an established movie star like ZaSu Pitts forego all that legendary Hollywood cash for a job on a radio serial, or soap-opera as the lads in the industry call 'em.

It's simple. Beautifully simple. In matters of dollars pay per minute radio stars make movie stars look like coolie laborers. ZaSu rehearses a little, reads her lines twice a day, once for the East, later for the West and her day's work is done by 1 o'clock in the afternoon. The actual working time is probably an hour a day.

At the moment if you would pick up a rather interesting piece of jewelry with a minimum of effort and expense I'd suggest catching "Big Sister." The "Big Sister" sponsors are giving away brooches, which I couldn't describe but which I've seen and while they're not exactly suited to my type they look quite pretty. I understand girls like trinkets like that. In fact my gal Gwendolyn is constantly mentioning her fondness for trinkets. Little things that go well with summer print dresses like Buicks.

I'm handicapped dreadfully attempting to describe brooches, but that guy on the "Big Sister" show is a bearcat, so why not let him do it?

Orphans in Love

by Marion White

"Are you sure this is what you want, John?"

SYNOPSIS

Ellen Carlin has loved Peter Storm since both were children at St. Joseph's Orphanage. Peter won't declare his love, fearing they would be impoverished on his salary. While picnicking a storm causes them to take refuge in the old deserted Tucker mansion, forbidden to them when they were children. In a picture is a face so similar to Peter's that Ellen mistakes it for Peter's picture and they learn in a book the man is Peter Tucker, a Revolutionary war hero. Peter says the house makes him determined never to be content with less. Peter later wanders through a tenement district when a building catches fire. Peter rescues three little boys trapped there, and is later interviewed by Carver of the Press. In another section of town prominent John Abbott sits in his luxurious apartment and reads of Peter Storm's linking with the Tucker family, all of which Ellen gave away when Carver talked to her, too. Abbott is worried over some past misdeed and discusses it with his wife.

Chapter 9

HE REACHED out and grasped the paper, emphasizing the brazen accusal.

"If I were to make one false step, the newspapers would dig out the truth. They'd make another Oliver Twist of this boy, with John Abbott playing the role of Sam Fagen. You don't realize the power of the press, Cora."

"Of course I do." She walked around the desk, sank into the chair beside him. "They will do that anyway, whenever they discover anything to back up such a story.

"The fact that they have only hinted proves that the story is safe. So far. And tomorrow or next day, some bigger and better news will make the front page. Peter Storm will be forgotten."

Drops Paper

He dropped the paper, leaned forward, his elbows on the desk, and rested his head in the palms of his hands. Cora, watching him, felt tears spring to her eyes. He had grown old so quickly, she thought.

He had never been able to put the affair wholly out of his mind, as she had done. He had never tried to justify himself.

Rather, he seemed to get some satisfaction by shaming himself, disproving her justification, as he had done that summer in Paris.

All through the years he had carried his guilt like a heavy load, permitting no lessening of its weight. It was devastating him, slowly but surely.

"Peter Storm will be forgotten." He repeated her words like the echo of a litany. "Forgotten . . ."

She put out her hand, rested it on his. "Are you sure that is what you want, John?"

"What I want? What do you mean?"

"You want the boy to slip back into obscurity. Is that it?"

His eyes questioned her curiously. "Naturally I do. Isn't that the only reprieve for me?"

Never Escape

"No, dear." She shook her head slowly, but with conviction. "It isn't. You can never escape the grief of it. You know that.

"Now that the opportunity has come to us, I wish that you would clear yourself, make any amends necessary. No price is too great."

"Except the price of notoriety. That's the one price we cannot pay, Cora."

A long sigh escaped her. "No, I suppose not. But, if on some other way . . ." She hesitated. "Have you thought of seeing him, John?"

"Seeing him?"

"Yes. Many people will want to, you know. There would be nothing conspicuous in the gesture."

"I don't dare . . ."

"In one of your official capacities, perhaps. Aren't you a deputy of public welfare or something?"

His lip curled scornfully. "I'm a lot of noble things. A cheat and a fraud at heart. However, suppose I did see him. What would be gained by it?"

"I'm not sure, exactly. Except that you could make friends with him. Then if later difficulties should arise . . . well, it's always easier to deal with a friend than an enemy."

The offices of Abbott & Carlton, attorneys at law, were impressive and dignified. Deep, richly colored rugs covered the floor of the reception room: it was furnished with massive, hand-carved Gothic reproductions which seemed to fade into a background of walls paneled in old walnut.

Red leather chair cushions, the ambered glow of table lamps, and the soft leather bindings of expensive books offered the only bright relief. The very atmosphere breathed a solemn tradition.

Peter, waiting to see John Abbott, tried to make himself at ease. As he cast appreciative eyes about, he frowned with deliberate and diplomatic intent, to conceal an otherwise obvious admiration.

This is an office, he told himself proudly. A real office, for a real lawyer. If ever I get started . . .

Receives Letters

He wondered vaguely why John Abbott had asked him to call. To be sure, at the hospital he had received letters and gifts from any number of people, once the newspapers started blowing him up as Public Hero No. 1.

An old lady from Texas had sent him a jar of her best preserves, though how she had heard about the fire in Texas, he never would know.

Four of five girls had written in, offering to marry him and make him happy forever. He'd given those letters to Ellen and told her to answer them.

A man in the fire insurance business had written to offer him a job, at $25 a week.

And there was this letter from John Abbott. Of them all, it carried the most weight. Everybody in New York knew who John Abbott was. A summons to call on him was like a command performance before royalty.

Three-Week Illness Fatal To Gen. Hatch

Veteran of 2 Wars And Twice Mayor Of Laurel Was 80

Brig. Gen. Everard E. Hatch, 80, retired, a veteran of the Spanish-American and World Wars and until recently mayor of Laurel, Md., died yesterday at Walter Reed Hospital after a three-week illness.

HATCH

A colorful character at Laurel, where he had held various civic and municipal offices in the last 19 years since his retirement from the Army, Gen. Hatch declined to seek a third-term as mayor shortly before his last illness.

"I'm too old," he told his supporters. "Some younger man should have a chance."

Served in Philippines

Hatch was graduated from West Point in 1884, and began his military career in the East and Southwest in the closing days of Indian uprisings.

Serving with the Eighth Army Corps in the Spanish-American War, he participated in the capture of Manila. After the war he was in command of Camp Wilhelm Tayabas and Camp Daraga in the Philippines. In 1914 he served on the Mexican border and with the Vera Cruz expedition.

After World War service in Europe, he was placed in command of Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind.

Leaves Two Sons

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Annie S. Hatch; two sons, Col. John E. Hatch, Fort Sill, Okla., and Edward S. Hatch, of Laurel, and a daughter, Mrs. Mae Hatch Brown, also of Laurel.

Services will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the Fort Myer chapel. Burial with military honors will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Funeral Rites Held For F. O. Cowsill, Long D. C. Resident

Funeral services for Frederick O. Cowsill, 63, of 1421 Ninth street northwest, who was found dead in his automobile Monday, were held yesterday at the Hines funeral home.

Mr. Cowsill's car was parked in the 4600 block of Massachusetts avenue northwest. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of death from natural causes. He was believed to have suffered a heart attack.

Mr. Cowsill was a neighbor of Mrs. Bessie Catherine Howard, who was stabbed to death by her demented son, Jerome Howard, March 30 in their home at 815 Taylor street. Before the slaying was discovered by a Post reporter, Mr. Cowsill endeavored to communicate with someone in the locked house and saw the youth's pale face appear for a moment at an upstairs window.

Born in England in 1877, Mr. Cowsill, a bricklayer, came to this country when he was 5 and to Washington 45 years ago. Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Murel M. Izzey, Mrs. Gladys C. Tufts and Miss Gertrude Cowsill.

Women Urged To Bar Hate In Americas

Declaring that "America condemns and repudiates war," Senora Anita F. de Alvarez-Calderon, of Peru, in an address here yesterday, urged that the women of the Americas "never permit a campaign of hate and preponderant rivalries in our continents."

She was honor guest and speaker at a luncheon at the Carlton Hotel given by the Peoples Mandate Committee, which has its national headquarters here. Her speech for the strengthening of peace and friendship among the 21 republics of the Americas was heard by Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State, and wives of several diplomats from other American countries among 68 women present.

Senora de Alvarez-Calderon, who is a delegate to the American Scientific Congress here, spoke in Spanish and read three short poems on peace. Mrs. Thomas Burke, a native of Chile and chairman of the mandate for Latin America, translated.

Senora de Alvarez-Calderon is a leader in the Peoples Mandate to End War. Miss Mabel Vernon, its director, who presided at the luncheon, explained that the movement has resulted in the gathering of signatures in many countries from people who urge a peaceful settlement of disputes, reduction of armaments and economic arrangements to further peace and security.

Woman Admitted To Appeals Bar

Mrs. Estella L. J. Baldwin Monday was admitted to practice before the U. S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia on motion of Alexander Holtzoff, special assistant to the Attorney General.

Mrs. Baldwin was graduated from Southeastern University last June and passed the District bar examinations in December. She is a secretary to Holtzoff.

House Agrees to Amendment For Farm Tenancy Borrowing

The House agreed yesterday to a Senate amendment to the billion-dollar Agriculture Department supply bill authorizing the department to borrow $50,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for its farm tenancy program during the coming fiscal year.

President Roosevelt budgeted $25,000,000 for the program. In passing the bill originally, however, the House eliminated the entire item. By yesterday's action, the chamber concurred in the Senate's borrowing plan but insisted on certain r on the program's administration.

The House is expected to complete its present consideration of the measure today. It then will go back to conference between Senate and House spokesmen for further consideration of various Senate amendments to which the House still refuses to agree.

Most important item to be considered involves the $212,000,000 fund written in by the Senate for farm parity payments. The House, which originally provided no such fund, agreed to the amount but insisted that payments be made on the basis of 100 per cent of parity instead of 75 per cent, as provided by the Senate.

In addition to approving the $50,000,000 farm tenancy program, the House concurred in a $2,500,000 appropriation for administration of the program. It irejected a Senate amendment doubling the $1,000,000 budgeted for acquisition of forest lands. It approved a compromise of $11,000,000 for forest roads and trails work. This item originally was set at $8,000,000 by the House and was raised to $13,000,000 by the Senate.

At the same time the House agreed to a compromise $1,023,282,690 appropriation for the Labor Department and the Federal Security Administration but sent this bill back to conference, too, when it rejected two minor Senate changes. The House originally approved $1,021,635,700 for these agencies and the Senate boosted it to $1,025,282,690.

Most important change agreed to by the House gave the wage-hour division $5,430,000. This figure was $600,000 above the original House figure but $400,000 below that of the Senate.

The Senate, meanwhile, adopted the conference report on the $135,684,330 Interior Department Appropriation Bill. The measure will go to the White House if the conference report meets with approval in the House.

Mrs. Bratenahl Dies; Expert In Landscaping

Widow of Former Dean Of Cathedral Directed Planting on Close

Mrs. Florence C. Bratenahl, widow of Dr. G. C. F. Bratenahl, former dean of the Washington Cathedral, and an expert in landscape gardening, died yesterday at Emergency Hospital after a two weeks illness.

Mrs. Bratenahl was noted for her extensive landscape work on the Cathedral close where she directed planting of the famous boxwood plants as well as the greater part of the gardens of Bishop Freeman and the College of Preachers. For her work at the Cathedral she received a medal from the Garden Club of America in recognition of her work at the Cathedral.

For the last several years she operated the "Weathered Oak," herb farm at Bradley Hills, Md., said to be the largest farm devoted to landscape gardening in the country.

Mrs. Bratenahl leaves two sons, Charles, of Williams College, and Alexander, of Washington and Lee University; and a brother, Alexander Brown, of Cleveland, her birthplace.

Funeral services have been set for Friday in St. Paul's Church, in Cleveland. The Rev. G. Freeland Peter, of this city, will officiate.

Retreat League Reelects Mrs. Kelly

Mrs. Leo Kelly was reelected president of the Washington Retreat League at its final meeting of the season, held last night at its Catholic University quarters.

Other officers, all reelected, are Mrs. Francis E. Smith, jr., vice president; Miss Catherine Dolan, secretary, and Mrs. Harry Goodwin, publicity cyhairman.

Contract Bridge

"The blood flowed freely," writes P. W., "in the post-mortem of this hand, and you are the referee as to: (1) Whether any bid made by East and West was correct; (2) who made the worst bid; (3) who is at fault.

"The tragedy:

West	East
♠ None	♠ A 10 7 5 3
♡ A Q 6 4	♡ 7
◇ A Q 9 8	◇ 5
♣ 9 8 7 6 5	♣ A K Q J 4 2

West	North	East	South
1 ♣	Dbl.	Pass	1 ♠
Dbl.	Pass	Pass	Pass

West would rate lower on the first question than East, for East's first pass cannot be criticized, though some players would redouble; whereas, it is doubtful if West should have opened the bidding with a club and, secondly, that he should have made a take-out double of one spade.

It seems, however, that East made the gravest error in passing the one spade double. Being so long in clubs, it is unlikely that declarer will have any, and the most East can anticipate making is two or three spade tricks plus his partner's high cards. A jump take-out in clubs would have been better.

In answer to the third and last question, we can honestly say both West had distribution for aggressive action but few high cards; East had strength but misjudged it. From the cards it appears that at least six clubs should have been bid.

J. F. asks a question about planning the play. Here are the cards and bidding:

West	East
♠ A Q J 9 2	♠ 7 6
♡ A J 9 6	♡ K Q 3
◇ K Q J	◇ A 8 7 6 2
♣ 9	♣ K J 9

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Pass	2 ◇	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	3 NT	Pass
6 ◇	Pass	Pass	Pass

"The opening lead was the ace of clubs, followed by a small spade."
